PREFATORY NOTE.

THE EDITORS, in completing the Second Volume of the Fourth Series, again have to acknowledge the great assistance of several gentlemen sending in copies of Inscriptions to British Subjects in foreign Cemeteries, also to those contributing valuable pedigrees, which afford great pleasure to our readers. The Pedigrees from the Visitation of Dorsetshire, 1531, by Benolte, Clarencex, and edited by Sir George J. Armytage, Bart., F.S.A., and illustrated by nineteen Coats of Arms, are for the first time printed. Those elucidating French pedigrees, chiefly of the Huguenots, contributed by Henry Wagner, Esq., F.S.A., are most interesting.

The EDITORS wish to draw the attention of their readers to pedigrees of families, with arms and autographs, which form such an agreeable addition to the interest of the Work, and which serve to enhance their value when thus rescued from the original MS. For Papers on old family histories the EDITORS request the kind assistance of contributors, printed copies of which would be invaluable for friends generally.

Miscellanea Genealogica et Heraldica.

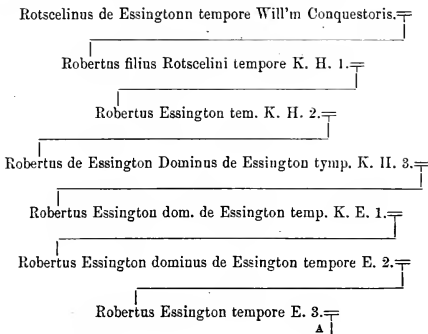

The Family of Essington.

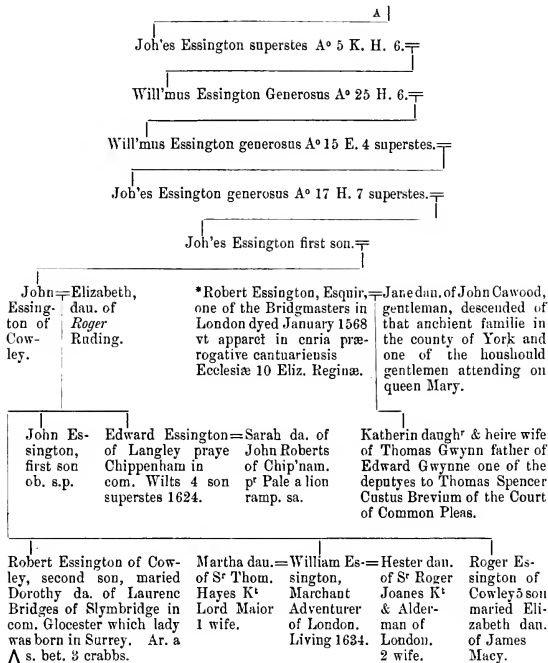

THE FAMILY OF ESSINGTON of Essington in Staffordshire (spelt Estlington, Esnynton, etc.) seem to have been substantially placed in Staffordshire in the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries, and from the Plea Rolls of Henry III. and Edwards I., II., III., they seem to have been often compelled to fight for their own, as well probably for other people's, as the various deeds published from 1200 to 1300 establish.

The "Historical Collections of Staffordshire," published by the William Salt Archæological Society, contain numerous recitals of actions brought for and against members of the family. Thus, in 1201, Robert de Essington signed deeds at Wrottesley granting land to Alan de Overton on his marriage with Matilda the daughter of Richard fitz-William. He is cited with others several times as a jurymen in the King v. Pagan le Wasteneys and other causes, and is named in Calendar of Pedes Finium as complainant; he remits all claim, for which defendant gave him 20s.

We also find in 39/40 Henry III. that Robert de Essington was lord of the Manor of Essington, and held lands in Molestrye, John de Grenhul and partiers having it by fees paid. The wood of Essington is reckoned at half a mark in 1262. In the "Perambulation of Forests" in 1300 Robert de Esyngton holds the vill of Esyngton with the woods and wastes of the Barony of Duddelye, afforested since.

In subsequent years the Essingtons were engaged in many suits, which the Plea and Assize Rolls of 1260 to 1584 duly give. By the courtesy of Mr. W. Bruce Bannerman, F.S.A., I am enabled to subjoin the pedigree of the Essington family from his MS. copy of the "Visitation of Gloucester in 1569."

In the above "Visitation of Gloucester, 1623," the following Arms are given:—

To ALL AND SINGULER Persons to whom thes presents shall come Willim Segar Garter principall King of Armes sendeth due commendac'on and Greeting Know ye^e that being required by William Essington and Thomas Essington two of the sonnes of John Essington late of Cowley nere Essington in the county of Gloucester gent. descended of the elder Howse of two of that surname and familie; that I would by vertue of my office blason and set forth in colours the true coat Armour of their said Howse together with their creast so as they may lawfully use and beare the same without the prejudice or wronge doeing to any person or persons by a different hand: “Posted to Essington.” “See this Grant at length in my Book of Grants at length called Morgan, fol. 100, examined with the other.

P. LE NEVE NORROY.”

The family was resident in Wandsworth from 1674 to 1775, and John Essington, late of Cowley, was pricked for High Sheriff of Surrey in 1724. His son, William Essington, who is described as a Merchant Adventurer, after his first marriage at Wandsworth with the daughter of Sir Roger Jones, knight, and Alderman of London, married for his second wife Martha, daughter of Sir Thomas Hayes, Knt.; sometime Mayor and Alderman of London, and acquired large property in Wandsworth; he had three sons and three daughters. His eldest son William went into the Navy, through the example of his uncle Captain Thomas Hughes of His Majesty's Ship “Woolf,” and he administered to his mother's property in Wandsworth as the only son in 1775.

We find he was in command of His Majesty's Ship “Aurora” in 1794, when he sent two officers to procure men for the fleet to the “Sarah and Elizabeth” of Hull, but the Master defied them, and told his crew to arm, and the consequence was that the “Aurora” was run alongside. The crew were told to capitulate, but Mr. Williamson the boatswain was shot by them, and then the seamen under him fired in return. The officers did all they could to stop the frigate, as well as Captain Essington, but one man was killed and three wounded, likewise Mr. Williamson. The crew found in arms were taken, including the three wounded. This account was forwarded to the Mayor of Hull.

His next important position was in command of His Majesty Ship “Triumph,” and in his despatches to the Admiralty of the Battle of Camperdown in October 1797, Admiral Duncan, who was in command, reported to the Admiralty that

" Captain Essington began to engage with two ships of the enemy. At 20 past 1 general signal to engage closer. At half-past 2 the wheel shot away."

Admiral Duncan's despatch to the Admiralty, 13 Oct. 1797, is as follows:—

VENERABLE, AT SEA, 13TH OCTOBER 1797, OFF THE COAST OF HOLLAND.

SIR,

Be pleased to acquaint the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty that, judging it of consequence their Lordships should have as early information as possible of the Defeat of the Dutch Fleet under the Command of Admiral de Winter, I dispatched the Rose Cutter at Three P.M. on the 12th (11th) Instant, with a short Letter to you immediately after the Action was ended. I have now further to acquaint you, for their Lordships' information, that on the Night of the 10th Instant, after I had sent away my Letter to you of that Date, I placed my Squadron in such situation as to prevent the Enemy from returning to the Texel without my falling in with them. At Nine o'Clock in the Morning of the 11th I got sight of Captain Trollope's Squadron, with Signals flying for an Enemy to Leeward; I immediately bore up, and made the Signal for a general Chase, and soon got sight of them, forming in a Line on the Larboard Tack to receive us, the Wind at N.W. As we approached near I made the Signal for the Squadron to shorten Sail, in order to connect them; soon after I saw the Land between Camperdown and Egmont, about Nine Miles to Leeward of the Enemy, and finding there was no Time to be lost in making the Attack, I made the signal to bear up, break the Enemy's Line, and engage them to Leeward, each Ship her Opponent, by which I got between them and the Land, whither they were fast approaching. My Signals were obeyed with great Promptitude, and Vice-Admiral Onslow, in the "Monarch," bore down on the Enemy's Rear in the most gallant Manner, his Division following his Example, and the Action commenced about Forty Minutes past Twelve o'Clock. The "Venerable" soon got through the Enemy's Line, and I began a close Action, with my Division on their Van, which lasted near Two Hours and a Half, when I observed all the Masts of the Dutch Admiral's Ship to go by the Board; she was, however, defended for some Time in a most gallant Manner; but being overpressed by Numbers, her Colours were struck, and Admiral De Winter was soon brought on Board the "Venerable." On looking around me I observed the Ship bearing the Vice-Admiral's Flag was also dismasted, and had surrendered to Vice-Admiral Onslow; and that many others had likewise struck. Finding we were in Nine Fathoms Water, and not further than Five Miles from the Land, my Attention was so much taken up in getting the Heads of the disabled Ships off Shore, that I was not able to distinguish the Number of Ships captured; and the Wind having been constantly on the Land since, we have unavoidably been much dispersed, so that I have not been able to gain an exact Account of them, but we have taken possession of Eight or Nine; more of them had struck, but taking Advantage of the Night, and being so near their own Coast, they succeeded in getting off, and some of them were seen going into the Texel the next Morning.

It is with the greatest Pleasure and Satisfaction I make known to their Lordships the very gallant Behaviour of Vice-Admiral Onslow, the Captains, Officers, Seamen and Marines of the Squadron, who all appeared actuated with the truly British Spirit, at least those that I had an Opportunity of seeing.

. . . . The Squadron has suffered much in their Masts, Yards, and Rigging, and many of them have lost a Number of Men; however, in no Proportion to that of the Enemy

As most of the Ships of the Squadron are much disabled, and several of the Prizes dismasted, I shall make the best of my Way with them to the Nore.

I am, Sir,
Your most obedient humble Servant,

ADAM DUNCAN.

THE RIGHT HON. ADAM DUNCAN.

General Duncan distinguished himself in the Battle of Falkirk in 1747, in the Battle of Culloden in 1746, and in the Battle of the Clouds in 1748. He was killed at the Battle of the Clouds on 17th December 1748.

Captain Essington reports, "Triumph," 16 Oct. 1797, Yarmouth Roads, I beg you will be pleased to inform the Lords of the Admiralty of my arrival here with H.M.S. under my command and the "Hercules," Dutch Ship of 66 guns, taken in the action of the 11th instant. I have also the honour to enclose a correct List of the Killed and Wounded, that sent by Admiral Duncan being incorrect. I sincerely regret the number it contains, but it is beyond the utmost effort of my praise to do justice to the cool gallantry and good conduct of all the officers and seamen I have the honour to command; they each deserve particular notice, and their Lordships will, I hope, pardon me for recommending to their favour Mr. Chapman, my first lieutenant, to whom I was under infinite obligation, and who although wounded in the head returned immediately to his duty from being dressed; and the duty has indeed fallen extremely heavy on the Lieutenant, being two short of the complement, Lieutenant Trollope being laid up since the action by the wound in his foot, Lieutenant Herring having charge of the prize, and Mr. Read the Master being incapable of active duty from the bruises received in the action. I shall lose no time in sending such of the wounded whose cases admit removal on shore, and every exertion shall be used to put the "Triumph" in the best state her mast and rigging will admit, as well as the prize, which is without a mizen mast. I have to solicit their Lordships' attention for my further proceedings, and have the honour to remain, Sir,

Your most obedient Servant,

Evan N. Napcan, Esq.

W. ESSINGTON.

Killed and Wounded.

"Triumph."—25 Scamen, 3 Marines, 1 Boy, killed; 5 Officers, 50 Seamen and Marines, wounded.—Total 84.

Officers Wounded.

"Triumph."—Captain Essington, slightly in the Arm; Mr. Chapman, First Lieutenant, slightly in the Head; Mr. Trollope, Third Lieutenant, slightly in the Foot; Mr. Read, Master, slightly bruised; Mr. Jones, Midshipman, slightly in the Face.

[Marked in corner: 17th October, "Own this, and acquaint him that their Lordships are highly satisfied with his conduct, and of the gallant behaviour of the officers and men during the action."]

DETAILS OF THE BATTLE.

Friday, 18th Oct. 1797.

"Thursday, 10 minutes to 1, Admiral Onslow began to fire on the centre of enemy, and engaged the Dutch Vice-Admiral. "Agincourt's" signal to engage. $\frac{1}{4}$ past 1, "Triumph," Captain Essington, began to engage with two ships of the enemy. 20 past 1, general signal to engage closer, and continued flying the whole of the action, Admiral Duncan frequently engaging with five ships of the enemy at once. $\frac{1}{2}$ past 2, the wheel shot away, "Ardent" bore up to our assistance. Squally with rain. At 3 wind shifted; left off action. Spoke the "Director." 10 past 3, general signal to close, "Director" and "Belliqueux" engaging Dutch Admiral. About 20 past 3 the "Vreyherd's" three masts went over the side. $\frac{1}{2}$ past 3 general signal to prepare for battle. 40 past 3 "Agincourt" made signal, wanting boats to tow. "Ardent" made signal, being in want of assistance; employed knotting and splicing. Sent Officer and men to take charge of "Hercules," on fire. At 4 "Monarch" made "Triumph's" signal to stay by prizes. 30 past 4, Admiral made "Veteran's" signal to "Triumph," who had been in chase of remainder of Dutch fleet. 45 past 4, Admiral made "Veteran" signal. At 5, "Monarch" and "Lancaster" signalled to stay by "Ardent." Camperdown, at 6, found $3\frac{1}{2}$ feet water in hold; mast and yards much sprung; three guns disabled and seven carriages; much of the lower rigging cut to pieces. Haud-pump kept on; 30 killed, and upwards of 75 wounded."

BRASSEY AND OLIVER FAMILY.

Richard Oliver (1st son and heir of Thomas Oliver of The Great House, Leyton, co. Essex, and of 20 Mark Lane, West India Merchant), born 19 February 1761; Fellow Commoner of Clare College, Cambridge, 1780, B.A. 1784, M.A. 1788; married 12 June 1799 at St. James's, Piccadilly, Maria, dau. of Nathaniel Brassey of Lombard Street, sometime of Leyton, later of Roxford, co. Herts, Banker. (See pedigree of Brassey in Vol. II., New Series, p. 577.)

He inherited his father's extensive estates in the West Indies, and dying s.p. at his residence, 25 Royal Crescent, Bath, 9 February 1821, by his will, dated 6 March 1817, bequeathed the whole of his property absolutely to his wife. She remarried, 7 April 1825, Col. John Gordon of Wincombe Park, co. Wilts, and by pre-marriage settlement, dated 2 April 1825, it was recited that she was entitled to £43,700 3 per cent. stock; to £10,000 from the sale of a plantation called Haddons, in the Island of Antigua, sold in 1807 by Richard Oliver, her late husband; and to £10,866 from the sale of his Diamond plantation in the Island of Grenada, etc.

Col. John Gordon died 14 January 1834, and by his will, dated 30 October 1833, bequeathed his plantation in St. James's parish, Jamaica, and his estate at Wincombe, after his wife's death, to his nephew, the late Charles Gordon.

Mrs. Maria Gordon died s.p. 5 May 1852, and by her will, dated 9 January 1852, bequeathed the bulk of her property to her brother George Brassey of Bramfield, co. Herts, who died 31 August 1864, aged 82. I much wish to learn who is his representative, so as to trace family papers which passed presumably in 1852 to the Brasseys; my Solicitors, whom we have employed since 1786, having nothing, except those which belonged to my great-grandfather Thomas Oliver, a younger brother of the above Richard.

Goodwin

[The Baptisms and Burials, where no other reference is given, are from Horley Parish Register.]

NOTES, ETC.

¹ Henry Goodwin was apparently the first Goodwin to settle in the parish of Horley. He was taxed in goods (Horley and Hornton) 8 and 9 Eliz. (Lay Subsidies, 162/331 city and county of Oxford.)

In 1567 Henry Goodwin and John Sargeant were co-defendants in a suit (Court of Requests, bundle 45, No. 64; complaint dated 4 February, 9 Eliz.), in which John Broughton claimed by inheritance copyhold land in the manor of Horley with Hornton. The claimant's title is denied; Goodwin in his answer describes himself as "a very olde and Impotent man."

The following is an extract from his will:—"It is my will that the table which is standing in the hall with the croe of irone and the two wedges shall remaine as hearelonbes to the house, excepting that, if the . . . heare of Henry Goodwyne shuld make sale of the land, then these three parcels before nominated to be beqneathed, the table unto Henry Godwyne, sonne unto John Godwyne, the croe unto William Tailer of Wroxstone, and the two wedges unto William Hall." The overseers are William Maiowe of Hornetonne, William Hall of Burtonne, William Tailer of Wroxstone, and Henry Gabell; the witnesses are Sir Roger Bendbowe, William Hall, and Thomas Pare, with others.

² The Exchequer Depositions by commission (Oxford, Mich., 6 Jac. I., No. 37, P. R. Bp. and Bee, 1548) contain the following evidence with regard to heriots in the manor of Horley and Hornton:—

"Henry Goodwyn of Horley in the county of Oxon, yeoman, aged 50 years or thereabout, sworn and examined . . . To the eighth Interr. this deponent saith that his grandmother dwellinge in Roxeton out of the mannor of Horley and Horneton and beinge an immediate Coppeboulder of the Lord of a Coppyhonlde in Horley leaving her son there Tenannte who was father to this deponent shee deceasing at Roxetone lefte her blacke cowe with a white face to be a herryot to the Lord which as he thynketh was accordinglye paid."

"Ἀποθανοντες ἐπι λαλοει.—Hebr. xi. 4.

"Here lye the bodies of M^r ROGER MATTHEW and ANNE his wife. She departed this life the 26 of Aprill 1655 (?) He being minister of this parish fiftie years rested from his labours and in the Lord the 6th of September
1657."

"Our bodies in obscurny (?) doe lye
Whare death and darke beare sway
Our soules ascend above the spangled skie
To live with Christ for Aye."

The will of Roger Matthew, in which he describes himself as "of Bloxham, co. Oxon, clerke," headed "Auspice Christo, May 21, 1655," some erasures made 10 July 1656, was proved (P.C.C., 472, Ruthin) 21 September 1657. He leaves to the poor of Bloxham 40s. in bread at his funeral; to his sister Anne Vale 20s.; to his cozen Thomas ffox 10s.; to Hannah Westly his niece "two acres of freehold land in the north parte of the said Bloxham, vizt, the one acre arable with the head unto Dippington Slade, the other sometymes George Bennetts, lying on the East, the other of Green Sword at Gallons Headge in Portway." After directions about fixtures in house and buildings he leaves to Deborah his daughter his mault mill, his lead, and the still in the kitchen, the greatest wainscott chest in the great chamber, the long oaken coffer, the bedstead in the little parlor, the painted voyder; and to his daughters Grace, Philip, and Elizabeth, and to Hannah Westley aforesaid, other chattels. The residue is to be divided amongst "my daughters with their beloved husbands." The executors are "M^r Richard Evans and John Goodwyn my trustie sonnes in lawe," and the overseer is Richard Hilton. Witnesses: Elizabeth Samon, Robert Barely his mark, Mary Warwick her mark. The testator makes the following memorandum: "My great brasse pott was given by my grandfather John Mathew to my father to pass to him and to the heirs of the house successively which therefore I cannot dispose."

⁴ The inscription on the grave of Matthew Goodwin in Buckworth Church ran as follows (Lansdowne MS. 921, fo. 12):—

⁶ In 1735 Ann Goodwin, relict of Matthew Goodwin (a former Rector of Buckworth), left an annuity of £3 yearly, clear of all taxes, out of her 9 a. 3 r. of freehold land in the common fields of Barham, and a close of pasture in Barham, called Bunhill Close, containing by estimation two acres, and eighteen cow commons in the common there, in trust, to be disposed of in the following manner: Ten shillings to be yearly given to the Vicar of Spaldwick to preach or procure some clergyman to preach a sermon upon St. Matthew's Day every year, if the same should not be on a Sunday (and if it should be, then on the day following) in the parish church of Spaldwick, upon the excellency and usefulness of the Common Prayer, and the admirable and wise constitution of the Church of England; and one shilling for the Clerk of the parish for his attendance there; and that two Bibles of the value of 4s. 6d. and eight Common Prayer books of the value of 2s. 6d. each, should every year, upon the same day, be given to ten poor children as follows: Twenty poor children should be nominated, who should be baptized and bred up in the Church of England, eight of which should be appointed by the Vicar of Spaldwick, four by the Minister of Stow and Little Catworth, four by the Minister of Easton, and four by the Minister of Barham. And the said twenty children should then cast lots for the said Bibles and Common Prayer books, and the ten on whom the said lots should not fall should be continued and put into the list for the succeeding year until they should have succeeded; and ten others should be added unto them in the succeeding year, to be nominated by the Ministers aforesaid, but the Minister of Spaldwick should name double the number of such children for Spaldwick, to any of the said parishes. And that ten shillings should be yearly laid out in ten wheaten loaves to be distributed on the same day amongst ten poor widows or other poor people who should frequent divine service in their respective parishes, and should not have been in any separate congregation for a year before any such distribution, that is to say, four of such poor persons to be inhabiting in the parish of Spaldwick, two in the parish of Stow and Little Catworth, two in the parish of Easton, and two in the parish of Barham; and the remaining ten shillings should upon the same day be expended on a dinner for six neighbouring clergymen, of which the Vicar of Spaldwick and the Rectors of Great and Little Catworth and Buckworth for the time being should be three, and the other three to be such clergymen as the said rectors should think fit. It was also provided that the Rectors of Great Catworth and Buckworth for the time being should be supervisors of the charity, and have the direction how and in what manner the said lots for the said Bibles and Common Prayer books should be drawn and the bread disposed of. (Hatfield, "Gazetteer and Directory of Huntingdonshire," pp. 596, 597.)

"Stephanus Goodwin, e comitatu Oxoniensi et villa Horley orinndus, patre ejus ignuo ibidem vivente, in schola Paulina a magistro Langley postremo institutus, admissus est commensalis A.D. 1655, sub tutela magistri Stratford."

He was elected Scholar 4 June 1656, vice Nicholas Stratford (afterwards Bishop of Chester), who was then elected to a Fellowship.

The account of Stephen Goodwin's first marriage is taken from Wood's "Life and Times" (vol. i., p. 214; cf. vol. ii., p. 482, and Index, vol. v.). While minister of Dorchester he may have lived elsewhere, as was the case with vicars of that parish in later years. He was instituted to the Vicarage of Horley with Hornton, on the presentation of the Crown, 4 January 1668-9. The entries made by himself of the births and baptism of his children shew that the ages of his three sons who matriculated at Oxford are all inaccurately given in "Alumni Oxon." A note, in a nineteenth century hand, to the entry of his baptism states that he built "the old vicarage" at Horley.

A Chancery Suit, in which Stephen Goodwin, clerk, John Goodwin, gent., and others were Plaintiffs, and Edward Wickham and Anthony Ebborne Defendants (Chancery Decrees and Orders, Series A 1696, fo. 445. Bond in £130 to continue the suit, Close Roll, 9 Wm. III., Part 11, No. 61), may be thus summarised: The Defendant Ebborne and his late father entered into several bonds for the payment of money to Plaintiffs, and Defendant Ebborne's father sold his estate to Wickham, leaving part of the purchase-money in Wickham's hands to pay his creditors, including the Plaintiffs. Wickham admits the debt; money to be paid into Court.

⁸ John Goodwin compounded for the first fruits of Pagglesham 8 November 1706, the bondsmen being Richard Tilesley of the parish of St. Sepulchre, London, clerk, and Thomas Mitchell of St. Martin-in-the-Fields, innholder.

⁹ John Lawrence (Laurence), Fellow of Clare Hall 1691—1701; Rector of Yelvertoft, Northants, 1700—1721; Rector of Bishop Wearmouth 1721—32; was the author of several theological and horticultural works. (See "Antiquities of Sunderland," printed for the Sunderland Antiquarian Society, vol. iv., pp. 36—57.)

¹⁰ By his will John Goodwin, clerk, leaves real estate in Clifton in the parish of Horley to John Andrews, gent., Mr. Armstead, clerk, and Mr. Burford as trustees for fifty years, and £5 yearly in charity to Horley, "the place of my nativity."

Bishop Duppa.

SOME UNKNOWN PARTICULARS OF HIS PRIVATE LIFE AND FAMILY HISTORY.

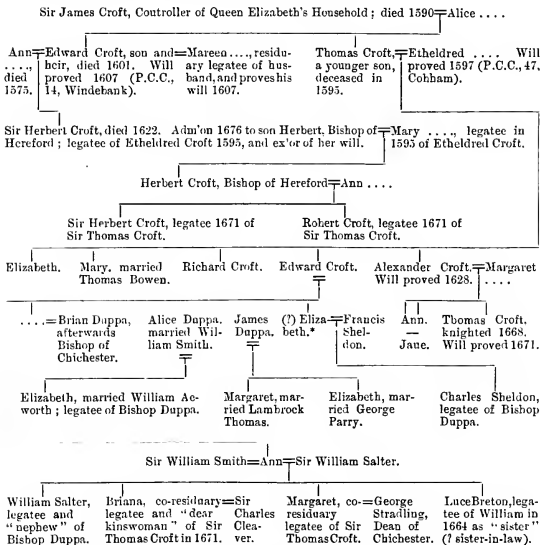

It is surprising how little is known of the family relations and of the descent of so distinguished a prelate as Brian Duppa, Bishop successively of Chichester, Salisbury, and Winchester. There is evidence that he had an elder brother James, supposed to have been a vice-admiral (Rev. C. J. Robinson's "Mansions of Herefordshire"). His father was without doubt Jeffrey Duppa, and perhaps the same Jeffrey who was King's Brewer. He married on 23 November 1626 Jane Killingtree, daughter of Nicholas Killingtree of Langham, Norfolk, gentleman. To these meagre facts it is the purpose of this paper to add a few others, which have been incidentally discovered in the course of researches made under other names.

The home of the Duppa family, from a time as early as the beginning of the fifteenth century, was evidently Herefordshire, and the branch of the family to which the Bishop belonged were for several generations copyholders in Pembridge. De Banco Rolls and other records reveal the names of members of a line seated as yeomen or traders in Plofeld and Kingston, one of whom is shewn to have migrated to London and to have been involved (1465) in litigation with heiresses of a family named Plofeld, in which also occur names of Pembrugge or Pembrige. As might be expected, Duppas are found, too, in Hereford City; and at a period approaching that with which we are chiefly concerned, a John Duppa leaves by his will, proved 1603, to "my eldest son . . . also my dye-house . . . by the brooksyde." He is evidently a well-to-do man, and he has a brother Humfrey Duppa, clerk, who appears to have been Rector of Bishopston, co. Hereford.

To return to the Pembridge branch, Manor Court Rolls shew that there were at Pembridge Burgus four members of the Duppa family—Jeffrey, Thomas, William, and John—who were probably brothers, and whose names recur constantly, as jurymen and otherwise, from October 20 Henry VIII. (1528). Their names are continually repeated in the family, and a Jeffrey, whom we find by the Pembridge Court Roll fifty years later was, we may fairly suppose, a descendant of one or another of the four brothers, and in all probability father of Bishop Duppa. The almshouses erected in Pembridge by a Jeffrey and his sons James and Brian are still standing as evidence of the family's old-time connection with the place, while the evidences wanted to link up the chain of the family's descent are provokingly and surprisingly few; the precise connection of the Bishop with some to whom we know he was related we are, therefore, here obliged to fill in partly on conjecture in the absence of actual proof.

In the will of Sir James Baskerville of Erdesleye, proved 10 February 1673 (P.C.C., 10, Martyn), among the many names of retainers to whom he leaves legacies is that of John Duppa. This John is also one of the witnesses to the will, and like the other retainers, including the testator's own brother, he is described as "servant." Sir James is the descendant of a long line of twenty knights, dating from the time of the Conquest, many of whom married heiresses, and he is one of the great landlords of his county, and probably of military rank. What the nature of the service was which Duppa rendered there is nothing to shew, but the will of one who was probably his nephew enables us to conjecture with some approach to certainty the place he should occupy on a family pedigree. John Duppa of Kington (not the same place as Kingston, though in the same county) has uncles John and David Duppa, also a father and mother, who are legatees, but not named, and a wife Sybill. His will is dated and proved in 1560, and Subsidy Rolls of 1 Eliz. (1558 or 1559) shew us that there were then a John Duppa at nephew Thomas Croft, Knt., he must have been the father of Ann, who married firstly Sir William Smith of Ankerwycke and secondly Sir William Salter of Richings Park, Iver, Bucks. As Dame Ann Salter's son William was nephew of Bishop Dappa, and so described by him (in his original will, not in the copy registered in P.C.C., 73, Laud, which is incorrect), it is almost certain, too, that another daughter of Edward Croft was a former wife of the Bishop before he married Jane Killingtree; for the only other possibility, viz., that he married some unknown sister of Sir William Salter, is very unlikely. It is equally certain that another daughter of Edward Croft married Francis Sheldon, Clerk of the Check in Woolwich Dockyard, for Francis in his will, proved in 1646, leaves a legacy to his "sister Lady Salter," and "sister" must here mean sister-in-law, as he had no sister of his own named Ann. Charles, a son of Francis Sheldon, is one of the legatees of Bishop Dappa, who unfortunately seldom mentions relationships, but who was, if our supposition is correct, his uncle. Thomas Croft, son of Alexander, became a Master in Chancery, and was knighted in 1668. He died in 1671, and his will (P.C.C., 58, Duke) seems to shew that he was without wife or children, brother or sister, his legatees being nearly all cousins. To make the foregoing clearer we now put it in form of pedigree, with some additions to be explained:—

* Perhaps Elizabeth was not née Croft, but was a second wife. She makes no mention of Charles in her will, though he was living at the time; and the Bishop, on the other hand, makes no mention of Sheldon's other children.

It will be observed in the foregoing pedigree that Edward, son and heir of Sir James Croft, is given a second wife, who does not appear in the biographical notices of the family. This is on the authority of his will (P.C.C., 14, Windebanck). Edward probably died in Stavenhagen, but his relict and residuary legatee and executrix Maren did not prove his will till 26 November 1607, though the date of his death was 29 July 1601. An attestation, dated 1664, at the Dutch Church in London (J. H. Hessels' Registers), in which the name of a John Croft appears, suggests that it may concern relatives of James' Dutch wife; and this John, who is a notary public, is perhaps the "servant and kinsman John Croft" to whom Sir Thomas Croft leaves a legacy. It will be noted, too, as curious that administration of the estate of Edward's son Sir Herbert Croft was not granted till fifty-four years after his death.

Genealogical Notes and Queries.

FAMILY OF CAGE.

TO THE EDITOR OF "MISCELLANEA GENEALOGICA ET HERALDICA."

At p. 304, Fourth Series, Vol. I., is the blazon of CAGE impaling a partly defaced coat, but it bears in chief a helmet, which it is suggested is an unrecorded addition to the arms, and is not to be found in "Papworth." This is entirely owing to the very easy mistake of reading cinquefoils instead of roses. The true blazon will be found in "Papworth," p. 494: "Sable, on a chevron argent three roses gules, seeded and barbed proper; in the dexter chief A close helmet of the second," and although the date given there, 1730, is late for the 1687, I think it highly probable this is what is intended. There are a great many Rose Cages mentioned in "Mis. Gen. et Her.," but they are all of an earlier date, and I have not been able to find the Cage—Rose marriage, but the three families of Cage, Rose, and Blackwell were all connected with Gloucestershire.

F. W.

THE ORIGIN OF THE SWINNERTON DYERS, BARONETS.

TO THE EDITOR OF "MISCELLANEA GENEALOGICA ET HERALDICA."

SIR,

At page 316 of Vol. I., Fourth Series, Mr. Mark W. Bullen insinuates that the King's Herald and Pursuivants of the College of Arms issued and sealed with their corporate seal a pedigree of the Dyer family, "faithfully extracted from the records of the College," shewing the connection (as set forth at page 321 of the same volume) between George Dyer of Heytesbury, co. Wilts, who married Sarah, daughter of . . . Rolf of Enford, co. Wilts, and the family of Dyer recorded in the Visitation of Somerset, Anno 1623.

This insinuation is absolutely without justification, for the pedigree recorded at the College of Arms in 1854, of which a certified copy was issued under the Common Seal of the College, commences with the above George Dyer, and makes no attempt to join him on to any other family, nor do the records of the College of Arms filiate, or attempt to filiate, the said George Dyer.

Your obedient Servant,

X. Y. Z.

 PEDIGREE OF MEDLEY.

TO THE EDITOR OF "MISCELLANEA GENEALOGICA ET HERALDICA."

SIR,

Lord Hawkesbury (whom all genealogists congratulate on his promotion) must be in error in the Pedigree of Medley he contributed to Second Series, Vol. IV., p. 353. I think his authority has tried to join together two different families without enough care. The dates work out about as follows:—

George Medley of Warwickshire, born 1498 and died 1562.
 Henry Medley of Warwickshire, [say born 1525 and died 1590].
 Clement Medley of Yorkshire, [say born 1545 and died 1615].
 John Medley, [say born 1570]; died 1580!!
 Robert Medley, [say born 1595]; died 1593!!
 John Medley, born 1589; died 1630.

The dates within brackets are approximate, the others are supplied by the pedigree. The result is absurd.

Reviews.

The Virginia Magazine of History and Biography. Vol. XIII., No. 3. January 1906. The Virginia Historical Society, Richmond, U.S.A.

THIS Part begins with an important paper on the Treaty between the Indians and Virginia in 1756, which was signed by twelve Indian chiefs. The Early Westward Movement is well reported, as well as Virginia Gleanings in England, giving the wills of persons who had property there and had died in England, and vice versa. An illustration gives us Heungar's Church, one of the oldest church edifices in the county of Northampton, built in 1690, and became untenable in 1850; it was, however, repaired, and now forms an interesting landmark which has stood like a beacon for many generations. The papers on genealogy comprise the family of Brent of Charing, Kent, with a representation of Charing Church in Kent. The Brent family is well known in England, four members having been connected with the Kent Archæological Society for many years. The Part has a full report of the Proceeding of the Western Historical Society for the year, as well as a list of Members.

Fenland Notes and Queries. No. 68. January 1906. Edited by Rev. W. M. SWEETING, M.A. Peterborough: George C. Caster, Market Place.

THIS Magazine keeps up its character for original matter, and a short account is given of Soham Church, dated 1140, and is illustrated by a view of the Chancel, shewing the beautiful east window, and also a plate giving the five shields on screen of North Chapel. The Drainage of the Great Level is still narrated, and there is a good account of Sedan Chairs in Peterborough. The Cambridgeshire and Lincolnshire Fens are also treated of, proving the existence of a huge forest, with firs and oaks of a larger size than those in England now.

The New York Genealogical and Biographical Record. Vol. XXXVII., No. 1, for January 1906. New York: 226 West 58th Street.

IN this well-conducted Magazine the Part commences with the life of Charles Fenning Clarke. He was the leading Director of Bradstreets Company. There is an excellent steel portrait of him, as also a photogravure of the Hon. Enos Thompson Throop, illustrating his family connections from 1723. Tombstone Inscriptions are given from the cemetery of the old Presbyterian Church, and Records of the Reformed Dutch Church of Port Richmond are next given, and a family account of Henry Rowley and his descendants. Altogether a good Part.

The Journal of the Ex Libris Society. Parts 11 and 12, 1905, and Part 1, 1906. London: A. and C. Black, Soho Square.

THE Part for November has for a frontispiece the Plate of Frederick Robert Lawson, most effectively executed by a very promising artist, Miss Mary C. Lawson of Clent Vicarage, near Stourbridge. A pleasing coat for Miss Winifred Pawling, by Miss Sandheim, is also given, and with some Chippendale bookplates make the Part very worthy of notice.

Part 12 has a very modest plate belonging to a lady, Ethel Rimington Wilson, by Geo. W. Eve, R.E., and is well illustrated by eight plates belonging to Oxford University; there are also eight Chippendale bookplates given, as well as the Plates for identification; this is a goodly Number.

Part 1 of Vol. XVI. has a fine bookplate of Wallace of Busbie, by the heraldic artist of the Lyon Court, and also that of "John George, Third Earl of Durham, MCMV." There is also a portrait of Thackeray, presented to him by the Proprietors of "Punch" in 1904; besides the above are nine Chippendale bookplates.

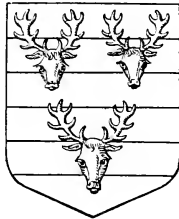

The Spurgeon Family: Being an Account of the descent and Family of Charles Haddon Spurgeon, with Notes on the Family in general, particularly the Essex Branch. From 1465 to 1905.
By MILLER HIGGS. London: Elliot Stock, 62 Paternoster Row. 1906.

THIS Work is a handy small quarto, illustrated by several portraits of the family and lines of descent, and a marriage certificate with signature of Nelson as witness when a lad of 10 years old, and a carefully worked-out pedigree of the family from 1570 to the births of Spurgeon's grand-children up to 1893.

We are disappointed in the Author not giving any account of his popularity, from the time he ascended the pulpit to the day of his death. The notoriety he achieved at the first marked him out as an original preacher, and from his familiar metaphors, and once when he requested the young ladies not to send him so many pairs of worked slippers, all gave a freedom to his addresses. He never attempted oratory; what he wanted was to drive home all he said into the minds of his hearers, so as to make all better men and women. The crowds attending his week-day services and his Sunday sermons attest to his popularity, which none equalled him in. The little book is worthy of a good sale among the hundreds attending his ministrations, particularly as its price of 6s. brings it within the reach of everyone.

There is in the church of Neen Solers (a parish on the borders of Worcestershire, but in Shropshire) a monument to the Humphrey Coningsby who is the subject of this article (the name Humphrey recurs often in the Pedigree). He was the last male of the elder line of this family. The monument is a fine one; the figure (full-length, reclining) seems to have been broken and restored. The history of this "last of his line" is told in full in the inscription (given here later), which is above the figure; the verses are on panels. We have transcribed the whole, preserving throughout the singular spelling, and even the replacing by "I" of the letter "J."

Humphrey Coningsby was possessor of an estate (the manor of Neen Solers) with its advowson, which had been the home of his line since its acquisition by the marriage of John Coningsby, son of Baron Coningsby (by the Baron's wife, "filia de Bartholomew de Badelani dominus de Leeds, † Com. Kanti"), with "Margaret, daughter and heir of Roger de Solers," but the home of his ancestors detained, for only short intervals of time, his wandering feet. He travelled far and wide, and to parts of Europe and Asia, then difficult of access, beginning his journeyings in 1574, when twenty-seven years old, ending them, and his life, in 1610, at 43 years of age (hardly beyond its prime), and the mystery of his end has never been, and can never now be solved, for (as appears from the wording of the inscription) from the day he went on board the "vessel at London," 10th October 1610, he was entirely lost sight of.

Though not apparently a soldier by profession, but rather "a scholar" and man of letters, he, like the Crusader of earlier ages, took arms "against the Turks in defence of the Christian Faith." This he did, says the inscription, "under Rodolphe the Second, Emperor of the Romanes," viz., Rudolph II., Emperor of Germany, 1576—1603, who was crowned King of Hungary in 1572 during the lifetime of his father the Emperor Maximilian II., and elected King of Bohemia 1575.

At this period (that during which Europe was divided within itself by the struggle between the Protestant and Roman Catholic Faiths), the Turks made continual aggressive incursions on those territories of Christian Europe which bordered on their own. These bordering Provinces (siding alternately for or against the Turks) were also ravaged by independent hordes whose punishment gave Turkey a pretext for invasion, and it was under this pretext that the Peace which had been concluded by Rudolph's father with the Sultan Amurath was broken by the Sultan. The "Fierce and warlike" son of Amurath is the "Mahomet" of the epitaph, and he greatly harassed Rudolph's Hungarian dominions; the town at whose siege Humphrey Coningsby was present ("Strigonium," now Strigon) is within a curve of the Danube, nearly in the centre of Hungary. The great favour shewn to Humphrey at the Court of Constantinople is surprising, as he had previously been in arms against the Sultan, but the Epitaph is explicit in detailing the various proofs of honourable welcome given him.

His projected visit to Venice could never have been accomplished. His estates went finally to his sister Katherine Coningsby, wife of "Edward Freeman of Emlod, co. Worcester," but the administration of them and the erection of his monument by his half-sister, Joyce Jeffreys, did not take place till 1624, fourteen years after his disappearance. This Joyce was daughter of Anne Coningsby, Humphrey's mother, by her second marriage with Henry Jeffreys, Anne herself being daughter of Thomas Barneby of the "Hull,"† parish of Bockleton, Worcestershire, descended from Edward Barneby of Ludlow, "Treasurer to King Edward IV., of the battel of Tewkesbury," who got the "Hull" through his wife, "Isabella, daughter of Thomas Whargreave de la Hull," "Retainer to Richard, Duke of York, for the Earldom of March." The Coningsby family in all its branches and during all the periods of its existence has so much that is of interest interwoven with its history that we hope to be permitted to give later other extracts from its records, which owing to limited space cannot be included in this article.

Bishop Duppa.

SOME UNKNOWN PARTICULARS OF HIS PRIVATE LIFE AND FAMILY HISTORY.*

Referring again to Brian Duppa's will, if there were any doubt of William Salter being the nephew, registered as William Salterne, it would be set at rest by reference to the will of the latter, proved 1664 (P.C.C., 130, Bruce), in which he deals with an interest in the Manor of Potterne, left to him by the Bishop. In fact, the whole Duppa-Croft relationship hangs together by wills and other evidence, so as to admit of no reasonable doubt about it. Etheldred Croft has nephew Herbert with his wife Mary, sons Edward and Alexander. Alexander, who dies 1628, has a son Thomas, whose residuary legatees are his "dear kinswomen" (first-cousins once removed) Lady Cleaver and Margaret Stradling. Mrs. (Margaret) Thomas, wife of Dr. (Lambrook) Thomas of Chichester, is another legatee of this son, afterwards Sir Thomas Croft; and from Jane Duppa's will we know, too, that she was a niece of her late husband the Bishop. And Jane's will again, coupled with that of Lambrook Thomas, proves that Elizabeth Parry, wife of George Parry, was sister to Margaret Thomas. Both these nieces of the Bishop we have attributed conjecturally to his brother James Duppa. Lambrook Thomas' relict Margaret proves her husband's will on 2 January 1672-3, and a subsequent administration, granted on 30 June 1675, shews that she had then married again to Thomas Briggs, D.D. The fact that Dr. (William) Thomas, Dean (afterwards Bishop) of Worcester, is another legatee of Sir Thomas Croft suggests that he may have been related to Dr. Lambrook Thomas, and the chief link of connection with the latter, for Croft leaves nothing to Brian Duppa's other niece Elizabeth Parry, though her sister Margaret Thomas is his legatee. Elizabeth's husband is probably the same George Parry, son of James of Michael Church, Hereford, who appears in Foster's "Alumni Oxon.," and who became Canon of Llandaff 1663. Other legatees of Sir Thomas Croft are his first-cousin Dame Ann Salter, whose relationship he does not state, though he describes her daughters as his dear kinswomen, and Herbert Croft, Esq., of Croft Castle, son of the Bishop of Hereford, and who was the next year, 1671, made a Baronet, and his brother Robert Croft of Yarpoole. These, his second-cousins once removed, end the list of legatees of Sir Thomas Croft, to whom it is necessary to make allusion. Of James Duppa, brother of the Bishop, and who figures on our pedigree, but little is known. Most likely he was the same Captain James Duppa who was executor in 1632 to the will of Sir William Smith of Ankerwyke, Ann Croft's first husband; but we have found nothing to identify him with the naval service, and it is to be noted that the Bishop's will left a fund for needy officers of the Army and clergymen's widows, but makes no mention of the Navy. In a curious Chancery Suit in 1641 (Chancery Bills and Answers, Charles I., D. 21/37) a James Duppa of the precincts of the Tower of London, gent., and Thomasin Ward of Ilford, Essex, widow, are complainants in an action against John Crane, Esq., Victualler to His Majesty's Navy, and Stephen Alcocke, gent. Complainants are possessed of a brewhouse called the "Ram's Head," in Tower Dock, and in 1638 their servants, whose names orator "remembers not," have supplied beer for use of the Navy. The beer is said to stink, at which perhaps we need not be surprised, as the prices work out at from 1d. to 2d. per gallon. Defendants "do not know" the orator James Duppa in the matter, and the explanation of it all may be that James, having inherited the brewing business from his father Jeffrey Duppa, has left it to the incompetent management of servants. Vessels to which the beer was delivered were H.M.'s ships "called the 'Adventure,'" 13½ tons, H.M.'s pinnace called the "Greyhound," H.M.'s "shippe called the happy entrance," etc. There are counterclaims for casks, and one Thomas Clee, who appears to have been a man of straw, is mixed up in the case. James Duppa added something to the Charity of the Pembridge Almshouses, and died some time before his brother, but the precise date of his death is unknown. One of the executors to the will of Bishop Duppa was his "cousin" Dr. Chaworth, who, as Sir Richard Chaworth, figures again in the same capacity in the will of his widow Jane Duppa. Sir Richard was second son of the first Viscount Chaworth, and a descendant of the old feudal lords Cadurcis, but we have searched in vain to find evidence what this interesting relationship was. Of Dame Briana Cleaver, niece of the Bishop, and one of the residuary legatees of Sir Thomas Croft, we have found no later records; but her sister Margaret, who married George Stradling, D.D., Dean of Chichester, and who died in 1681, is alluded to in the will of her husband, proved 1688 (P.C.C., 84, Exton), as also is their mother Lady Salter: "Alse I doe give unto my said sonne Gilbert one dyamond ring, which is in his sister's custody, and was intended to him by his mother, it being the same which Bishopp Duppa gave to his graudmother the Lady Salter." "And to my sonne George I doe give a purse with two old peices of gold and a lesser peece, which was also intended by his mother to bee given to him." To these old pieces of gold we ask the reader's special attention, for there is reason to think they relate to an incident—one of the most interesting, historically and otherwise, connected with the Bishop's career. The name of Alice Duppa, sister of the Bishop, who, as will be seen by reference to the pedigree, married William Smith, Sergeant-at-Law, brings us to the narration of this incident. Of the issue of William and Alice Smith we need only mention, for the purpose of our narrative, a daughter Elizabeth, who married firstly William Acworth, Storekeeper at Woolwich Dockyard.

Brian Duppa was, as is well known, Tutor to Charles II. when young, and was much with his father Charles I., till the time of his death. There are, too, in his correspondence dark allusions which hint complicity in Royalist plots. But no suggestion has ever been made of what we shall here attempt to shew, viz., that in all probability he took a part, with the aid of his relatives and connections, in assisting Charles II. at Worcester; that he contributed to his escape from England after the battle; and indeed that he would have been a chief instrument in it had events turned out according to the plan Charles intended on the evening of 3 September 1651. There is now in the possession of A. J. Butler, Esq., eldest son of the late Dean of Lincoln by his wife Emma, daughter of the late G. H. Barnett, a gold Jacobus, wrapped in a piece of paper, inscribed: "One of a number concealed in the dress of a Mrs. Ackworth while riding through O: Cromwell's Army." The lady whose name is here mis-spelt (there is not, and there never was, any family named Ackworth) was Elizabeth née Smith, the niece of Bishop Duppa, and from her age and other circumstances it is practically certain the occasion of her ride can only have been at the battle of Worcester. The tradition has come down in the Acworth family, strong, though incomplete as to details, that its forbears took a very full share of risk in favouring the Stuart cause during the time of the Commonwealth; but it has been reserved for recent research to unearth evidences of the truth of the tradition.

Were this article written for a popular magazine it would be easy to fill in, partly from imagination, a scene in which Elizabeth would be entrusted with her load of broad gold pieces, with secret instructions to her uncle and the Royalist faction in London as to Charles's plans, and with injunctions to see that means for his escape by vessel were provided either from London or from Woolwich, where her husband would be in a position to give assistance. We could picture the lady issuing from Worcester, well mounted, at close of day, finding her way across country between the divided bodies of the enemy's forces, her adventures by the way, and the other incidents to the fulfilling of her mission. But our business is neither to relate mere hearsay nor to shew what might have been if Charles's original plan of escaping to London had been carried out; we have only to state what actual evidence there is for believing that Bishop Duppa was concerned, with others, in a scheme for getting Charles safely out of England.

How and when the gold pieces were conveyed to Charles, under the circumstances of his escape as they actually occurred, can only be a matter of surmise, but we know that he did receive replenishments of his purse en route. In the account he dictated to Pepys many years afterwards of his forty-one days' wandering his memory is sometimes at fault, but it may well be that the John Peters who married Wichey Lane, sister of Colonel John Lane, was the agent in their transmission, for Charles tells us incidentally that this John Peters accompanied him on part of his journey, being then on his way into Buckinghamshire, and Lady Salter, who was of Iver, Bucks, and herself a known Royalist, had a nephew John Peters (see will proved 1647 of Sir Edward Salter, P.C.C., 41, Fines). But however they were transmitted, and whether they had been in the first instance provided by the Bishop or were Charles's own, not all the coins were handed to him. One has been preserved in private hands to the present day, with the inscription we have quoted; the three pieces bequeathed by Dean Stradling are others, as we believe; and if only they could be traced, it is likely more would be found in the hands of descendants of Margaret Thomas and Elizabeth Parry.

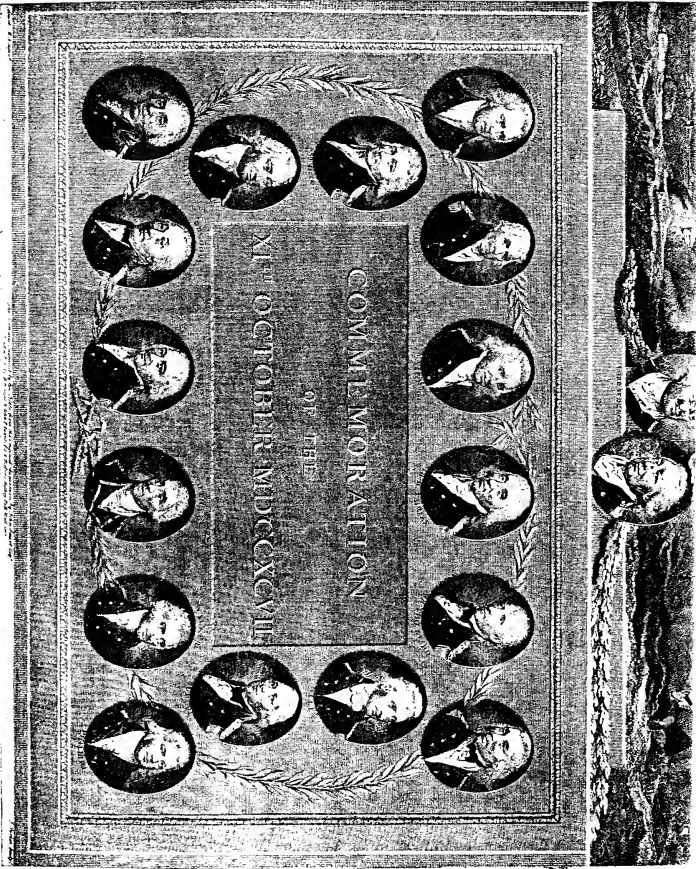

It may be asked why was Mrs. Acworth in Worcester at such a time. The answer would be that it may have been by accident, for she and her uncle had many relatives and connections in Worcestershire and Herefordshire, or it may have been by design. In either case her presence would be invaluable to Charles in the carrying out of the plan we know he had formed of escaping to London, for as his emissary bearing intelligence as well as supplies she might pass where a man could not.

The date of Elizabeth Smith's birth can be fixed at about 1629. For further information concerning her and her first husband (she was three times married) we refer our readers to Mr. Allan Fca's recent work "Memoirs of the Martyr King," to Wheatly's complete edition of Pepys' "Diary," and to recent numbers of the "Mis. Gen. et Her." By her will, as widow of Capel Hanbury, proved 1709 in P.C.C., 1, Lane, Elizabeth makes her "grandson-in-law" Jacob Acworth (afterwards Sir Jacob) her executor. Her own children have apparently died, and of her Smith relatives the only mention is Brian Smith, "if he ever return to England." To Sir Jacob therefore we may conclude the iacobus of interesting memories descended. From him it would go to his daughter Avice, Lady Wheate, wife of Sir George Wheate, third Baronet, from whom again it would pass to her daughter Avice, who married Benjamin Barnett, Esq., great-grandfather of the present learned owner of the coin. When and by whom its inscription was written is uncertain. Would that the writer, whoever he was, had given us more of its story; but as to incidents during the interregnum like those it may have seen family history is eloquent by its silence and by the utter absence of all written incriminating evidence, and this one was only put on record when most of the facts had been forgotten.

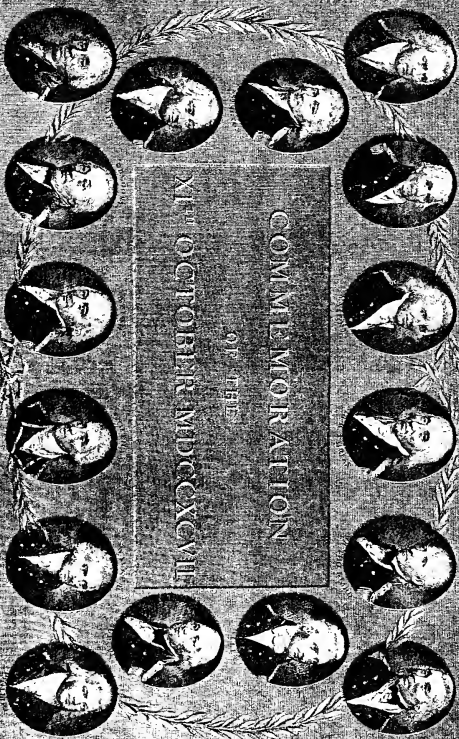

By his will, which at its commencement makes a refreshing departure from the form customary in those days, in order to rejoice at the peaceable return of His Majesty, Bishop Duppa makes legacies to many relatives, but nearly always without mentioning relationship. The connection with some of these legatees will, however, be made clear, and as we believe for the first time by the foregoing. He left no issue of his own to continue the family, and it is even doubtful whether his name still survives as a family name.

ADMIRAL SIR WILLIAM ESSINGTON, K.C.B.

COMMEMORATION OF THE 11th OCTOBER 1807

The Family of Essington.*

In the "Naval Records," 1801, Captain W. Essington was appointed to the "Goliath" on 6th June (Nelson's old ship), and he was amongst those presented at the Levee on October 30th, when Admiral Nelson and Admiral Edward Hughes were present. The following is the account of the Levee :—

LEVEE AND PRESENTATIONS TO HIS MAJESTY.

"On October 30th, 1801, Admiral Sir Alan Gordon was presented, and had the honour to kiss their Majesties' hands at the Levee, on being created an Irish Peer.

"On his arrival in England the gallant Admiral Lord Nelson, who appeared in his full naval uniform, decorated with the diamond Aigrette which he wore in his hat, presented to him for his services by the Court of Naples with the medallion of the King and Queen of that Court, and the different Orders with which he was invested with as Knight of Jerusalem, the riband of the Order of the Bath, and the elegant sword presented to him by the City of London.

"Also Captain W. Essington, by Admiral Mackenzie and Captain Hervey.

"And Captain Wallis, late of the 'Brunswick,' on his arrival from Jamaica, by the Right Hon. Thomas Grenville."

In 1804, from an order from the Admiralty dated April 23, in "Gazette" promitious it is announced, "William Essington, esq., to be Rear-Admiral of the Blue," and on April 28, 1808, "Rear-Admiral of the White, from Jonathan Faulkner, esq., to William Essington, esq., to be Rear-Admiral of the Red." And on July 31, 1810, "William Essington to be Vice-Admiral of the Blue," and August 1, 1811, "Vice-Admirals of the Blue and W. Essington, esq., to be Vice-Admiral of the White."

In the "London Gazette," January 4th, 1815, is the following :—

NOMINATIONS BY THE PRINCE REGENT.

WHITEHALL, January 2nd, 1815.

Whereas His Royal Highness the Prince Regent, acting in the name and on the behalf of His Majesty, Sovereign of the Most Honourable Military Order of the Bath, is desirous of commemorating the auspicious termination of the long and arduous contests in which the Empire has been engaged, and of marking in an especial manner his gracious sense of the valour, perseverance and devotion manifested by the Officers of His Majesty's forces by sea and land; And whereas His Royal Highness has thought it fit, by virtue of the Royal Prerogative, and of the powers reserved to the Sovereign in the Statutes of the said most honourable military Order of the Bath, to advance the splendour and extend the limits of the said Order, to the end that those Officers who have had the opportunity of signaling themselves by eminent services during the late war may share in the honours of the said Order, and that their names may be delivered down to remote posterity accompanied by the marks of distinction which they have so nobly earned.

His Royal Highness the Prince Regent, therefore, acting in the name and on behalf of His Majesty, has been graciously pleased to appoint and nominate the undermentioned Officers of His Majesty's Naval and Military Forces to be Knights Commanders of the Most Honourable Military Order of the Bath, viz. :—

Vice-Admiral WILLIAM ESSINGTON.

* Continued from p. 5.

WILL OF ADMIRAL SIR WILLIAM ESSINGTON, 1813.

This is the last Will and Testament of me William Essington of Nottingham Place in the county of Middlesex, Vice-Admiral of the White Squadron in His Majesty's Navy, under the twenty sixth day of June in the year of our Lord 1813. In the first place my will and request is that I may be buried as privately as possible & near to the place where I shall happen to die, and I give and bequeath all my household goods & household furniture except my plate, wine and other liquors whatsoever, and also all my carriages and horses with their harness and trappings, & all my ready monies & debts due and owing to me at the time of my decease, and all my wearing apparel, unto my dear wife Mary Essington to and for her own absolute use and benefit together with her wearing apparel, watches, jewels, trinkets and all her paraphernalia. Also I give to John Aylward my Servant the sum of three hundred pounds sterling to be paid to him within twelve calendar months after my decease, and also mourning rings to such of my friends as my said wife shall think proper, & also a small gratuity to such of my servants living with me at my decease as my said wife shall also think proper. Also I give & bequeath to my Trustees & Ex'ors The Rev^d James Bolant Bashon, Rector of Salwarp in the county of Worcester, & Richard Smith of Harborne in the county of Warwick, Esquire, the sum of one hundred pounds sterling each as a token of my regard for them. Also I give, devise, and bequeath all my messuages, lands, tenements & hereditaments situate in the county of Lincoln called Sceptre, and also my message or tenement in Nottingham Place in the county of Middlesex, and also all and singular my Government stocks and funds & my London Dock Stock, my Birmingham and Worcester Canal Navigation shares, & also all my plate & all other my real and personal estate and effects whatsoever not hereinbefore given before by me (but subject nevertheless to the payment out of my personal estate of my debts, funeral & testamentary expenses & legacies) unto and to the use of the said James Bolant Bashon & Richard Smith, their heirs, ex'ors, adm'ors and assigns, according to the nature and quality of the same premises respectively, and for all such estate, terms and interest as I may have therein respectively at the time of my decease, upon the trusts and for the intents and purposes hereinafter mentioned (that is to say) upon trust to permit and suffer my said wife and her assigns to have, receive and take the rents, issues and profits, use and enjoyment thereof and of every part thereof respectively for and during the term of her life to and for her and their own absolute use and benefit, and from and immediately after the decease of my said wife Mary Essington my will is and I do hereby give and bequeath unto my cousin Lieutenant William Rand Hughes* the sum of two thousand pounds sterling in case he shall be living at that time, and unto Elizabeth Jane Hughes the sum of five hundred pounds sterling in case she shall be living at that time, and the like sum of five hundred pounds sterling unto Mary Ann Hughes in case she shall be living at that time, and my will further is and I do hereby direct that they my said trustees do and shall stand and be possessed of the sum of six thousand pounds sterling upon trust to pay and make over the same from and immediately after the decease of my said wife unto such person or persons & in such manner and form as she my said wife Mary Essington shall by any deed or instrument in writing or by her last will and testament in writing or any codicil thereto give or bequeath the same, & in default of any such gift or bequest by her my said wife, then as to the whole of the said sum of six thousand pounds or so much thereof whereof no such gift or bequest shall be made by her my said wife my will is that the same shall sink into and form part of the residue of my estate and effects and subject to the payment of such legacies, estate and effects, and subject to the payment of such legacies after the decease of my said wife as aforesaid. My will further is and I do hereby direct that they the said James Bolant Bashon and Richard Smith and the survivor of them his heirs, ex'ors, adm'ors and assigns, do and shall stand and be or refuse for the space of twelve calendar months to take upon him and use the surname of Essington only and bear my family arms then and from thenceforth the trusts hereinbefore declared by me in favor of the said William Webb Ward and his children in my said real & personal estates shall from thenceforth go, remain and be to the use of my said cousin William Rand Hughes and his issue in such and the like manner in all respects as he and they would have been entitled thereto under the trusts of this my Will in case he the said William Webb Ward was then actually dead without any child or children, subject nevertheless to the payment thereof of the sum of two thousand pounds sterling only to the said William Webb Ward which I do hereby give and bequeath to him accordingly. Provided also and my will further is that my said cousin William Rand Hughes in case he shall come into possession of my said real and personal estates or be entitled to the rents, profits and enjoyment thereof under and by virtue of this my Will, shall also take upon him and use the surname of Essington only, and bear my family arms and procure an Act of Parliament or His Majesty's Sign Manual for that purpose, and that if he the said William Rand Hughes shall after he shall come into possession and be entitled as aforesaid neglect or refuse for the space of twelve calendar months to take upon him and use the surname of Essington only and bear my family arms Then and from thenceforth the trusts hereinbefore declared by me in favour of the said William Rand Hughes and his children in my said real and personal estates shall cease & be void & my^d real & personal estates shall from thenceforth go, remain and be to the use of the said William Lardner, his heirs, ex'ors, adm'ors and assigns.

And lastly I hereby revoke all former wills by me at any time heretofore made and declare this to be my only true last will and testament. In witness whereof I have to this my last will and testament contained in five sheets of paper set my hand to the first four sheets thereof and my hand and seal to this last sheet thereof the day and year first hereinbefore written.

W^x ESSINGTON. [L.S.]

Signed, sealed, published and declared by the said William Essington the testator as and for his last will and testament in the presence of us, who at his request in his presence and in the presence of each other have subscribed our names as witnesses thereto: J. Bashon, a Vice-Admiral; R^d Webb Jupp, Carpenters' Hall, Solr; R. S. Jupp, Clerk to Mr Jupp.

Proved 5 August 1816. (P.C.C., 431, Wynne.)

The Plate presented with this Part is one of four which were got up by the same engravers early in the last century, celebrating the victories of the "Nile," "Copenhagen," "Camperdown," and "Trafalgar." The Portraits were engraved by George Noble, after John Smart.

The Portraits of Admiral Sir WILLIAM ESSINGTON and Lieutenant WILLIAM RAND HUGHES (the latter will be given in the September Part) are both from miniatures by Cosway, and are delicately tinted. They are in the possession of the Writer.

Bookplate of Laura Menelope Lawson.

TO THE EDITOR OF "MISCELLANEA GENEALOGICA ET HERALDICA."

DEAR SIR,

By kind permission I am able to send for publication in the "Mis. Gen. et Her." another of Miss Mary C. Lawson's most beautiful bookplates. You will remember that in August last [Fourth Series, Vol. I., p. 257] I ventured to promise brilliant improvement and a great future. I have now asked for the loan of this copper to shew that I was, although by accident, a true prophet!

In all this lady's plates we find endless variety and original genius: and very difficult that is sometimes when a new applicant, fascinated by an earlier plate, begs for something like a repetition.

Here we now see the true "graver's hand," great confidence and strength, combined with exquisite softness and delicacy of feeling and execution. Others must judge for themselves, after comparing these two plates. I myself feel that the combination of such artistic qualities, and in so very unusual a degree, must end in the most brilliant career.

This Plate, again, is full of suggestion, the owner is a lady suffused with music, and its powers to soothe, and the short passage from Beethoven refers to an episode in that musical development.

I am sure my fellow readers will be more than satisfied with the treat you are so kindly giving to us all.

I am, dear Sir,

Yours faithfully,

GEO. GRAZEBROOK, F.S.A.

FAIRFAX.*

The following entries appear, in a contemporaneous handwriting, in a "Breeches" Bible, in the possession of a friend. No localities are specified. (See "Herald and Genealogist," vol. vi., p. 623 et seq.) :—

Sarah Fairfax was borne the 11th day of March in 1700.

Joseph Fairfax was borne the 28th day of February in the year 1705-6.

William Fairfax was borne the 20th day of June 1709, and departed this Life September the 23rd, 1758.

William George Fairfax, born March 8th, 1738; married to Margaret Charters the 3rd of April 1772. She was borne April 6th, 1748.

Samuel Fairfax, son of the above, Borne the first of June 1776.

Margaret Fairfax, borne 12 Nov^r 1786.

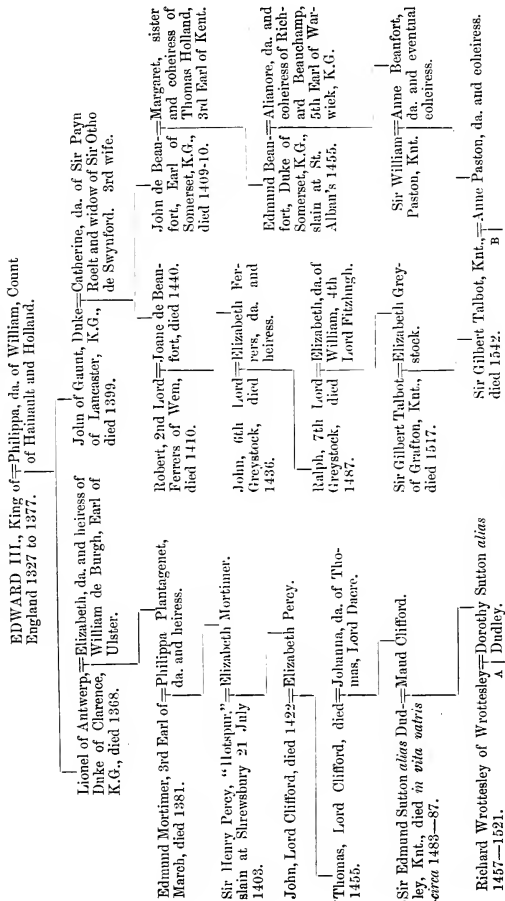

Henry Fairfax, borne March the . . .

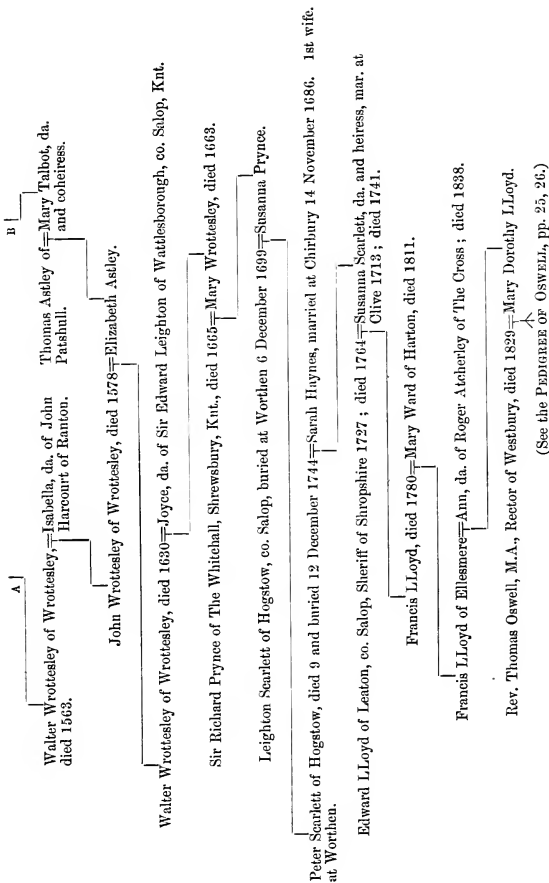

William Fairfax, son of the above Joseph Fairfax, † died September the 23rd at 5 o'clock in the Evening in the year of our Lord 1758, aged 50 years.

* Communicated by C. M. TENISON, Esq., M.R.I.A., Hobart, Tasmania.

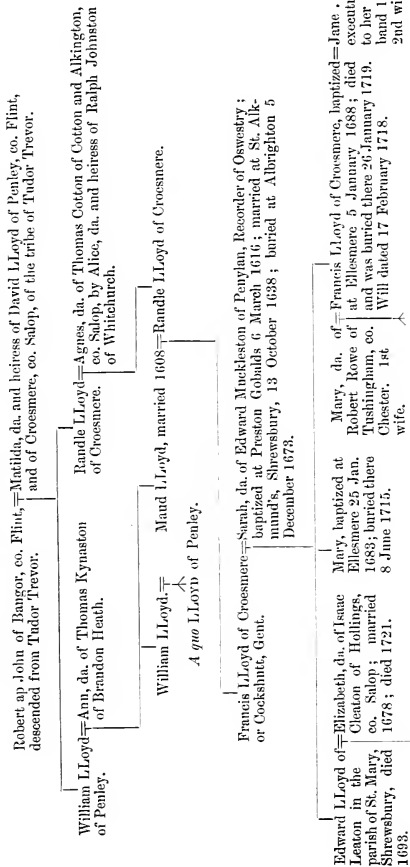

† The entry relating to "the above Joseph Fairfax" is wanting. This William is evidently the William No. 3 in the entries, and brother of Joseph, No. 2.

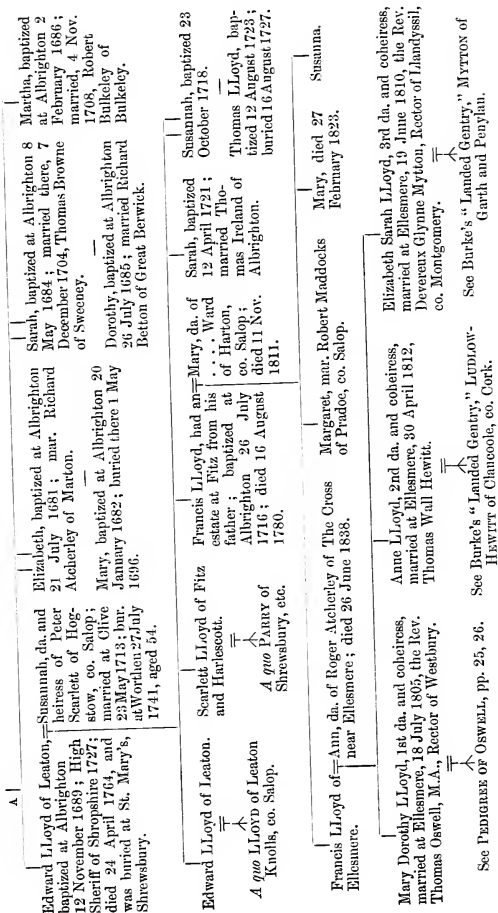

Royal Descent of Oswell.*

Pedigree of Lloyd of Leaton, co. Salop.

NOTES TO THE FOREGOING PEDIGREE OF OSWELL.

The Pedigree of Oswell has been compiled partly from one given in the late George Morris's MSS., vol. vi., fo. 237 (preserved at Walford Hall), and partly from the Shrewsbury Burgess Rolls, and from Monumental Inscriptions and Parish Registers.

Amongst the admissions to Shrewsbury School occur the names of Richard Woswell in 1562 and Thomas Oswald in 1735. The will of John Oswell was proved at Lichfield in 1606. (Act Book, fo. 199.)

The Pedigree of LLOYD is mainly extracted from one drawn up by the late Rev. William Allport Leighton of Linciefelde, Shrewsbury, with additions from Registers and other sources. There is a very full pedigree of this family in the late Joseph Morris's MSS. (penes E. C. Peele, Esq.), fo. 2735, etc., which carries the descent back to Tudor Trevor.

Randle LLOYD married Agnes, daughter of Thomas Cotton of Cotton and Alkington, co. Salop, by Alice his wife, daughter and heiress of Ralph Johnstone of Whitchurch. Thomas Cotton was sixth in direct lineal descent from Sir Hugh Cotton, Knt., of Cotton, co. Salop, who was living temp. Henry II. From Richard Cotton, fourth son of Hugh, who was living temp. Edward III., the Viscounts Combermere claim to be descended. For pedigrees of this family see the "Visitations of Shropshire, 1619 and 1663," and Burke's "Landed Gentry" (sub Cotton of Etwall).

Francis LLOYD married in 1638 Sarah, daughter of Edward Muckleston of Penylan by Mary his wife, daughter and heiress of Thomas Corbett of Merrington, gent. This Edward Muckleston was eighth in direct lineal descent from Hoeskyn alias Hawkin or Harry de Mucceleston, who was living early in the fourteenth century. The pedigree of Muckleston may be found in George Morris's MSS., vi., 331—346, and in Burke's "Commoners," ii., 168.

Mary, daughter of the Rev. Stephen Prytherch, who married in 1780 William Oswell, was descended from the family of Prytherch (or Protheroe) of Egenmond, co. Carmarthen, a scion of the family of Protheroe (or ap Rhydderch) of Dolwilym in the same county, sprung from Cadivor Vawr, lord of Blaen Cuch in Dyved, who died 1089.

The Royal Descent is the work of the Rev. W. G. D. Fletcher, F.S.A., who has also prepared the whole of the pedigrees, etc., and arranged them for the press.

SWINNERTON DYER.

[“Mis. Gen. et Her.,” Fourth Series, Vol. I., pp. 316—321.]

William Tipper of Seend, ex'or of John Gerle, 1633, in his long will dated 1641, and proved P.C.C. 6 Aug. 1651, leaves £20 to William Blake of Easton Town, Southampton, gent., “who married the daughter-in-law of farmer Gearle, late of Enford.” So there seems to have been a double connexion. What was this daughter-in-law's name?

The Blakes of Easton Town descend from those of Calne, Wilts.

* These Inscriptions, with those in the foregoing numbers, have been communicated by OTHO ALEXANDER, Esq., British Vice-Consul, to ARTHUR F. G. LEVESON GOWER, Esq., F.S.A.—continued from p. 16.

† There are probably some errors and inaccuracies in these inscriptions, owing to the dilapidated condition of the stones and to the difficulty in verifying all the inscriptions.—A. F. G. L. G.

Pitman.

I shall be obliged if any of your readers can help me to locate the origin of the above surname and its allied forms in England.

There is evidently no connection with the modern name for a miner, and Lower, in his "Patronymica Britannica," derives the name from residence in the vicinity of a pit or hollow. Anglo-Saxon, pyt; Latin, puteus, a well.

The author of the "Norman People" (London, 1874) claims the surname as of Norman origin, and instances Maingot Piteman in Normandy 1198 ("Magn. Rotul. Scaccarii Normanniæ"), and John Piteman in England circa 1272 (Hundred Rolls).

Although more common in the fifteenth century in Somersetshire and the surrounding counties than elsewhere in England, still from the following early occurrence of the name in other counties, it is not altogether rare elsewhere:—

- 1272. Bucks. John Piteman. (Hundred Rolls.)
- 1291. Suffolk, Ilketshall. Walter Pyteman. (Inquisition post mortem.)
- 1333. Hereford, Holme Lacy. John Pyteman. (Grant of Pardon.)
- 1393. Devon, Barnstaple. John Pyteman. (Charter of a tenement.)
- 1515. Middlesex, London. John Pytman. (St. Botolph's, Aldgate; Will P.C.C.)
- 1544. Berkshire, Great Coxwell. Thomas Pitman, jun^r. (Will.)
- 1549. Northants, Mears Ashby. Robert Pytman. (Will.)
- 1559, etc. Hampshire, Quarley. Pitman. (Parish Registers; many entries.)
- 1570, etc. Somerset, Wedmore. John Pitman. (Parish Registers—marriages; several entries.)
- 1577. Oxfordshire, Thame. Richard Pytman. (Will P.C.C.)
- 1592. Gloucestershire, Bitou. Thomas Pyttman, gent. (Parish Register.)
- 1592. Lincoln, N. Hykeham. William Pitman. (Will.)
- 1593. Warwickshire, Ilmington. William Pittman, weaver. (Marriage Bond, Worcester.)

I have not included in the above the variants Petman or Putman.

I am also anxious to ascertain the parentage of Frederick Cobbe Pitman, belonging probably to Hampshire, who was gazetted Ensign in March 1774 to General Read's Regiment, viz., the 9th Foot or Norfolk Regiment.

Pedigree of Wittevronge of Ghent in Flanders, etc.*

A History of the Family of Peers of Alveston

IN THE COUNTY OF WARWICK.*

INTRODUCTORY.

THIS Account of the Family of Peers is compiled chiefly from contemporary manuscripts, marriage settlements, wills, etc.

The first of the name to settle in Warwickshire appears to be one Robert Peers, a merchant of Bristol, who was a brother of William Peers, Prior of Worcester (better known by his monastic name of Moore), through whose influence Robert was granted the leases of certain property belonging to the Priory of Worcester.† He settled at Alveston in 1540, and became the founder of the Family of Peers, which afterwards became one of some importance in the locality and allied itself by marriage with some of the leading families in the county of Warwick. With the death of Newsham Peers in 1803 it became extinct in the male line.

THE NAME.

The records and documents in which the name occurs shew a great variety in the mode of spelling it. The following are some of the variations found in the Parish Registers of Alveston, viz. : Peirs (1543—89), Peairs (1593—1602), Perse (1606), Peeres (1626—1651), Peers (1685), Pears and Peares (1686—98), Peers (1719—1806, the last entry).

THE ARMS.

In a contemporary MS. the Arms are thus blazoned :—"The sd. Robt. Peers buried at Alveston y^e 15th Novr. 1550, was succeeded by his eldest Son Edmnd who bore for his Armes, Azure on a Fesse Argent three Pellets betwixt three Pellicons wounding their breasts, and for his Crest, upon an Helme, on a Wreath Or and Azure, an Armed Arm Argent with a Ribbon Gules, supportg. a Dart out of a Cloud." In the Harleian Society's Publications, vol. xii. ("Visitation of Warwickshire") the following note is appended to the plate of Arms : "A patent of this coat pass'd by Will'm Camden Clarenceux to Edm. Peers of Alston alias Alveston in Con. War., Son of Robt. Peers of Bristol and Brother of Will'm Peers, prior of Worcester, 10 Julij 1605. 3 Jacobi Rx. Arms : Azure on a fesse argent between three pelicans or, vulning themselves proper, as many ogresses. Crest : Out of clouds a dexter arm embowed in armour argent, garnished and studded Or, holding a phton headed spear erect of the last, and tied around the arm with a ribbon gules."

THE FAMILY HISTORY.

The family of Peers, which was of some repute in Warwickshire during the sixteenth, seventeenth, and eighteenth centuries, is said to have come from Wales [Family MS.]. The first authentic notice of any member of it, however, occurs in Prior Moore's Diary, which is preserved among the archives of the Cathedral of Worcester.

Moore, whose family name was William Peers, but who, in accordance with monastic custom, assumed the name of Moore on entering holy orders, was Prior of Worcester 1518—1535. His private life‡ is fully described by Mr. John Noake † Dugdale's "Warwickshire" (Dr. Thomas' Edition), p. 673.

‡ Notices of William Peers will also be found in the "Dictionary of National Biography" and in the "History of the Diocese of Worcester," by Smith and Onslow (Diocesan Histories, published by the Society for the Promotion of Christian Knowledge), 1883, and a reference in Dingley's "History from Marble" (Camden Soc., No. 97, 1863).

in his "Monastery and Cathedral of Worcester" (London, 1866), the source of his information being the "Prior's Diary" referred to above, from which it appears that he was a jovial, easy-going ecclesiastic, generous, hospitable, and extravagant, but that he was also a patron of literature is evidenced by the many presents* of books he made to the Priory and other libraries.

From this Diary we learn that in the latter end of the sixteenth century there were living at Grimley in Worcestershire, one of the manors belonging to the Priory at Worcester, a certain Richard Peers and Ann his wife. Richard Peers died 20 February 1520, and Ann 22 September 1521, and both were buried at Grimley. They had issue, among others:—

(1) William, afterwards Prior of Worcester.

II. (2) ROBERT, a merchant of Bristol.

William Peers was born about 1472. After the usual probation he entered the Priory at Worcester in 1488 at the age of sixteen. In 1504 he was kitchener. From 1507 to 1518 he was sub-prior under John Wednesbury, and on 2 October 1518 he was instituted (prefixus) to the office of Prior by John Bell, a chancellor of the diocese, in the capella carnarie of the Priory (now Cathedral) Church of Worcester.

The Diary records many journeyings to and fro, entertainments, presents to friends, and especially to relatives, and lavish expenditure. To his brother Robert he was particularly generous, "a tonne of wine" being one of the numerous gifts made to him. He entertained the Princess Mary on the occasions of her visits to Worcester in 1521, 1525, and 1526. In 1531 he served on the Commission of Peace for Worcester, and in 1533 Archbishop Cranmer spent four days with him, when he made a Visitation of the Monastery, his entertainment costing the Prior £5 7s.

Foreseeing the Dissolution, he resigned the priorship in 1535, and was granted the use of the manor house of Crowle, together with certain apartments in the Monastery, with an adequate supply of wood and fuel. He was also provided with two ale-cups of silver, two goblets of silver, a salt of silver, and twelve silver spoons, with a sufficiency of table and chamber linen, certain vestments and things necessary "to save masse withall"; also with the two beds which were in the stone chamber within the monastery; a debt of £100 to his creditors was to be paid, the house at Crowle kept in repair, and two horses provided for his use.† It is stated in the monastic books that the Prior received a pension of £50 per annum and a sum of money (1000 marks according to Nash, the historian of Worcestershire).

William Peers died at Alveston, and was buried there 16 September 1552. The following entry in the Parish Register of Alveston records his burial: "Willā Moore, was sometyme Prior of Worcester, was buried the xvjth of September 1552," refuting the statement made in the "Dictionary of National Biography," and by Noake, Dingley, and others, that Crowle was the place of the Prior's burial.

II. ROBERT PEERS settled at Alveston in 1540, having obtained the lease of certain land there from the Priory of Worcester, through the influence of his brother the Prior thereof. He was a wine merchant of Bristol, and amassed a fortune in that trade. He was buried at Alveston 15 November 1550 (Alveston

* Mr. John Noake states in his "Worcestershire Nuggets" (Worcester, 1889) that at a sale of the library of Mr. Dickenson of King's Weston, Somerset, a "Missale ad Usum ecclesie Wygorniensis cum Calendario," a fine specimen of fifteenth century writing and illumination, was purchased by Mr. Quaritch for £69. It had been presented to Bromesgrove Church in 1521 by William Moore, Prior of Worcester, and subsequently belonged to the Neville-Holt family.

* On Sunday, December 5th, was called to his rest "suddenly," and as it seems to us somewhat prematurely, one of those active and energetic Church laymen whom the renewed Church life of the last thirty years or so has brought so happily and usefully to the front in Church defence and Church administration and organisation. Mr. Charles Cotton Ferrard, of Ascot Place, in the parish of Winkfield, Berks, was well known not only in his own locality and immediate neighbourhood, but also in the diocese of Oxford. As an indefatigable magistrate and one of the best ex-officio guardians of the poor he will be missed in Berkshire, and as one of the most regular promoters of and attendants at the annual Diocesan Conference at Oxford, having been also a grantor and an active Committee-man of the Church Congress that was some years ago held at Reading, made a very beneficial mark in several pages of our diocesan history. He was an ex-Etonian and Trinity College, Cambridge, man, and in reading the lessons in Winkfield Church, which he did with an accuracy and impressiveness that will be long remembered, he was always habited in surplice and the M.A. hood of his University. Having been at Eton and Trinity in the days when that association signified, or at any rate suggested, high Toryism, he remained to the end a Tory of the Tories, if a man can so be without being, as Mr. Ferrard was not, bigoted or socially illiberal. The writer has met at the ever-hospitable dinner-table at Ascot Place Liberal Members of Parliament of the most pronounced views, and his own (in every way) the most influential layman in the parish friendly relationship to the deceased squire of Winkfield. Mr. Ferrard was lord of the manor, and has also been the case during the succeeding vicariate of helping the late Canon Elliott in Church restoration, parish charities, and other good works; as has also been the case during the succeeding vicariate of Mr. John Dunboon, the present incumbent. The late squire's opposition to the Sisters' Marriage Bill was most marked, and, indeed, vehement; he simply would not tolerate the idea of it, and backed up his Vicar in preaching and petitioning against it annually. Mr. Ferrard was, indeed, more of a lay ecclesiastic, if the term may be used, than of a sportsman, or huntsman, or anything else in country-gentleman characteristics except genial, almost open-house hospitality, and Tory sympathy. He had been called to the Bar in early life, but retired on succeeding to the estate of Ascot Place. He married a daughter of the late Dean Dale, better known as Canon Dale, and his son who succeeds him, Mr. Charles Agace Ferrard, is also a Barrister. The cause of Church defence will be a great loss by the demise of Mr. Ferrard, and in many parts of the country the announcement of that sudden death will cause much sadness and regret. — "Guardian," 15 Dec. 1886.

Genealogical Notes and Queries.

THE ORIGIN OF THE SWINNERTON DYERS, BARONETS.

TO THE EDITOR OF "MISCELLANEA GENEALOGICA ET HERALDICA."

SIR,

On page 45 of your March number is a letter signed "X. Y. Z.," in which it is stated that "Mr. Mark W. Bullen insinuates that the King's Heralds and Pursuivants of the College of Arms issued and sealed with their corporate seal a pedigree of the Dyer family," and your correspondent goes on to say in effect that such a pedigree was not so issued.

I insinuated nothing; I stated that in 1854 Sir Thomas Dyer printed the pedigree discussed, and partly reproduced in my paper. This is a fact beyond dispute; no number of denials, anonyms or acknowledged, will get rid of it.

Your correspondent says further that "the pedigree recorded at the College of Arms in 1854, of which a certified copy was issued under the Common Seal of the College," is quite different.

This greatly increases the interest of the subject in hand, for it proves, if it proves anything, that the College issued, sealed, and certified two accounts of the same series of facts, one so to say plain, and one coloured, a view which I for one am perfectly willing to accept on the authority of "X. Y. Z."

But the most astonishing statement in this communication is reserved for the end of it. We read: "Nor do the records of the College of Arms filiate or attempt to filiate the said George Dyer."

Let us see how far "X. Y. Z." and the facts agree.

The pedigree printed by Sir Thomas Dyer, now under discussion, and of which I have reproduced the part shewing the extremely workmanlike joint, which makes George Dyer of Heytesbury, in Wilts, the son of George Dyer of Bratton, in Somerset, was entered in the Books containing the Arms and descents of the Knights of the Bath.

These books are official, and as to authority, no line is drawn between them and the Visitations by the Heralds themselves.

In 1837, the officers of the College of Arms made a return to questions put to them by the Royal Commission on Public Records. They say: "The records strictly deemed official may perhaps be divided into twelve classes, and the nature of their contents described under the following heads":—

"10. Register containing the Pedigrees and Arms of the Knights of the Bath, and their respective esquires, recorded in pursuance of a Statute of the Order bearing date the 8th May 1804." After mentioning classes 11 and 12, we read: "The foregoing may be considered as coming under the description of official records, as they contain entries made by the proper officers in the regular exercise of their official duty."

This return is made "in obedience to an order of the Chapter," and is signed by order of the Chapter, 2 Sep^r 1833, Charles George Young, York Herald and Registrar.—(Report of the Commissioners on Public Records, 1837, pp. 106 and 107.)

If this is not sufficient there is further evidence of the direct responsibility of the College of Arms for this and other similar productions.

At a Chapter of the Order of the Bath, held on June 10th, 1812, "it was resolved, on the opinion of the Attorney and Solicitor-General, that Mr. Naylor has no power to enter descents except as a copy from the College of Arms." (Brit. Mus. Add. MS. 6328, fo. 35.)

The italics are mine; Mr. Naylor was at that time Genealogist to the Order of the Bath.

In January, 1815, there is a public notice to Knights Commanders of the Bath, signed by William Woods, Secretary to the Knights Commanders, that "in the event of your pedigree not being already entered in the College of Arms, a fee of £3 18s. 8d. is also to be paid to the Officer of Arms, who shall record the same." (Brit. Mus. Add. MS. 6326, fo. 98.)

It would appear, therefore, that the King's Heralds and Pursuivants of the College of Arms were directly and officially responsible for the pedigrees entered on the Books of the Order of the Bath, including the one of which they supplied a solemnly sealed and certified copy to Sir Thomas Dyer. Further, that they had in their custody, and were responsible for, the materials from which this and other similar narratives were constructed.

Yours obediently,
MARK W. BULLEN.

[By the courtesy of the Editor of the "Miscellanea Genealogica et Heraldica" I am enabled to reply to Mr. Bullen's criticisms in the same Part in which they appear.]

The College of Arms has nothing to do with, nor is it responsible for, anything which may have been printed by Sir Thomas Dyer in 1854. The official pedigree which was issued under the Common Seal of the College, in spite of any insinuations to the contrary on the part of Mr. Bullen, did not, I reiterate, connect or attempt to connect George Dyer of Heytesbury with anyone else or with any other pedigree, and I challenge Mr. Bullen to prove his assertion that the College "issued sealed and certified two accounts of the same series of facts." The College issued under its Common Seal one pedigree only, and that is the pedigree I refer to above.

It is quite true that there is a pedigree in the books of the Genealogist of the Order of the Bath which shews the "workmanlike joint" referred to, but these books (although they have been deposited in the College of Arms) are not, and never were, "Records." They are the pedigrees entered by the Genealogist of the Bath in the books of that Order, in compliance with the Statutes of the Order, and the College of Arms had nothing whatever to do with them, and had no control over them. They did not come into possession of the College until after the abolition of the office of Genealogist of the Order of the Bath in 1847, and Mr. Bullen's statement that "no line is drawn between them and the Visitations of the Heralds themselves" is absolutely without foundation.

It is also true that in 1833 a Return (printed in 1837) of the College of Arms to the Royal Commission on Public Records includes "Pedigrees and Arms of the Knights of the Bath and their respective Esquires recorded in pursuance of a Statute of the Order bearing date the 8th of May 1804," but obviously these are not the pedigrees referred to by Mr. Bullen, for they were not, at that date (1833), in the possession of the College. For the information of that gentleman I may add that they are the pedigrees recorded in the College in compliance with the Statutes of the Order in 1804, and are quite independent of the pedigrees belonging to the Genealogist, and that they contain no pedigree of Dyer at all, good, bad, or indifferent.

It will therefore be seen that Mr. Bullen's charge against the College of Arms falls to the ground. May I suggest to him that before attacking the records of the College again he should take the trouble to verify his facts.

Reviews.

Nidderdale, from Nun Monkton to Whernside: being a record of the History, Antiquities, Scenery, etc., of the Beautiful Valley of the Nidd. By HARRY SPEIGHT, Author of "Craven and North-West Yorkshire Highlands." London: Elliot Stock, 62 Paternoster Row, E.C.

THIS is a substantial volume in small octavo of upwards of 600 pp., with an ample Appendix and Index, and an excellent map to illustrate the district. It is amply supplied with illustrations and tabular pedigrees, ending with the inevitable Royal Descents of three of the families mentioned in the Work. These latter are compiled by Dr. John F. le Page.

The Work begins with a good description of the neighbourhood of Nun Monkton from Domesday upwards, and in 1378 there were only forty-three married tax-payers in Nun Monkton and Moor Monkton. The Fairfaxes acquired the manor in 1526, and the family still possess the manorial rights and are sole landowners. In the reign of Elizabeth Nun Monkton was held by the house of Percy, Earls of Northumberland. The widow of the eighth Earl disposed of the whole to Francis Fyton and others, and in 1820 the estate passed to the Tufnell family of Langley in Essex. From them it passed to Mr. George Browne, where his distinguished son, the Right Rev. George Forrest Brown, spent his early life. About 1860, however, Mr. Crawball, of Thorpe Green, purchased the manorial rights from the Tufnells, and he is now the largest landowner in the parish.

To some Dutchmen who lauded with William Prince of Orange in 1688 is ascribed the erection of a stone monument with the arms of Payler on one side; it is illustrated in the volume, and the inscription to Nathaniel Payler is given in extenso. From this point the book leaves Nun Monkton and gives the history of Marston Moor and Kirk Hammeton, and also of Cowthorpe, where is the renowned oak often spoken of, measuring 60 feet in circumference and about 80 feet high. After a lapse of about 125 years "it looked like a great heap of broken stumps."

The Work is made interesting throughout by accounts of local gentry, including Lords de Ros and Sir Henry and Sir John Goodricke, Sir Henry Thursby, Sir William Ingleby, with portraits and pedigrees, likewise the Goldesboroughs and the Cantilupes, Spofforths, etc., with their pedigrees. It is besides amply illustrated with homesteads, halls, and mansions, ancient fire-places and doorways, the plates numbering nearly 100, and altogether is full of information and research, and worthy of a place in every gentleman's library. Mr. Harry Speight is also the historian of "Upper and Lower Wharfedales," etc. An Appendix has just come to hand giving an account of the Family of Inman of Nidderdale, and also the Royal Descents of Le Page, Boyles, and Inman, by Dr. John F. Le Page, which will be interesting to the families concerned.

The Ancestry and Posterity of John Lea of Christian Malford, Wiltshire, England, and of Pennsylvania in America, 1503—1906. By JAMES HENRY LEA and GEORGE HENRY LEA. Philadelphia and New York: Lea Brothers and Co. 1906.

THIS is a handsome large octavo volume of upwards of 600 pp., compiled in English and American sections. The former ranges from Leigh of West Hall, Cheshire, Leigh of Flamstone, Wilts, and Lea of Salop, and Lee of Hartwell, Bucks. Leigh of Cheshire ran into ninety-two generations, and Leigh of Ellesmere, co. Salop, into sixteen. The name changes. Aye of Tewkesbury, Lea of Saintbury, Prestbury, and Solihull. Then Lygh of Landford and Lye of Cusley. The ancestry of John Lea of Christian Malford, Wiltshire, runs into seventy-seven generations, and ends the English Section, with a map of the district.

In the American Section, the founder of the family in America was John Lea of Christian Malford, Wiltshire, a woolstapler in Gloucestershire, formerly of the Church of England, but at the time of his marriage in 1698 became a convert to the teachings of Fox, and united with the Quakers. He "removed" to Pennsylvania about 1700, and accompanied William Penn on his second voyage. The generations amount to 5674, and the Work is nicely illustrated by nineteen Portraits and six Views of Churches, etc. There are ten descendants of the wives of the earlier generations, with pedigrees and arms, making forty-four pages, and the Work concludes with an Appendix to the American Section and one to the English Section, making together with general Index upwards of 100 pp. The whole is well got up, and the price of two guineas is reasonable for such a work, illustrated as it is with first-class family portraits, churches, etc., and an illuminated coat of arms of Leigh of East Hall.

Monumental Brasses in the Bedfordshire Churches. By GRACE ISHERWOOD. London: Elliot Stock, 62 Paternoster Row, E.C.

THIS is another book on Monumental Brasses. The authoress begins with Amptbill, where there are four brasses, one dated 1460, then proceeds to Aspley and Aslesley, and then continues with Barford, taking each village or town in its alphabetical order, until the work ends with Yelden. There are some good specimen plates of nine brasses given, some drawn by Miss Kitty Isherwood from rubbings by the authoress. It is published at 3s. 6d., and makes a nice little volume.

The Virginia Magazine of History and Biography. Vol. XIII., No. 4. April 1906. The Virginia Historical Society, Richmond, U.S.A.

THIS No. ends Vol. XIII., and is furnished with Title and a full Index. Its chief contents are the Revolutionary Army Orders issued in 1778-79, and general matters connected with Virginia about the same period.

Fenland Notes and Queries. Vol. VI., No. 69. April 1906. Edited by Rev. W. D. SWEETING, M.A. Peterborough: George C. Caster, Market Place.

THIS Part is again absorbed in the great question of the Drainage of the Great Level, and the account goes on to say that the income of the Corporation was from money they borrowed, but the tenants could not pay rent, and the Duke of Bedford was the only asset, as his loans alone proceeded more from his graciousness than from any commercial gain. So up to 1755, when an Act was passed called the First Boud Act, the Commissioners contributed more money to form the channels required in 1773, and the water being lowered improved the navigation to The Wash, so that by 1834 the Level could dispense with mills and steam engines, but the cost was £200,000 when the new iron bridge was erected, and that formed a continuous highway to the north of England. To illustrate the new General Outfall there is a plan given of The Wash in 1839, between the coasts of Norfolk and Lincolnshire. There are several short papers in this Part, one giving an account of the Civil War in the Isle of Ely, and also on the idolatry in the Fens, and an interesting account is given of Lynn in 1732, supposed to be written by the second Earl of Oxford, which is worth reading.

The New York Genealogical and Biographical Record. Vol. XXXVII., No. 2. April 1906. New York: 226 West 58th Street.

THIS Part has an excellent steel-plate engraving of the Rev. John Frelinghuysen Jackson, a zealous Presbyterian who had to leave Scotland and settled in New York City in 1750; beside the portrait is a plate giving the inscription on his tombstone, he dying in 1813, aged 81. There is a full account of his successors given.

The Spillmans of America and the family of Rowley next follow, with their children, and the Throope family and the Scrope tradition have a full investigation. Then John Van Dyck and Descendants have a full notice, likewise the ancestry of the family of Covert; and the Woodward and Barnes families. The Number is rich in family history.

The Journal of the Ex Libris Society. Vol. XVI., Parts 2, 3, 4, and 5, February to May 1906. London: A. and C. Black, Soho Square.

THE February Part issues the Title pages and Index to Vol. XV., which are always such a necessary addition to a volume. It contains besides six separate bookplates of the Grylls family, as the arms were confirmed to John de Grilles, who paid scutage in 1303. The De Grelles were Dukes of Manchester, and there is a story that the family came over with the Conqueror from Gréselle in Anjou.

The March Part gives an old bookplate of Wadham College, which has only been spoken of since the Franks collection was dispersed; another plate is given shewing the portraits of Nicholas Wadham and his wife. Two plates are given also of Richard Warner, who graduated in 1734. The Plates for identification now run up to 606. The Frontispiece has the Countess of Gainsborough's plate, dated 1710. The readers, too, are reminded of the vast collection of the late Mr. Julian Marshall, numbering as it did nearly 60,000 separate bookplates, all sold off this month.

The May Part shews a very artistic plate in that of the Hon. Mary C. M. Tremayne, designed by Major E. Bengough Ricketts, who has ably inserted a representation of the grand old Sydenham House. There are also some examples of Chippendale bookplates, besides three Irish plates, and a list is given of Festoon plates. Altogether the Editor gets together a mass of fresh material that proves how hard he works in securing fresh examples.

Northern Notes and Queries. Edited by Henry Reginald Leighton. Vol. I., No. 2. April, 1906. Newcastle-on-Tyne: M. S. Dodds, 61 and 63 Quayside.

THIS Part begins with recounting the breakage of the stone to Cuthbert Watson of Cowpen into two or more pieces by the architects and builders in 1903. Being an old family, and seated at Cowpen as early as Elizabeth, it behoved them to exercise more care in the removal of the blue marble stone with the ample inscriptions on it. After reciting articles of agreement in 1619-20, between the freeholders, the paper narrates how the holdings were enlarged by purchase in 1712, and gives the pedigree of the family from 1591 to 1853, when Margaret Diana Watson married Captain Ralph Errington, and he sold his wife's lands in Cowpen, she dying December 1853. There are some family notices which are interesting from 1728 to 1744, which with Northern Notes and Queries, make the Part pleasant to read.

A History of the Family of Peers of Alveston

IN THE COUNTY OF WARWICK.*

IX. (1) NEWSHAM PEERS, of Alveston and Chadshunt in the County of Warwick, was born at New York 4 March 1726; married Elizabeth, daughter of . . . Gardiner, Esq., of the County of Oxford.† She died 13 January 1821, aged 83, and was buried at Clifton near Bristol. There is a tablet to her memory in the old church at Alveston (see p. 107). Newsham Peers died at the age of 77, and was buried at Alveston on the 29 March 1803 (Alveston Par. Reg.), having had issue two sons and four daughters, viz. :—

X. (1) MARY ELIZA, born 30 January 1768; buried at Alveston 8 February 1795 (Alveston Par. Reg.).

(2) Amelia, born 1 April 1770; died unmarried 16 September 1837, and was buried at Milford, Hampshire (Milford Par. Reg.).

MONUMENTAL INSCRIPTIONS IN THE OLD CHURCH AT ALVESTON.

The seat of the family of Peers was at Alveston—a village 2½ miles E.N.E. of Stratford-upon-Avon. The house, in which they lived for two centuries, is a red-brick structure, built in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, in the form of the letter E, situated on the banks of the River Avon and surrounded by a park. It is generally called Alveston Park or Alveston House, to distinguish it from Alveston Manor House, which is in the same parish but at Bridgetown and nearer Stratford-upon-Avon.

The old church, dedicated to St. James, which adjoins the park of Alveston House, and in which most of the members of the family of Peers lie buried, is now but a ruin. The chancel, with a bellcote, is all that remains of the original structure, the nave having been pulled down when the present church was built, about a quarter of a mile distant, in 1839. Beyond the monuments and two carvings in stone of the thirteenth century there is nothing of interest in this church, which is now used for funeral services for the members of such families as have vaults in the churchyard.

ON THE NORTH WALL.

(1) On a brass plate fixed to the wall is the following inscription :—Here lyeth buried the body of Nicholas Lane, Gent., who deceased the xxvi day of July, A.D. 1595.

Under this plate and likewise fixed to the wall in a vertical position is the effigy of Nicholas Lane in the costume of the Elizabethan period, with several smaller figures at his feet and on either side, all being component parts of what was once an altar tomb, on which the larger figure was recumbent. Nicholas Lane was Lord of the Manor of Alveston.

(2) A marble tablet, surmounted by a shield of the Arms of Peers :—

To the Memory of the HONOURABLE NEWSHAM PEERS, ESQ^{RE}
Colonel of His Majesty's Own Royal Regiment of Welch Fuzilliers
He had been a Commission (sic) Officer 40 years and distinguished himself in

Here lyeth y^e body of Mr
 THOMAS GROVES & REBEKAH his wife. He died February the 21st, 1691 & She died y^e
 29th Of October, 1681.

There are numerous floor-stones in memory of members of the family of Townshends forming the flooring of what was formerly the nave aisle.

In the churchyard below the east window, enclosed by iron railings, is the vault of the Peers family, over which are raised two brick tombs, surmounted by slabs of stone, each having the arms of the family cut thereon and the following inscriptions:—

(1) "In memory of Captain PHILIP PEERS, Mariner, who departed this life October 19th, 1751, aged 62."

(2) "Here lyeth interred the body of Capt. JOHN PEERS, Mariner, who departed this life on the 23rd day of May, Anno Domini 1728, aged 41 years 5 months 9 days."

Adjoining the churchyard, embowered in trees, stands the picturesque old Vicarage—a typical Warwickshire house—now a dairyman's cottage.

THOMAS CROSSE of St. Margaret's, Westminster, Middx., brewer. Will dated 10 July 1682; proved 7 Sept. 1682 by his brother John Crosse, the ex'or being a minor; again proved 18 July 1692 by Thomas Crosse, son & ex'or of the defunct, being of full age. About £200 to be expended on my funeral. To my wife Mary £500, & also (for her life) my messuage, barn & land at Hyde Park Corner, co. Midd., which I bought of M^r Alexander Davies, dec^d, & now in the tenure of Tibias Beale, rem^r at her death to my son Thomas Crosse, rem^r in default of issue to my son Robert Crosse, rem^r to my son Henry Crosse, rem^r to my two dau^{rs} Mary & Anne equally, rem^r to my right heirs. My lease of my now dwelling house at Mild Banck, par. of Stⁱ Margaret's, Westminster (which I bought of M^r Maurice Emmett), to my s^d son Tho^s Crosse, a minor, & my wife, my brother John Crosse & my wife's brother M^r John Lockwood to be trustees until his age of 21, & if he dies before, then my s^d estate to be divided, one third to my son Robert, one third to my son Henry, & the remaining third to my two daughters Mary & Anne equally. My messuages in King Street, Soho, in the par. of Stⁱ Martin's in the fields, & 3 houses in King Street, Stⁱ James, in the s^d par. of Stⁱ Martin's, to my sons Henry & Robert Crosse, minors, & my brother John Crosse & my brother in law M^r John Lockwood to receive the rents during their minority. My sister Dorothy Woodall, now wife of Stanford Woodall, an annuity of £10. My da. Mary Crosse £1500, & my da. Anne £1200 at their ages of 21 or marriage, if they marry with the consent of my wife, my brother John Crosse, & my brother in law M^r John Lockwood, or such of them as shall be living at the time, but if either marry without such consent then such da. so marrying to have only £1000, to be laid out by my s^d trustees in the purchase of lands, to be settled upon her & the heirs of her body. My s^d trustees to have care of the education of my dau^{rs}, & to each of my s^d trustees £20 for mourning. Poor of Malden, co. Bed., where I was born, £10, & to poor of Stⁱ Margaret's, Westm^r, £10. To John Bowden £10, he to assist my son Thomas in the affairs of the Brewhouse. Bequests to servants. My sister Sarah Houghton £5. My da. Anne Crosse £100 over & above her legacy. My wife to inhabit my dwelling house until my son Thomas is 21. My s^d son Tho^s Crosse to be ex'or, & during his minority my brother John Crosse to be ex'or in trust. My s^d brother & my brother in law John Lockwood to be overseers when my son Thomas is of age. Witnesses, John Plumleigh, Geo. Newland, Scr. Sy. Beckley his servant. (P.C.C., 107, Cottle.)

SIR THOMAS CROSSE of the City of Westminster, co. Midd., Bart. Will dated 22 Oct. 1735; proved 2 June 1738 by his son Sir John Crosse, Bart. The Family of Essington.*

ADMIRAL SIR EDWARD HUGHES, K.B.

Whether related to Captain Richard Hughes who married into the Essington family is not known, but there was an intimacy with Admiral Essington up to the time of their meeting at the Prince Regent's. Originally Midshipman of the "Diamond," with Captain Knowles under Vernon at Porto Bello in 1739, Edward Hughes became Captain 1747; Commodore of the East India Squadron 1773—1777; Rear-Admiral 1778; and Commander-in-Chief in the East Indies 1779—1783. Fought five actions with the French fleet under De Suffron on 17 February, 12 April, 6 July, 3 September 1782 and 20 June 1783. Vice-Admiral 1780; Admiral 1793. When the Admiral was bearing the broad pennant on board the "Salisbury," Nelson was a midshipman of the "Sea-horse," Captain Farmer, and Dr. Parry, the surgeon with the "Salisbury," examined the lad, and finding him too delicate to remain in India, advised Sir Edward to send him to England in the "Dolphin," Captain Pigot. After the Battle of Trafalgar, when all England was lamenting the death of this hero, the Doctor credited himself with having saved Nelson's life years before. Nelson, in a letter to John McArthur, says, when he was a midshipman, "My ill-health induced Sir Edward Hughes, who had always shewn me the greatest kindness, to send me to England on the 'Dolphin' of 20 guns with Captain James Pigot, whose kindness at that time saved my life." (Vide Nelson Letters.)

Admiral Sir Edward Hughes, who was presented at Court with the other Admirals, immortalized himself in the Battle of Sadras, fought on 12th April 1782. From "Studies in Naval History," we read:—"The French Admiral Suffron, with a resolution to which the fleet had long been a stranger, made his way to Madras, where Sir Edward Hughes, with a very inferior force, was known to be lying. The English, however, were joined by three new arrivals in time to meet their formidable enemy. As soon as he was well to sea Sir Edward Hughes weighed. His doing so caused great surprise among the French. They could not conceive it possible that with nine ships he would come out to attack them, having twelve. It is probable that he had not any such positive intention, but that he wished only to attack and destroy or scatter their convoy, and obstruct the troops from being landed.

"The French were incredulous, and thinking that the English were merely shifting berth took little or no notice of them till next morning. Suffron awoke from his dream of security to find that Sir Edward had during the night slipped past him in shore and was now spreading destruction among the convoy, which was posted to leeward of his fleet. He immediately hastened to the rescue, but before he could arrive at the spot the English had seized on six merchantmen, one of them carrying 300 soldiers, and laden with artillery, ammunition, etc., forming a very valuable prize."

The subsequent engagement was a severe one. The "Exeter" was disabled, so also was the "Serpent," Sir Edward's flagship, and the "Exeter" being the principal aim of the enemy, he did not renew the battle. The French Admiral on his ship the "Heros," backed up by the "Orient," another 74, engaged the "Superb," the English flag-ship, at close range, afterwards leaving it to other ships as they came up, and passed on to the "Monmouth," a little 64. She was worthy of her eminent name, her namesake having captured the "Fondroyant" of 84 guns single-handed. She heroically resisted the great odds against her, and suffered terribly, and reduced almost to a wreck and unmanageable, shot up with the wind, and was then thrown into prominent position between the two lines. At this critical juncture Sir Edward endeavoured to bring the "Superb" in between her and the French flag-ship. Sir Edward merely says: "At four in the afternoon the enemy weighed and stood to the southward, when I immediately weighed and stood after them." He, however, did not renew the battle, but a distant interchange of shots was all that followed the pause.

It is said Sir Edward cared little for tactics, less for policy, but was always ready for battle. In "Studies in Naval History," it is stated that he acquired a most princely fortune in the West Indies, estimated at over £40,000 a year, which he distributed in unostentatious acts of benevolence. He was present when the freedom of Huntingdon was presented to Lord Rodney, and was entertained with him to dinner. Among the toasts given were "His Lordship, General Elliott, and his brave garrison," and "Sir Edward Hughes, for the glorious 12th April 1782, on which day our sea commander saved the East and West Indies."

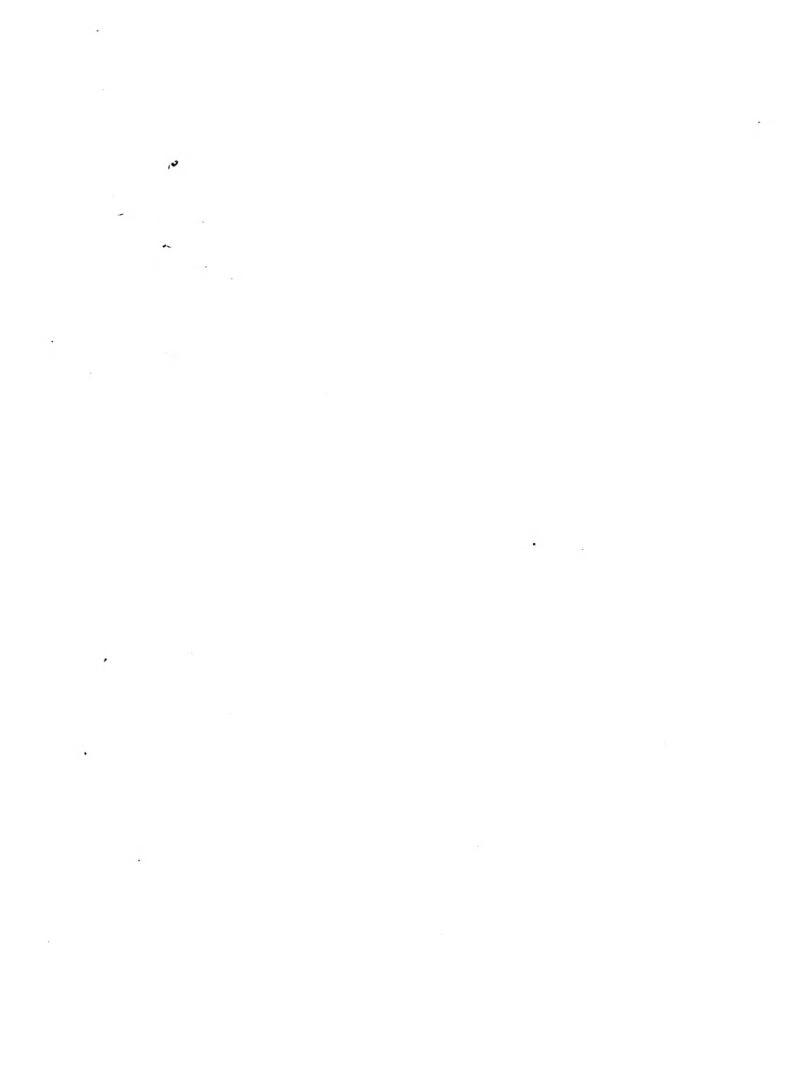

As shewing an intimacy between Admiral Essington and Sir Edward Hughes, there was a silhouette portrait of Vice-Admiral Sir William Essington, K.C.B., exhibited at the Royal Naval Exhibition in 1891. It was numbered in the Catalogue as 894, and was lent by R. J. Roddam, Esq. There was also a silhouette of Sir Edward Hughes, K.B., giving an account of his actions with the French in 1782 and 1783, and mentioning that he was made Admiral in 1793, and died in 1794. That was No. 336, and the portrait was lent by the Mayor and Corporation of Ipswich. There was also a portrait of him by Jones, after Reynolds, lent by Vice-Admiral C. M. Buckle.

Admiral Sir Edward Hughes's residence was at Deptford, but the house was pulled down in 1858, and the grounds were turned into a recreation field by the Metropolitan Board of Works.

To shew the long-standing connection of the family of Hughes with that of the Essingtons, John Essington was High Sheriff of Surrey in 1724, and he died in 1729, leaving seven daughters and three sons, the first being born in 1713 and the youngest in 1727. In Clapham Parish Church, on 28 November 1738, Richard Hughes of the parish of St. Saviour's, Southwark, was married to Elizabeth Essington, the second daughter of the above Mr. John Essington. Thus began the alliance of the Hughes family with the Essingtons. He succeeded his father, Captain Richard Hughes, as Commissioner of the Navy. His son Thomas being in the Navy, and commanding the "Chester," 80 guns, was made Captain of the Medway prizes. (Admiralty Records.) He died 31 August 1781. His grandson, Lieut. Thomas Hughes, was married to Elizabeth Smith of St. Sepulchre's, 19 April 1779, by whom he had five sons, William Rand, Richard John, Thomas James, George, and Charles Robert Hughes, and two daughters.

Lieutenant Thomas Hughes when on board the "Spitfire," under Captain Batt, in the North Sea and the Channel in 1806, was severely wounded in the side. In 1807 he served on board H.M.S. "Bellerophon," under Captain Rotherham in the Bay of Biscay, and in the same year was transferred to H.M.S. "Elizabeth," under the Hon. Henry Curzon. On the Expedition of Admiral Sir Sydney Smith he was expected to join the squadron, but with orders from Sir Sydney Smith he brought home a detained Portuguese ship. He retired on 11 Nov. 1807, from the effects of the wound when attached to the "Spitfire," and was appointed Lieutenant of the "Telligraph" [sic] (signaller by flags) at Chelsea College in 1815. (Admiralty Records.)

His five sons were looked after by their cousin William Essington, then a Captain, and William Rand Hughes had some hard service, of which more will be said. His brother George was with him as a volunteer of the first class in 1807; he afterwards left the service, and married his cousin, and took her name and arms, by consent of the College of Arms, and retired to their estate in Kent. Thomas James was drowned in Montego Bay while midshipman in 1789; his brother Richard John lost his life in action, as midshipman of the "Royal George," fighting against the "Sans Pareil" in 1794, and the youngest son, Charles Robert, who was only about eight years of age when his father had to retire, was placed by Sir William as a boarder at the Philological School, Marylebone Road, under the care of the Rev. Basil Woodd, his cousin. There he remained until he was apprenticed to a firm well known to his cousin. Being in a strict Methodist family he had few holidays, on one occasion only going by a Margate hoy to Dover to see his brother William Rand (then off on active service, having been promoted to the rank of Lieutenant, at the request of Admiral Dacres). His family afterwards had reason to believe that this lad had been represented to Sir William as dead, from letters which were found on the decease of his sister. To her and to her sister Sir William left by his will £500 each. Lady Essington sent many presents to the lad's mother, which never came to hand, for her little boy. Moreover, the butler to Sir William told the youth, on casually meeting him months after, that he had had the two houses in Nottingham Place left him, for he himself had witnessed a will to that effect. The last will of Sir William was dated in June 1813, when Vice-Admiral of the White Squadron, and he died in Aug. 1816. To shew what he thought of this lad was his giving £500 to Christ's Hospital as a governor, and his remark at the time that if "Charles" married it would come in for his boys, if he had any. Sir William knew his brother to be a spirited officer on active service, and he left him £2000. He was also to come into his property in case his cousin William Webb Ward had no family. But Mr. Ward had a daughter, and having to draw up Sir William's will, it was easy for him to make himself the residuary heir. So all Sir William's property went away from his nearest relatives, the Hughes family, the youngest son still being apprenticed at Sir William's death, and inheriting nothing on account of his presumed death. He, however, married Miss Charlotte Palmer, by whom he had four daughters and three sons, but he would not avail himself of the privilege of putting any of them to Christ's Hospital to be educated, which Sir William designed when he was made a Governor.

LIEUTENANT WILLIAM RAND HUGHES.

This young officer, the second son of Captain Thomas Hughes, was born Nov. 1787, and was the cousin mentioned by Admiral Sir William Essington in his will. To him he left £2000, and mentioned him as the residuary legatee in case Mr. Wm. Webb Ward had no family. All Sir William's landed property, including his estate at Malvern, in accordance with his second will, passed into Mr. Ward's hands.

Sir William took great interest in Captain Hughes's sons, and entered them in the Navy as soon as they were qualified. William Rand Hughes, midshipman, at the age of 15 served as a volunteer of the first class on board H.M.S. "Neptune" in the Channel Squadron in 1800, and also on the "Goliath" in 1801, and the "Sans Pareil," under Captain Essington in 1802. He also served in the West Indies, and was with Captain John Ayscough of H.M.S. "Success" in 1806. In Captain Ayscough's account of his action with the "Vengeur," French privateer, on the coast of Cuba, he says that the latter landed all his crew, who lashed the vessel to the trees, and then kept up a determined defence. Captain John Ayscough also says, "I cannot omit recommending to the Admiralty's notice Mr. William Rand Hughes, master's mate, who passed for a Lieutenant, and conducted himself in a very spirited manner." The "Success" grounded after this attack, and was in that state for two days, when twenty guns were thrown overboard, and she arrived at Jamaica on 1st August.

Lieutenant Rand Hughes passed from the "Success" in 1806 to H.M.S. "Veteran," under Admiral James Dacre, and obtained his commission as Lieutenant in 1808. He was appointed to the "Tweed" in 1811, and later on to the "Quebec," where he remained till 1813. His next vessel was the "Queen Charlotte," commanded by Captain Inglis, in 1815. On board the "Ganymede" and the "Severn," in 1816, Captain McCulloch, he was engaged in the Downs hunting the smugglers. He saw good service in H.M. Ships "Eden," in 1818, and the "Ramilies" in 1821, and it has been remarked that the rapid changes from one vessel to another, from the time he volunteered for active service in 1801, shewed that where the fight was the thickest "there was he."

He retired on half-pay, married, and died in 1828, leaving no family.

THE ESSINGTONS OF STAFFORDSHIRE AND WILTSHIRE.

We have been favoured with the following interesting account from an esteemed Correspondent:—

It must be confessed that the name of Essington does not hold such a high position in the world now, as it did once. No doubt the brilliant services of Vice-Admiral Sir William Essington renewed its distinction in his time, for on the map of Western Australia is a Port Essington. But in the lists of Parliamentary Candidates and Parliamentary Members, Aldermen of London, High Sheriffs, Admirals, Generals, and County Councillors, the name is no longer seen. It appears, however, once, amid many more celebrated names on the panels of the Upper School at Eton as also in the passage of the Lower School. It is to be found, too, in the current calendar of Cambridge, and in the "Clergy List." The Essington who obtained for his branch of the race this temporary escape from oblivion, was born in the year 1818, and was the only son of Robert Essington. This gentleman owned a farm at Compton Bassett, near Calne, and was a tenant of Mrs. Heneage, the chief landowner of that parish. He was also Captain of the Volunteers which she raised during the Napoleonic War. The chief, however, of the Essingtons living at that time in Wilts was William of Calne. And here one may note the recurrence, as in the pedigree, of the baptismal names Robert and William. This feature, which occurs in many old families, for instance the Sir John St. Aubyns of Cornwall and the Sir Theophilus Biddulphs of Staffordshire and Warwickshire, shews that the sons, generation after generation, were proud of their fathers. To that William Essington descended a stag's head. On this an inscription in silver shewed that the animal had been killed by an Essington while hunting with a king, and also, no doubt, shewed the time and place and the name of the king. This trophy, however, William left to his childless wife, not to his cousin Robert, and she left it to her family, who, it is believed, sold it in Wardour Street, where perhaps it may still be found, if sought for. Probably the place was Cannoek Chase, for there, as we learn from the William Salt Library at Stafford, many Essingtons of Essington, a hamlet near the Chase, were Royal Verderers. To Staffordshire this Robert William Essington, of whom we are speaking, went back as Vicar of Shenstone, a village near Lichfield. He had been nine years on the foundation at Eton, where he gained no distinction except the captaincy of the eleven of cricket as also of football, together with a seat in Pop.* But he had the good fortune to obtain first a Scholarship and then a Fellowship at King's College, Cambridge, as also a Seatonium Prize. The Vicarage of Shenstone he held for forty-six years, and when he retired on a pension, after having procured the rebuilding of the Parish Church, on the foundation-stone of which his name is now inscribed, he received, besides many other valuable presents, his portrait painted by Muuns. He is still living at Newquay in Cornwall. The only relics of his race inherited by him are some gold links and a silver seal. This bears the same coat of arms and crest as the Admiral's seal, but no motto.

It is proper to add that this last male representative of a small branch of an expiring family had for his mother a Sarah Wayte of Calne, and that he has through his wife Ann Negus, a grandson, an oppidan at Eton. This boy bears a name still more distinguished in naval annals than that of Essington, namely Drake. It may be said, by the bye, that the first Wayte, known in England, came from the Low Countries, and bore at Hastings on his shield bugles. He obtained large grants in Wilts, which were lost to the name for want of a male heir. The only one of them who is to be seen in history put, with the Christian name of Thomas, his name to the death warrant of Charles I., being the last Thomas of that race. Negus is equivalent to Prince, not only in Abyssinia, but also elsewhere in the East. And here, as in the case of the Waytes, it was a Colonel Negus who distinguished himself. That soldier lived in the reign of Anne, and was famous for his stirrup-cups of port wine and water, a mixture which now goes by his name.

* Pop is a Society at Eton, originally founded by the boys for debates. It now consists of all who have obtained distinction of any sort, and exercises, with the consent of the Head Master, powers which at other schools belong to the best scholars. It is of course the crowning honour to have had no black ball, and this was the case with Robert William Essington.

 Note.—The above Pedigree is based upon that originally drawn up by the Rev. Richard Pencilly, Baptist Minister in Newcastle, from family papers and evidences, and afterwards continued with numerous additions by Mr. Henry Angus Wilkison of Haddon-on-the-Wall, and the Rev. Joseph Angus, D.D., and lithographed a few years ago for circulation in the family. The part which this family has taken in the history of the Independent and Baptist faiths in Northumberland has been fully dealt with by the Rev. David Douglass in his "History of the Baptist Churches in the North of England," and by Mr. Richard Welford in "Men of Mark Twixt Tyne and Tweed." It may be noted that some members of the family spelt their name Angus, others Angus.

Reviews.

Haddon: The Manor, the Hall, its Lords and Traditions. By G. LE BLANC SMITH.
London: Elliot Stock, 62 Paternoster Row, E.C. 1906.

THIS is an excellently well-got-up book, enriched with many illustrations by the Author, and by photographs interspersed with the text. It was dedicated in His Grace the Duke of Rutland, now no more. He entertained at Haddon the British Archaeological Society in 1851.

The Author is a little severe in the preface in his strictures upon the behaviour of his own countrymen, at the same time eulogizing that of the Americans. It is our pleasure to record, from the experience of many an archaeological journey, that the bad habit of Englishmen for inscribing their names on venerable walls is a thing of the past, fortunately.

At the beginning the Author states Haddon was in the manor of Bakewell, which was one of the many gifts that William the Conqueror gave to his natural son, William Peverell, and gives his pedigree, in which William Peverell IV. forfeited his estates in 1153, leaving a sister Margaret, who married Robert Ferrars, Earl of Derby.

The Manor of Haddon passed from Peverell to Avenel, and from Avenel to Vernon, who bought out the moiety of the manor that Avenel held in Henry VI's reign. A Richard Vernon made common cause with others against Henry IV.; it is supposed that he was taken prisoner at the Battle of Shrewsbury, fought in 1403, and was executed on 21 July.

The account of Dorothy Vernon's supposed run-away marriage is treated as a romantic tale imagined by "Silverpen," a literary lady well known in the last century, for, as our Author asserts, the very room which she was said to have left while dancing, and the Tudor steps down which she was said to fly on horseback with her lover, were not built until after her marriage with John Manners, the son of an Earl.

The narrative portion is well kept up, shewing how their son married the daughter of Sir Henry Pierrepont, and her grandson was fortunate enough to inherit the Haddon estates and the huge estates of Belvoir and the earldom of Rutland from his cousin George, the seventh Earl. He, however, espoused the cause of the Parliament in 1642-3, and after being defeated at his Castle of Belvoir lost his ancestral home. He got the whole back again, the Royalists surrendering it after the destruction of the village, through the water supply failing them.

All is interesting reading given us by the Author, and the illustrations are all that can be desired. The Work ends with six Appendices and a Pedigree of the Vernons of Haddon, and we have to congratulate the Author on his general amusing history, and the Publisher for producing such an excellent book for half-a-sovereign.

Allegations for Marriage Licences, issued by the Commissary Court of Surrey between 1673 and 1770, with copious Indexes (to be issued with the last Part). Transcribed from the original Records and Edited by A. RIDLEY BAX, F.S.A., Barrister-at-Law, and Member of the Harleian Society, etc. Part I. Norwich: Goose and Son, Rampant Horse Street. 1906.

THESE Allegations, the copying of which has occupied the Editor for several years during such time as he has been able to spare from other engagements, are contained from 1674 to 1692, in a bound volume preserved in the Faculty Office; for all those of later date it has been needful to examine the original records, many of them in a very dirty and dilapidated state, each application for a marriage licence usually involving two documents, viz., the Allegation and the Bond. In the Appendix some eighty Allegations will be found recently brought to light whilst the early part of the MS. has been in the press. It is estimated that there must be at least 9,800 Allegations, and not less than 20,000 names contained in the MS. Almost every village and town of Surrey is represented, many of them, e.g. Guilford, Richmond, and Mitcham very frequently, whilst licences for persons of all ranks in social life are to be found therein. There are several Peers and Esquires, many Gentlemen, Merchants and Yeomen, but the most part belonging to the trading and working classes. A very large number of the names known in past times in the parishes of Surrey will be discovered in these records.

Northern Notes and Queries. Vol. I., No. 3. July 1906. Edited by Henry Reginald Leighton. Newcastle-on-Tyne: M. S. Dodds, 61 and 63 Quayside.

THIS Number has an excellent article on "Count" Steele, the reputed master of George Romney the artist, to whom he signed his indentures on March 20, 1755. Romney, however, was "treated unfairly by Steele, because the latter kept him chiefly grinding colours and in the drudgery of his art." But as an example of young life as prevalent now as then, he forgot he was learning the chief rudiments of an artist, and which Gainsborough maintained so firmly when he selected blue as his best colour against his fellow artists; ride his "Blue Boy" in the possession of the Duke of Westminster.

However, Romney aided his master in his elopement with a young lady of fortune, and as some accounts imply, he took her and gave her lessons while Steele was arranging his journey to Gretna Green, where they were married, and in thus aiding the young couple he contracted a violent fever, so that on their honeymoon he lay ill at Steele's lodging at Kendal. In time the couple returned, and moved to York, Romney going with them; but Steele found he had made a great mistake in marrying so young. He finally cancelled Romney's indentures so that he should "not retard the progress of a mind he was sure would do wonders."

Steele was always extravagant and in debt, and leaving many mortgages he finally died at Egremont, and Romney became eccentric, dressing to an extreme, thus being led into many difficulties.

There are some family notices given of persons between 1723 and 1800 which are interesting, besides the usual Queries and Replies which end the Part.

Fenland Notes and Queries. Vol. VI., No. 70. July 1906. Edited by Rev. W. D. SWEETING, M.A. Peterborough: George C. Caster, Market Place.

THIS Part is illustrated by examples of woodwork in Soham Church, and has an article on local government of Peterborough, and another on "Sunday no Sabbath," a sermon preached before the Lord Bishop of Lincoln in April 1635 by Dr. John Pocklington, for which he was prosecuted in 1641, losing his preferments at Peterborough, Lincoln, and Windsor, the Rectory of Yelden and the Vicarage of Wansley. There are also some Church Notes of Tydd St. Giles and of Sutton-in-the-Isle. "The Drainage of the Great Level" is still continued.

The Journal of the Ex Libris Society. Vol. XVI., Parts 6 and 7, June and July 1906. London: A. and C. Black, Soho Square.

THE June Part is absorbed in the account of the Exhibition and in the Bookplates of Mr. Julian Marshall, and the account of the sale is given. Mrs. Swinnerton Hughes's plate for Alfred Malony is well done, with a pretty wreath shown at the base; and there is a portrait of Sir Richard Tanzye, Kt., designed by himself, as a bookplate. There are also four new bookplates by Mr. Ern Hill, and a new Member, Mr. Ernest Paulus, also gives his portrait plate.

The July Part is rich in bookplates: the frontispiece is one inscribed Gerald Anthony Shaw-Lefevre St. John Mildmay, well engraved. There are also two others designed by Thomas Shepard, and there are sixteen bookplates designed by Mr. W. P. Barrett, all good examples, four of which shewing cupids nicely arranged and depicted. Mrs. Swinnerton Hughes also has a new plate for Mr. Anthony Fitz Henry Townshead delicately drawn, and Miss Jane E. Cook has some excellent examples. There are four plates given by Mr. F. G. Housé, as well as several exhibits by Mr. Charles E. Dawson in varied poses. Altogether a wonderful Part for examples of plates.

The Virginia Magazine of History and Biography. Vol. XIV., No. 1. July 1906. The Virginia Historical Society, Richmond, U.S.A.

THIS Part is almost given up to Journals of Council, Revolutionary Army Orders, Legislative Papers, Virginia Gleenings in England from wills dated 1616 to 1663, and Genealogical Notices of the Brent family with two illustrations, besides those of the Mallory and Brooke families.

The New York Genealogical and Biographical Record. Vol. XXXVII., No. 3. July 1906. New York: 226 West 58th Street.

THIS Part has an engraved Portrait of Mr. Isaac Townsend with a notice of him, and also an article on the Skillman family. There are records of the First Stanford Church at Bengall, together with tombstone inscriptions, and also those in the old graveyard at Salem. Henry Rowley and his descendants are given, as well as the Barnes family of Easthampton; Major Woodward and his descendants and some of De Grove posterity are next given with a chart shewing their great-grandchildren. An Editorial Note, the Society's Proceedings, Obituary and Notes conclude a very good genealogical Number.

(The Notes to this Pedigree will be given in the following Part.)

An Essington Memorial.*

IN turning over the leaves of a volume of armorial and genealogical notes made by myself many years since, I came upon the following Essington note, referring to Robert Essington (p. 2), from whom he descended not having been shewn by W. Segar, Garter; unfortunately I have quite forgotten in whose possession the painting was, and the following memoranda does not give the name, the value of recording which did not occur to me at the time:—

The inscription is taken from a painting on parchment, apparently from style and condition of about the date on it. The words in italics are in red paint in the original. The sketch represents, on a dark ground, within a gold bordure ornamented with sprigs of flowers and butterflies in colours, a tall altar-tomb or panel, on which is the inscription. On the top of this is the recumbent figure of a lady, supporting her head on her right hand, the elbow of that arm resting on a cushion; above her head is a female angel issuing from a cloud. In the other corner, above her feet, painted as issuing from a black circle, is the figure of Death, in one hand an hour-glass, in the other hand is an arrow with which he strikes at the lady. Over this is a pediment, also with an ornamental bordure. On this, within a chaplet, are the arms of Essington, namely, Sable, five fusils conjoined in cross or, in the first canton a crescent for difference; on either side a scroll with the following words: "Filius arachnes cyllenii factor paterque tanaquillæ." The size of the parchment is 21 by 13 inches. The inscription now given is line for line as on the painting:—

ROBERT ESSINGTON, CITIZEN AND LEATHERSELLER OF LONDON.

Will dated 5 Jan. 1568. Is sick but of perfect mind. To wife Jane the message in which he dwells and that next to it, in the parish of S. Lawrence, Old Jewry, London, for her life, and after to testator's daughters Susanna, Martha, and Catherine. The residue of his estate to be divided into three parts: one for his wife, one between his three daughters, and the third for payment of his debts and other bequests. To the Company of Leathersellers, of which he is a brother, £4 for a dinner at funeral. Servant Walter Webb to assist testator's wife to execute the will. Residue to said wife Jane, and she to be executrix. Proved 18 Jan. 1568. (P.C.C., 1, Sheffield.) Further probate on the death of Jane the relict granted 25 May 1576 to the daughter Martha.

When released he returned home and established a foreign banking business in London, employing as his four principal assistants William Knautler, Jean-Louis Miéville, Jean François Manbert, and Joseph Salkeld. On his retirement the two former continued the business under the style of Knautler and Miéville, while Messrs. Manbert and Salkeld went into partnership on the Stock Exchange. (See privately printed "Memoirs of the Family of Miéville," p. 54, by Sir Walter F. Miéville, K.C.M.G., 1902. Cf. also Thornbury and Madford's "Old and New London," vol. 1, p. 489.)

The earliest occurrences of the name in the Threadneedle Street Registers are found in 1686, at the marriage of François Brelind, native of Rochechouart, in Poitou, whose mother had been a de la Chauvette; and in 1695, when on 29 Sep. Jean de la Chauvette, native of Rochechouart, widower, married Elizabeth Bourgeois, native of Paris, and widow of Henri Bourcel.

On a Relief List (†) for 1705 appear "Louis la Chauvette, de Rochechouart, 40 ans, barbier, malade, et Marie sa femme, 40 ans, 4 enfans de 11, 9, et 7 ans, et l'aîné de 3 mois, Catholien."
In 1721, on 12 Aug., an Isaac de la Chauvette obtains a Patent for a cannon or piece of ordinance, also a machine to cure smoky chimneys, and several other new inventions. It may be added that M. M. Haag (C. La France Protestante, vi., 174) in their record of a Théodore de la Chauvette, who was Pasteur of Mariengron from c. 1656 to 1689, when the "temple" was closed, hazard a guess that he was grandfather to our Walloon Pastor. But it is believed of the latter that he received his call from Holland, and should be identified with the Louis baptized at Amsterdam 17 Nov. 1735, being son, by Margarete Monmet, of Louis, baptized also at Amsterdam 19 Jan. 1702, and there buried 6 Nov. 1779, being son of Pierre de la Chauvette and Anne Pallas or Palsay. Louis père was entered at Leyden University, appearing as "Ludovicus de la Chomette, Anstolod," 26 Oct. 1723, at the age of 22, and the precocious Louis fils, apparently in his 16th year, 9 Sep. 1751.

No less than four Pastors of the London Walloon Church had intervened between Louis de la Chauvette and his son-in-law, viz. Jean Romilly, appointed in 1766, who found our climate too trying for his delicate Swiss constitution, and returned to his native Geneva in 1769; Jacques Renaud Boulher, who hailed from Holland, though his father had served at the French Savoy Church, and his mother, mère de Combray, was of a refugee family settled in London; Jacques Georges Chantepie de la Sausseye, also appointed in 1769, found later as a Pasteur at the Hague; and Jean Levoite, appointed in 1778, afterwards Pasteur and Librarian at Geneva, where he published a volume of Sermons so late as 1815. The John Francis Miéville (1761—1840), who served for fifty-two years as Minister of the Canterbury Walloon Church, was a nephew of Mrs. Louis de la Chauvette.

Reviews.

Heraldic Badges. By A. C. FOX-DAVIES. London: John Lane, The Bodley Head, Vigo Street, W. 1906.

THIS is a small octavo volume with many illustrations, and being produced by Mr. Fox-Davies is a credential of its heraldic accuracy. It is divided into two parts: 1, Heraldic Badges, illustrated as a frontispiece by a photo showing a Beef-eater in full-dress uniform, and 2, A List of Badges, both parts being well illustrated, the first giving the badges of England, Scotland, Ireland, Wales, and the floral badge of the United Kingdom, and that of the Heir-Apparent; the Stafford badges are seventeen. The second Part gives the badges of most of the aristocracy, and six plates from "Prince Arthur's Book." There are also shewn the cypher of the King and Queen Victoria, and the seal of James II., shewing the ostrich feather, besides the Standard of Henry Percy, 6th Earl of Northumberland.

The volume is well got-up by Mr. Lane, and worth the small price of 5s. it is selling for.

A History of the Family of Cairnes or Cairns. By H. C. LAWLOR. London: Elliot Stock, 62 Paternoster Row, E.C. 1906.

THIS Work is a small quarto, well printed and got up as usual with Mr. Stock's work. The illustrations comprise several facsimiles of charters in colours, as well as pedigrees from 1300 of the Family of Carnys, Cairnes of Galloway in 1456, Cairnes of Monaghan from 1590, Cairnes of Donegal in 1610, and Cairnes of Orchardton in 1555, all well drawn out, and bringing the families to modern days. Besides wood engravings, the work is illustrated by upwards of twenty photographic portraits, from William Cairnes, M.P., in 1702, to that of Earl Cairns in 1867. There are also photographs of Orchardton Castle and the picturesque view of Rossmore Castle, beside one of Pilmuir House.

The work is well worthy of being in every gentleman's library, and the price of 21s. is reasonable, and we trust the sale will be all that is desired.

The Origin and Early History of the Family of Poë or Poe, with a discussion as to the true Ancestry of Edgar Allan Poe, the American Poet. By Sir EDMUND THOMAS BEWLEY, M.A., LL.D. Dublin: Ponsonby and Gibbs, University Press. 1906.

THIS is a very interesting book, and furnishes every evidence that the family of Poe of Nottinghamshire was connected with the American Poet, although he thought he was of German lineage. The family of Poe of the county of Tipperary, in a pedigree given in the Work, brings the last of the line to Samuel Jackson Poe in 1821, and in continuation we have the Poes of Donnybrook, etc., which run on to James Hill Poë, J.P., Captain in the 94th Regiment of Foot in 1871. No connection with Edgar Allan Poe is, however, shewn in the Pedigree, although it is surmised that the name was a variant of Poole, and then that of Powell.

Sir Edmund Bewley has, however, produced a book full of interest to the Irish line of the family of Poe, although it is not clear that the American Poet is connected with it.

The Virginia Magazine of History and Biography. Vol. XIV., No. 2. October 1906. The Virginia Historical Society, Richmond, U.S.A.

THE Journals of the Council of Virginia in 1737—1768 are still continued from the last Part, likewise the Revolutionary Army Orders in 1778—1779. There is a long account of the Germans in Madison County, and the Virginia Gleanings in England are interesting. The genealogical accounts of the Brent family are continued, also that of the Mallory family, and the Brooke family of Virginia; altogether the Part is fairly interesting.

Northern Notes and Queries. Vol. I., No. 4. October 1906. Newcastle-upon-Tyne :
M. S. Dodds, 61 and 63 Quayside.

THIS Part commences with Family Histories from the Halmote Books of the Bishops of Durham, which begin in 1349. Roger de Holme was the first rector, and was an ecclesiastic of some importance. There are various extracts from the books respecting the meeting of Bishops Skirlaw and Langley, and the fines exacted from delinquents. In Family Notices are given the deaths of several notable persons from 1723—1800, and the Part concludes with Queries and Replies.

The New York Genealogical and Biographical Record. Vol. XXXVII., No. 4. October 1906.
New York : 226 West 58th Street.

THIS Part commences with a full account of Mr. Russell Sage, Congressman and capitalist, who descended from David Sage, who at thirteen came with his mother from Wales in 1652. A very good portrait is given of him, and he died in July 1906. within two weeks of being 90. He married secondly a young graduate from the Seminary of Troy, and among his best bargains in life was his marriage with her, and as he said, "The tender care of a good wife is the finest thing in the world." There are good notices of the Rowley and Barnes families given, also of the Covert ancestry and the Skillmans of America, and a long account of the Records of the Reformed Dutch Church. General Charles W. Darling's portrait is accompanied by a short account of him, winning his commissions during the Civil War. The Part concludes with Index, Title, etc., to Vol. XXXVII.

The Journal of the Ex Libris Society. Vol. XVI., Parts 8 and 9, August and September 1906.
London : A. and C. Black, Soho Square.

THIS double Number begins with an excellently designed plate of George Sidney Herbert, and there is a curious engraving of J. B. Jacobs of Antwerp, with the date 1672 ; his portrait is given, with the background of a library shewn. The old plate of the President of St. John's College, Oxford, is also given, and that of Chetlam's Library, Manchester. In an article on the Julian Marshall sale there is an account of an heraldic MS., containing the bookplate of John Holland, dated 1585, which is given in this Part, and shews the arms with good mantling, the whole surrounded by a floral square frame. A list of Irish bookplates is given, also a similar list of Festoon plates ; there are four arms shewn for identification, numbered up to 610. Mr. A. J. Jewers has a separate paper on Wright Bookplates, illustrated by six examples, and there is again an excellent one, designed by Miss Lawson, given as a separate plate.

A Saunter through Kent with Pen and Pencil. Vol. VII. By CHARLES IGGLESDEN. Ashford :
Offices of the Kentish Express. 1906.

THIS is a very neat little book, bound in French grey, with numbers of small illustrations, excellently drawn, and interspersed with the text, and others as plates, with various views well grouped together. Cranbrook has an excellent account given of it, likewise Bilsington with two plates. Woodchurch follows, and has a good plate and several other engravings of it, interspersed with the text. Altogether the book has some very pleasing accounts given of each place, and being issued at the price of 2s. 6d. only, deserves a large sale, which we hope Mr. Igglesden will have.

. Books for Review and Notices of Forthcoming Works should be addressed to Messrs. Mitchell Hughes and Clarke at the Publishing Office, 140 Wardour Street, London, W.

Notes, etc., to the Pedigree of Goodwin.*

¹ Thomas Goodwin of Alkerton is described by Mr. Andrew Little in a list of benefactors of the Oxford Grey Friars as "a large sheepfarmer." ("The Grey Friars in Oxford," Oxford Historical Society, 1892, p. 109.) By his will Thomas Goodwin gives to the mother church of Lincoln twopence; to the high altar of Alkerton twopence; to the church of Alkerton a sheep; to the church of Horley a sheep; to the church of Sheunghton a strike of barley; to the chapel of Balliscotte a strike of barley; to the chapel of Ipwell a strike of barley; to the church of Hornton a strike of barley; and to the Grey Friars in Oxford two shillings and eight pence. The witnesses are William Lownde, parson, Richard Ludyatt, Richard Goodewyn, with others.

² Richard Goodwin of Alkerton by his will leaves "to Thomas my son my house and land being ij yerdeland and a quarter being in Aukerton with appurtenances and also my other howse being iij yardeslande and a quarter lying in Aukerton with all appurtenances so that my wife shall occupie with him the thirde part of my house being iij yerdelands and a quarter, but if she marrie she shall have the third part of the goodes and goo he waye from the howse, except the teame which my sonn Thomas shall have hole to himself."

³ Richard Goodwin, baptized at Alkerton 4 March 1556-7, may perhaps have settled in Wroxton.

Richard Goodwin. (One of this name = bar. at Wroxton 6 July 1632.)

Richard Goodwin, baptized at Wroxton 20 August 1581; buried there 29 July 1598.

John Goodwin, baptized at Wroxton 17 September 1585.

Alice, baptized at Wroxton 30 July 1589.

Thomas Goodwin, baptized at Wroxton 17 December 1591.

A Richard Goodwin was married at Wroxton, 1 July 1619, to Margaret Bartlett. These are the only Goodwin entries in Wroxton register before the Restoration.

⁴ The Goodwin pedigree in the Warwickshire Visitation, 1682 (MS. K. 3, fo. 94, at Herald's College; transcribed by Mr. J. Fetherston, F.S.A., and published in "Miscellanea Genealogica et Heraldica," New Series, Vol. II., p. 217) erroneously makes William Goodwin of Epwell (obit circa ann. 1638, at. circa 75) and his brothers John Goodwin, Minister of Rollwright, and Richard Goodwin of Shenington sons of "Robert Goodwin, sometime of the Middle Temple, London, Town Clerk of London-Derry and Secretary to the Council of the North in Ireland." Some account of this Robert Goodwin has appeared in "Notes and Queries," 10th series, vol. iv., 4 November 1905. The will of William Goodwin, eldest son of Thomas Goodwin of Alkerton, who acquired the manor of Epwell under his father's will, shews beyond all doubt that he is the William Goodwin of Epwell to whom the heralds have assigned a different parentage and ancestry. He leaves to his eldest son Thomas £50, owed to him, and £100 if he will relinquish claims on the estate of his other sons, William and Benjamin, and if not, twenty shillings; to his son John £200, and to "his son my godson" £10; to his daughter Alice Burden £50; to his daughter Hanna Hawten £5; to his daughter Anne Walker £20; to his brother John Goodwin and his sister Ann Chaplin twenty shillings each; to his brother Richard Goodwin and "his daughter my goddaughter" fifty shillings each; to "my kinsman" John Goodwin and his mother ten shillings each; to the poor of Epwell forty shillings; to the poor of Alkerton twenty shillings; to his wife £10 and household goods. His sons William and Benjamin are the executors and residuary legatees; Christopher Liddiatt and William Liddiatt of Alkerton are overseers and witnesses.

* Continued from p. 152.

The manor house at Epwell has been modernized, but still contains an open hearth and two mullioned windows of the Goodwin period, circa temp. Jac. I.

⁵ Richard Goodwin, baptized at Alkerton 10 April 1574, was apparently the ancestor of a considerable family of Goodwins settled in Shenington. (Shenington, separated from Alkerton only by a rivulet, was formerly in Gloucestershire, though wholly detached from that county.) A connected pedigree cannot be compiled, the register at Shenington for the period before 1721 having, as is stated in a note on the flyleaf of the first volume of the present register, been burned in a fire which destroyed the rectory and most of the village in 1721.

At Shenington there is the following inscription inside the tower wall :—

To the memory of MARY | late wife of JOHN GOOD | WYN the younger | daught | er of ROBERT HILL of Priors | Marston, Ge't, who having | lived seaven yeares
lov | ingly and contendedly | with her husband | departed this life the | first day of Febr: 1666, .Ætatis suæ 27.

Among the marriage licence allegations for the Archdeaconry of Oxford (Bodleian Library) occurs the following :—

John Goodwin of Shennington, Gloucester, and Margaret Clarson of Hornton in parish of Horley, 2 April 1670. Bondsmen, John Pettifor (also written Pettifher) and William Downes. At Banbury or Horley.

John Goodwin of Shennington (erroneously described at his son's matriculation, according to "Alumni Oxon.," as Sherrington) occurs in Oriel College admission book as the father of Nathaniel Goodwin, admitted Commoner 22 January 1691-2, aged 15. Nathaniel Goodwin matriculated 4 March following, and graduated B.A. 1695; M.A. from St. John's College, Cambridge, 1714. In 1715 Nathaniel Goodwin was curate of Souldern, a living in the patronage of St. John's College, Cambridge, the incumbent being Dr. Matthew Pearson, a non-resident.

Shenington register has the following entries :—

1724 July 5 Mary, wife of John Goodwin, buried.

1727-8 Feb. 25 Anne, daughter of John Goodwin and Ann his wife, baptized.

1737-8 Feb. 19 Jane Goodwin, buried.

⁶ John Goodwin of Combe, Campden, Gloucestershire, was presumably the father of three brothers—John Goodwin of Berington (Campden), Nathaniel Goodwin of Saintbury, and Thomas Goodwin of Combe—who were all disclaimed at the Gloucester Visitation, 1682-3. (See Rylands, "Disclaimers," p. 32, and "The Visitation of the County of Gloucester, 1682-3," edited by Fenwick and Metcalfe, p. 217.) "Martha, dau. of John Goodwin of Combe House, in the parish of Camden, Gloucester, et. circa 41," appears in the Visitation as wife of Thomas Bridges, alias Bruges, of Colesborne, and had issue.

John Goodwin, who was disclaimed in 1682-3, is presumably to be identified with John Goodwin who heads the following short pedigree, constructed from entries in "Alumni Oxon.":—

John Goodwin of Cambden, co. Gloucester, gent. =

Augustine Goodwin of Christ Church, Oxford (matriculated 4 March 1685-6, = aged 16), M.A.; Rector of Bourton-on-the-Hill, co. Gloucester, 1708; Vicar of Highfield, Hunts, 1724.

Anstin Goodwin of New College, Oxford
(matriculated 20 August 1715, aged 19),
B.C.L.

William Goodwin of Merton College, Oxford (matriculated 26 June 1719, aged 19), B.A.

According to an addition by Sir Thomas Phillipps to the pedigree of Battenon of Bourton-on-the-Hill (Visitation of 1682-3), Augustine Goodwyn, rector of Bourton-on-the-Hill, married Joyce, daughter of Robert Batteson of Milton, co. Oxon, and widow of Charles Yates (ob. 1690) of Campden, and had issue a daughter, Jane.

* Perhaps identical with :—

William Goodwin, buried 17 September 1740 = Elizabeth . . . , buried 6 June 1750.

Mary, baptized 3 April 1726. Hannah, baptized 18 January 1730-31.

The following inscriptions are on tombstones in a row in Alkerton Churchyard (S.W. of nave):—

1. In memory | of WILLIAM GOODWIN | who departed this | life Decem. 17 | 1733 | aged 78.
2. MARY | the wife of | WILLIAM GOODWIN was buried Jan. | y^e 31, 1717.
3. JOHN | son of WILL | IAM GOODWIN & | MARY his wife | Died Jan. 6, 1712-13 | aged one year | 3 months.
4. Inscription flaked off, but last two lines : “ was buried y^e 2nd | day of May 1715.”

There seems to be no means of identifying with certainty the Thomas Goodwin of Alkerton who heads the following short pedigree constructed from entries in “Alumni Oxon.”:—

Thomas Goodwin of Okerton (i.e. Alkerton), Oxon. =
Δ |

Joseph Goodwin of St. Alban Hall, Oxford (matriculated 3 May 1689, aged 16),⁷ M.A.; Vicar of Shipton-under-Wychwood 1706.

Joseph Goodwin, matriculated 16 March 1720-21, aged 17; Vicar of Shipton-under-Wychwood 1727; resigned 1773; died in March 1775. (Obituary notice in "Jackson's Journal," 23 March 1775, which states that he was near fifty years Rector and had no dispute with his parishioners.)

⁸ William Goodwin of Arlescot signs the Warwickshire Visitation (1682) pedigree. His eldest son William was then living unmarried, aged 26. Alkerton register has the following marriage entry of the next generation:—

1712 Aug. 28 Mr. William Goodwin of Arlescot in ye County of Warwick and Mrs. Abigail Bartlet of Tyso of ye same County married, having a Licence out of ye Archbishop's Court.

The Arlescote Goodwins are apparently now represented by the Loveday family of Williamscoate, near Banbury, and of Arlescote (cf. Loveday pedigree in Burke's "Landed Gentry"). It appears from an obituary notice of Dr. John Loveday in the "Gentleman's Magazine," May 1809, p. 395, that William Goodwin of Arlescote was twice married—firstly to Abigail Booth, and secondly to Abigail Bartlett—and that he had issue by both marriages. Anna Maria, his eldest daughter by his second wife, married John Loveday of Caversham, near Reading. Dr. John Loveday, their son, born 22 November 1742, married in 1777 Anne Taylor Loder, only daughter and heiress of William Taylor Loder of Williamscot, and great-granddaughter of William Goodwin by his first wife.

⁹ Thomas Goodwin of Radway signs the Warwickshire Visitation (1682) pedigree. His eldest son Thomas, then living, aged 24, is doubtless the Thomas Goodwin of Radway whose son Thomas matriculated at Oxford (St. Alban's Hall) 28 March 1705, aged 17 (see "Alumni Oxon.").

¹⁰ Richard Goodwin of the Lea leaves to his sons Nathaniel and John, after his wife's death, all his house and land in Bodicote. ". . . Goodwyn of Bodicott," disclaimed at Oxford in September 1634 (Harleian Society, vol. v., p. 333), cannot with certainty be identified with this Richard Goodwin, as another family of Goodwins were settled in that place. A Richard Goodwin of Bodicote died in 1581, leaving issue. Will dated 8 July, proved (Consist. and Arch. Oxon.) 23 September 1581.

OTHER NORTH OXFORDSHIRE GOODWINS.

Families of Goodwins were settled in North Oxfordshire in the sixteenth century in many places besides Alkerton and Horley, e.g., Adderbury, Bodicote, Bourton, Drayton, Sibford Gower, Swalcliffe, and Wilmerseote. It is often difficult to distinguish between their descendants and the descendants of the Alkerton Goodwins.

Devereux and Christian Goodwin, whose son William was buried at Swalcliffe 17 August 1623, were possibly the parents of the Brett Goodwin who heads the following pedigree, constructed from later entries in Epwell register. Christian, wife of Devereux Goodwin, was buried at Swalcliffe 19 November 1632:—

Brett Goodwin of Epwell, buried 18 May 1678. = Hanna . . . , died 6 December, Will dated 3 April, proved (P.C.C., 75, Reeve) buried 10 December 1694, aged 81. M.I.

Mary, baptized 18 July 1649; married at Swal- cliffe, 20 Nov. 1673, Richard Ellis of St. Mary Abchurch, citi- zen and grocer; mar. lic. (Vicar General) dated 12 November 1673.	Brett Good- win, baptized 14 August 1651; died 2 April 1715. M.I.	Ann Hacker, mar. at Swalcliffe 7 July 1673; died 12 November, buried 13 November 1699, aged 45. M.I. Mary, bap- tized 26 Sep. 1682.	Hanna, baptized 21 March 1684-5.	Brett Goodwin, baptized 26 July 23 June 1686.	Christian, baptized 26 July 1691.	Ann, baptized 20 April 1694.

There are the following Goodwin inscriptions in Epwell Church:—

In chancel, under south wall, flat stone:—Here lyeth Interred The | Body of
Mrs. ANNE GOODWIN | The wife of Mr. BRETT GOODWIN | Junior, Who departed
This | Life The 12 Day of November | Beinge ye 45th yeare of Her Age | Anno Domini 1699.

Chancel, in centre, flat stone:—Here Lyeth The | Body of Mrs. HANNAH |
GOODWIN, The Wife | of Mr. BRETT GOODWIN | Who Departed This | Life The 6th Day of | December, In The 81 | Yeare of Her Age | Anno Domini 1694.

Chancel, inside altar-rails, flat stone:—Here | lyeth the Body | of Mr. BRETT
GOODWIN | who departed this life April ye 2nd Anno Dom. | 1715, Ætatis suæ 64.

Two illegible stones in the chancel might be of Goodwins. One in the nave, opposite south door, is of a Goodwin, but the Christian name and dates are all gone.

The Goodwins of Hornton were probably closely allied with the Alkerton and Horley Goodwins. A connected pedigree cannot be compiled, as the early Hornton register has been lost. (In the present register baptisms begin 1703, marriages 1723, and burials 1704.)

William, son of William Goodwin "of Horneton," was baptized at Alkerton
24 June 1622.

Among the marriage licence allegations for the Archdeaconry of Oxford (Bodleian Library) occurs the following:—

William Goodwin of Hornton and Elizabeth Harris of Banbury, widow.
4 August 167[?]3]. At Banbury.

The Bishops' transcripts contain the following Hornton burials:—

1696 July 18 Thomas, s. of John Goodwin.
1699-1700 Feb. 28 William Goodwin, a sojourner.
1729 Nov. 8 John Goodwin, deacon.

The present register contains the following burials:—

1727 Dec. 2 John Goodwin, generosus.
1740 Dec. 31 Mary, wife of John Goodwin.

A brass on the chancel floor at Hornton bears the following inscription:—

Anna uxor Gulielmi Goodwin Generosi | obit primo die Apr. Anno D'ni 1698 |
Ætatis suæ 75.

Some at least of the following entries in parish registers almost certainly relate to the Alkerton family :—

Pedigree of the Family of Le Heup, etc.*

WILLS, ETC.

ISAAC LE HEUP of Gunthorpe, co. Norfolk, Esq. Will dated 6 Dec. 1745. My daughters Elizabeth and Mary le Heup and their heirs for, as tenants in common, all manors, lands, tenements, etc., which have been purchased with part of the £50,000 mentioned in my marriage settlement. Other estate shall be purchased with the remainder, and shall be conveyed to them and their heirs. To Elizabeth my wife the rest of my manors for her life; and after her decease to my said two daughters, subject to the payment of my debts. I give the stewardship of my estates to Philip Case. Wife to be sole executrix. To be buried at Gunthorpe, near my son, in most private manner, and carried by my tenants to the grave. Proved at London 4 May 1747 by executors. (P.C.C., 131, Potter.)

3 July 1750. Administration of said will, unadministered by Elizabeth Le Heup the widow, was granted to Dame Mary Williams, wife of Sir Edward Williams, Bart., one of the daughters of said Isaac Le Heup.

THOMAS LE HEUP. To be buried without pomp in the church of Hessel, in the vault where my dear wife lays. To the French Hospital at London £100. To the poor of Hessel £10. To Tabrian the gardener £5. To the eldest son of Bouneau £5. To Mr. Jean Tanqueray at Jersey £20. To Dr. Vitas his bond which he owes me. To my son Isaac Le Heup his own picture with that of Mr. Dewitt. To my cousin Mrs. Magdaleine du Bourdien silver plate. To my son Michael Le Heup his own picture and plate. To my son Peter Le Heup all pictures not disposed of, with books, press, and books. To said Mrs. Dubourdien the rest of the furniture of my house. I except my iron chest and scritoire with deeds and Exchequer Orders, and all my papers. Sons Michael and Peter to be executors. They to raise £20,000 for uses named in endorsement upon the back of my son Isaac's marriage articles. This 10th Aug. 1720. The rest of my estate to said sons equally. Done at Marybone 25 Nov. 1736.

Probate 12 Jan. 1736 by executors. (P.C.C., 8, Wake.)

NICHOLAS GAMBIER of St. Mary-le-Bow, London, gent. Will dated 12 April 1723. To every one of my children £10. By reason of considerable estate received in right of my dear wife Hester† Gambier, and having entire confidence in her prudence and in her love to all my children I devise all the residue of my estate to her to dispose of as she shall think fit. Witnesses: Robert Caille, Gideon Lamberarne.

Prob't 19 Martii 1723 jur Hesteræ Gambier, Relicta et Ex. dicti Defuncti. (P.C.C., Bolton.)

MAGDALEN LE HEUP, widow of Michael Le Heup, Esq., in the county of Suffolk. Will dated 4 May 1775. To my dear dau.-in-law Elizabeth Le Heup £20 a year during her life, and to my dear son Henry Le Heup all that I am possessed with in the public funds, and everything else belonging to me. In case above-mentioned son dies unmarried, then the whole of all I have to return to my said daughter Elizabeth Le Heup.

On the 22nd Feb. 1776, administration of the goods (with will annexed) of Magdalen Le Heup of the parish of St. Margaret's, Westminster, was granted to the Rev. Henry le Heup, Clerk, the son of the deceased, there being no executor named.

On the 14th May 1778, administration of said will, left unadministered by the Rev. Henry Le Heup, Clerk, since also deceased, was granted to Elizabeth Le Heup, spinster, daughter of deceased. (P.C.C., 82, Bellas.)

Adm'on granted 23 Jan. 1838 to Mary Susanna Tintling (wife of Charles Stubbs Tintling), sister of the deceased, who is described as of Bury St. Edmunds and of York Place, Mile End Road. No Suffolk lands named. Very short will. (P.C.C., 37, Nicholl.)

Wills of CHARLES LOUIS MONTOLIEU, 1775; HENRY MAURICE, after 1736; SIR EDWARD WILLIAMS, 1749; Rev. HENRY LE HEUP, 1766; MARTIN COCKSEGE, 1827, could not be found.

PETER LE HEUP of Albemarle Street in the parish of St. George, Hanover Square, Esq. Will dated 24 Nov. 1774. To be buried in Mordon Church in Sarry. Monument to be erected there, value of £200, the Marble Busto in my Dining Room to be put upon it. To my dau^r Mary, wife of Richard Garth of Mordon, Esq^r, and her heirs, my freehold stone house in Albemarle Street, and £1000 capital Old South Sea Annuities, and all my pictures, furniture, and plate (except those herein excepted). I am entitled to the reversion of lands and tenements in Ashwell and Henxworth and elsewhere in the counties of Hertford and Bedford, in which I include lands formerly belonging to me, which were settled upon trustees on the marriage of my son Peter Le heup, Jun^r, Esq^r, and which by his and his brother Thomas' death without issue are become absolutely vested in me, subject only to answer to the widow of my said son Peter such sums as may be wanting to pay her yearly Jointure. I do grant said lands unto Michael Le heup, Jun., now a Student at Cambridge, son of my nephew Michael Le heup, Esq^r, of Hessett in Suffolk, and the heirs of his body. And for want of such issue then to my grandsons Lewis and Thomas Montolieu as joint tenants and to their heirs. The persons who shall, after my death, become entitled to such estates in Hertfordshire and Cambridgshire shall be for ever freed from paying any part of the Jointure to my daughter in law M^{rs} Sarah Le heup. Deficiencies shall be paid out of my personal estate. I earnestly recommend my said grand nephew to propose a marriage between him and one of my grand daughters, either Montolieu or Garth.* In case he does this I give him £2000 to be paid after such marriage. To my granddau^r Clara, the wife of Owen Putland Meyrick, Esq., formerly Clara Garth, £1000 for her sole use, she to appoint trustees for that purpose. To my dau^r Mary Garth £1000 Capital Old South Sea Annuities, to be transferred to her own name. I appoint said Richard Garth and Owen Putland Meyrick and my grand dau^r Mary Clara Montolieu and Charlotte Gabrielle Montolieu executors of this will. To the poor of Morden in Surry £20. To St George's Hospital, Hyde Park Corner, £100. To Michael Le heap of Hessem, Esq., £100. To my grandson Lewis Montolieu my swords, Books, and Gilt-peace. To Mary Clara Montolieu the chest of plate given me by my late son. Residue of estate to be laid out in land. Mortgages in St Kits (£7000) and Monsarrat. Residue of estate to executors to pay legacies.

Codicil, dated 28 Feb. 1776. Son in law Lewis Charles Montolieu, Esq^r, is dead. Inadequate provision for his two sons Lewis and Thomas. I give each of them £5000 apiece if living at my decease. I appoint my grand son in law William Lowndes of Brightwell in Oxfordshire, Esq^r, an additional executor.

Codicil, dated 24 April 1776. Since executing my will, my grand dan^s, Elizabeth Garth of Morden in Surry and Mary Clara Montolieu of Albemarle St., have been married, the first to William Lowndes Stone, Esq., of Ashwood in Bucks and Brightwell in Oxfordshire, Esq., and the other to Alexander Murray, Esq., nephew to Lord Elibank. I have already contributed to each of their portions £4000. Now I do revoke all the bequests left them by my last will and their distributive share of the Residue of my estates. And I do order my executors to pay the Residue undisposed among the rest of my grandchildren that shall be unmarried at the time of my death in equal shares. I confirm the appointment of Mary Clara Murray, my granddaun^r, to be one of my executors. Executors shall lay out £1000 upon special trust as my said grand dan^r shall direct by writing without being subject to the debts of her husband. And I make similar provision for my grand dan. Elizabeth Lowndes Stone.

Codicils follow with smaller bequests to servants, etc. 23 May 1777, Ann Montolieu of St. George, Hanover Square, spinster, and Alexander Murray of the same parish, Esquire, depose to the handwriting of the will, etc.

This will was proved at London 28 May 1777 by the oaths of Richard Garth, Esq., Owen Patland Meyrick, Mary Clara Murray (formerly Montolieu), wife of Alexander Murray, Esq., Charlotte Gabrielle Montolieu, spinster, the granddaughters of the deceased and executors named in his will, and William Lowndes, Esq., the grandson and executor named in the first codicil, to whom administration was granted, etc. (P.C.C., 224, Collier.)

HORATIO WALPOLE of Woolterton, co. Norfolk, Esq., one of the Tellers of H.M. Exchequer, and one of H.M. Privy Council. Will dated 10 May 1748. Settlements on marriage of my eldest son Horatio Walpole, Esq., with the R^t Hon. the Lady Rachel Cavendish for 500 years. Trustees to raise such sums of money as I should will. I now direct said John Fowle, Francis Capper, and Thomas Nutthall to raise £30,000, they to pay my wife £500 immediately. I give her my furniture, etc., in my house at the end of King Street, Westminster, where I dwell, and said message for life. To my three younger sons, Richard, Thomas, and Robert, £4500 each. To my dan^r Mary, Henrietta Louisa, and Ann, £5500 each on day of marriage or when 21. My Marriage articles with my now wife. She to be guardian of my childⁿ. To eldest son furnitnre, etc., about my Mansion House at Woolterton during life. My Gold Cup, made out of the Medal and Chain given me by the States General of the United Provinces (where I was) Embassadour, to eldest son for life. It to go with my estate as an Heir Loom.

In Codicil, 10 March 1748, names Mary and his two other daughters. Mem.—26 May 1750. Paid this day £5000 to my son Thomas Walpole, being legacy contained in my will. He has given receipt. Mem.—27 Nov. 1751. Similar paym^t to Rich^d my son. Gifts, 1755, to Tho^s and Rich^d his sons.

Further Codicil. Entail of Estates to the heirs males of his eldest son Horatio Walpole. Issue male of his body failing, estates to Thomas Walpole my son. His issue male ultimately failing, estates to Richard W., my son, and heirs male. These failing, estates to Robert W., my son, and heirs male [much verbiage]. Male issue of his sons and their male issue failing, estates to the Right Hon^{ble} George, Earl of Orford, and after his decease to his heirs male in like manner.

In default of these, estates to use of Sir Edward Walpole, K.B., for life and his heirs males. These failing, to the use of Horatio Walpole, brother of Sir Edward, for life and his heirs males. In default, to the use of the Right Hon^{ble} George Cholmondeley, Esq^r, commonly called Lord Malpas, eld. son and heir of George, Earl of Cholmondeley, and his heirs males of his body. In default, to the Rev. D^r Horatio Hamond, 3^d son of s^d Anthony by Susan his w. (The descendants of Robert Hamond, deceased, 2^d son of Anthony, just omitted by me I. I. M. by mistake.) Failing issue male of D^r Horatio Hamond, estates to pass to my own right heirs. All this, however, upon condition that the descendants of George, Horatio, and Edward Townshend, or of Richard, Robert, and Horatio Hamond, do assume and use the Sir-name of Walpole, and bear the Arms of Walpole, after they come into the Estate. If possible they to obtain Act of Parliament to that effect. Signed this 31 March 1756.

This will was proved 21 Feb. 1757 by the Oath of the R^t Hon^{ble} Horatio, Lord Walpole, Baron Walpole of Woolterton, son of deceased, and sole excctor. (P.C.C., 70, Herring.)

A Genealogical Puzzle.

TO THE EDITOR OF "MISCELLANEA GENEALOGICA ET HERALDICA."

My great-great-grandfather James Stapleton, then living at Hounslow, was married at Epsom Church to an Epsom woman, by licence, on 27 September 1763. His son, my great-grandfather, in 1845, had occasion to procure a certificate of the Epsom Parish Register entry. According to this certificate, the woman's name occurs first as Mary Stoughton, and second (where she makes her mark by way of signature) as Mary Soughton, or one letter shorter. This variation would be insignificant, only it happens that my great-grandfather (who surely ought to have known the maiden name of his own mother) appears to have quoted it as Southgate when applying by letter for the certificate, as, in the course of an accompanying letter from the contemporary Vicar of Epsom (1845), the latter wrote: "In the careless manner in which the registers were formerly kept, I have little doubt the name was entered for Southgate, especially as the party seems to have been unable to write her name. There can, however, be little doubt as to the parties being those whose certificate you require." An obvious way of finally settling the question of the correct form of the surname was to obtain a copy of the marriage licence, dated one day previous to the marriage. But, strange to say, this move resulted in a worse muddle than ever, for there it occurs as Mary Fletcher. Finally, in the reasonable hope that the woman was a native of Epsom, the parish register for the year of her birth (1740) and thereabouts was searched for a baptismal record under any of the above names, but without result. I may add that the eldest son of the contracting parties, Edward Stapleton, a West India merchant and a retired ensign of the 11th W.I. Regiment, owned real estate at Dorking in 1817, when he died abroad. As he belonged to a Nottinghamshire family, it is just possible this was inherited through his mother.

¹ It appears that he had m. firstly at S. Beuet's, Paul's Wharf, 24 July 1726, Elizabeth Ward.

² The pedigree as here presented is incomplete. It was desired to keep it within the compass of four pages, and its primary object has been to trace the descent of the two pairs of brothers who joined the Directorate of the French Hospital. The descendants, therefore, now extinct in the male line of the elder brother, John Teulon, are not recorded here.

³ The Rochers were connected with the families of Casalet, Lapiere, and Le Heup.

⁶ Among Churches built by him, to name only those in or around London, were, at Bermondsey, St. Paul's and St. Stephen's; in Lambeth, St. Andrew's and St. Thomas'; in N. Woolwich, St. Mark's; in his native Greenwich, St. Paul's and St. Peter's; in Camden Town, St. Thomas'; and at Hampstead, St. Paul's and St. Stephen's; while he recast those of St. Andrew's, Holborn, St. Mark's, Kennington, and St. George the Martyr in Bloomsbury. His most important domestic work, perhaps, is to be found at Tetworth Court in Gloucestershire, and Bestwood in Nottinghamshire, built for Lord Ducie and the Duke of St. Alban's ("Builder," 17 May 1873.)

^{} No evidence is forthcoming either to confirm or disprove the tradition that the patriarch of the Irish family of this name, Pierre Teulon, who settled at Cork, and Antoine were brothers. The books of the French Churches, which existed both at Greenwich and Cork, are unappily lost. A great-grandson of Pierre's, Col. Charles Teulon of the 26th Foot, was in the interesting list of those of French name who fought at Waterloo.

The name is, or was, further to be found in Switzerland, borne by the descendants of François, a belated refugee from Ganges, whose son, Jacques, m. at Geneva in 1757 Françoise Antoinette Bigot, from Chartres, and left issue.

ASTON OF ASTON, CO. CHESTER.

It appears from "The Complete Baronetage" that Sir Willoughby Aston was son and heir of Sir Thomas Aston of Aston, co. Chester, 1st Baronet (creation 1628), a zealous supporter of Charles I., in whose service he lost his life, by Anne, widow of the Hon. Anchtel Grey, daughter and coheir of Sir Henry Willoughby, Bart. (so created 1611), of Riseley, co. Derby. Sir Willoughby Aston was born 5 July 1640; succeeded to the baronetcy 24 March 1645-6; aged 22 in 1662; and was Sheriff of Cheshire 1680-81 and 1690-91. He built a magnificent mansion at Aston, a short distance from the old residence. He married in or before 1665 Mary, daughter of John Offley of Madeley, co. Stafford, by Mary, daughter of Thomas Broughton of Broughton in that county. He died 14 December 1702, and was buried at Aston. M.I. His widow, who was born 3 February 1649-50, and by whom he had eight sons and thirteen daughters, died 22 January 1711-12, and was buried at Aston. M.I.

Genealogical Notes and Queries.

QUAKERS IN IRELAND.

TO THE EDITOR OF "MISCELLANEA GENEALOGICA ET HERALDICA."

SIR,

Mr. C. M. Tenison's article, "Quakers in Ireland," Vol. I., Fourth Series, p. 3, needs several corrections, chiefly in the matter of dates.

Nine at least of the errors in dates are due, no doubt, to the mistaken idea that amongst members of the Society of Friends "first month" always denoted January, and "twelfth month" December. Prior to 1752, when the civil year began on the 25th March, March was called by them "first month," and February "twelfth month." When the alteration in the commencement of the year, and the change of style, were introduced by the Act 24 George II., c. 23, an Epistle on the subject, dated 6th of 7th month (September) 1751, was sent from the Meeting for Sufferings in London to the Quarterly and Monthly Meetings of Friends in Great Britain, Ireland, and America, to ensure that in the records of the Society the necessary changes should be made in the designation of the months (Gough's "History of the People called Quakers," vol. iv., pp. 370 et seq.); and as from the beginning of the year 1752 January became "first month," and December "twelfth month." Notice of this change was recorded in some of the local Registers. For example, in the old Mountmellick Register, indorsed "Births and Burials from 1650 to 1798," in which some of the deaths mentioned in Mr. Tenison's article are registered, this entry is found:—

"N.B.—In the year 1752, the two months which had before been called the 11th and 12th months (viz. those commonly called January and February) were ordered thenceforward to be called 1st and 2^d months."

Owing to the misapprehension above referred to, all the dates in Mr. Tenison's article prior to 1752, in which a month is mentioned, are erroneous. They have been translated from the entries in Registers of the Society of Friends into ordinary nomenclature on the assumption that "first month" was "January" and "twelfth month" December.

The following corrections in the dates of deaths should consequently be made:—

- P. 3, John Barcroft, died 24 January 1723, instead of November.
 Mungo Bewley, died 3 May 1747, instead of March.
 George Bewley, died 11 February 1749, instead of December.
 John Clibborn, died 23 July 1705, instead of 22 May.
 P. 4, Joseph Gill, died 28 January 1741, instead of November.
 Ellen, wife of Daniel Bewley, died August 1730, instead of June.
 P. 5, Jane, wife of John Gee, died 28 December 1739, instead of October.
 P. 6, John Watson, died 19 March 1710, instead of January.
 P. 7, Thomas Wight, died December 1724, instead of September.

In all these cases the correct dates have been obtained from the original registers or transcripts in the Registry of the Society of Friends, Eustace Street, Dublin.

Mr. Tenison gives the death of Elizabeth Barcroft (née Tibbs) as 12 July 1740, and those of George Rooke and his wife Joan (née Cooke) as 7 Dec. 1742 and 19 July 1737. I was not able to find the entries of these deaths in the Eustace Street Registry, in the time at my disposal, but without doubt a similar mistake has been made in the dates printed.

The following further corrections should be made in the article :—

P. 3, John Barcroft's residence was " Arkhill " and not " Arkill," and his age at his death was 59, not 60.

Thomas Bewley's residence was Woodhall, not " Woodhull."

Mary Bewley was married to Thomas Wilson at Haltcliffe Hall, Cumberland, in " 1694 " and not " 1695."

Mungo Bewley was " 69 " not " 70 " at the time of his death, and his son Thomas Bewley, who was born 1 April 1719, and died 5 March 1795, was " 75 " and not " 73 " when he died.

George Bewley of Cork married Blessing Fennell at Youghal on 16 April 1713, and not in " 1712."*

P. 5, Joseph Inman's residence should be " Ballybrittain."

Some of these corrections are trifling, but in genealogical matters one cannot be too accurate.

Faithfully yours,

EDMUND T. BEWLEY.

40 Fitzwilliam Place, Dublin.

Adrian Stokes.†

I should be much pleased to receive any information as to the above, his forbears, his brother William, and descendants, in short anything about his family.

In 1861 the Archæological Institute met at Peterborough, when the Rev. the Hon. D. Finch exhibited at Oakham Rectory, co. Rutland, a portrait of Stokes and the Duchess of Suffolk, which in 1868 was exhibited at South Kensington, and was said to have been painted by Lucas de Heere. Where is this picture now, and has it ever been engraved?

Mr. G. E. Cokayne (Clarendon), sole executor to the late Colonel Chester (that famous and indefatigable genealogist, always most courteously ready to give information to those who sought it), has given the present writer permission to print the following letter. It is addressed to him, and is in his usual neat script.

124 SOUTHWARK PARK ROAD,

LONDON, S.E.

1 March 1880.

DEAR SIR,

The Duchess of Suffolk died too early for my " Abbey Registers," and hence does not appear in my volume.

The inscription on her elaborate monument is in both Latin and English. The former does not mention her second husband, but the latter is as follows :—

" Here lieth the LADIE FRANCES,
Dyches of Southfolke, daughter to CHARLES BRANDON, Dvke of Southfolke, and MARIE y^e Frenche
Qvene : first wife to HENRIE
Dvke of Southfolke and after to ADRIAN Stock, Esquier."

* The authorities for the corrections in the Bewley items will be found in my book "The Bewleys of Cumberland and their Irish and other descendants." (Dublin, 1902.)

† Communicated by ARTHUR SCHOMBERG, Esq.

There are several shields of arms on the monument, those on the sides containing only the coats of her own family. That on the west end is as follows: Quarterly: 1 and 4, Ermine, three bars humetté azure charged with ears of corn or, viz., four on the first and second, and three on the third; 2 and 3, Or, a lion rampant gules double-queued naved; impaling BRANDON with quarterings.

The above coats are those of Stock or Stokes. I cannot answer for the blazon, which I find given only in Neale and Brayley's "History of the Abbey," but the tinctures seem to agree with the engraving of the monument printed by Dart. Certainly he makes the field in 2 and 3, Or, and not Sable.

Over this shield are the figures "1563," the date when Adrian Stokes erected the monument. She died in November 1559. Stokes is spoken of by Fox and other writers as a "Country gentleman" who married her when she was in distress and disgrace.

I do not find a monument for Adrian Stokes in St. George's Chapel, Windsor, though he may have been buried there.

I have the will of the Duchess, dated 9 Nov. 1559, in which she describes herself as "Lady Frances, Duchess of Suffolke, wife to Adryane Stokes, Esquire." She merely leaves all her estate real and personal to Adrian Stocke, her said husband. . . . She died in November and not December, as is usually said.

I have also a marriage licence granted by the Bishop of London, 10 April 1572, for Adrian Stokes, Esq., and Dame Anne Throgmorton of London, widow. I presume this was the same, who seems to have had a passion for marrying distinguished widows. This Dame Ann Throgmorton, I find, was a daughter of Sir Nicholas Carew of Beddington, Surrey, and widow of Sir Nicholas Throgmorton, Sewer to Henry VIII., afterwards Chief Butler of England, Chamberlain of the Exchequer and Ambassador to France, who died in London 12 Feb. 1570-1 of the Plague, and was buried in St. Catharine Cree Church.

The will of a Dame Anne Throgmorton, probably hers, was proved in 1587. I have not got it, but it would probably shew whether Adrian Stokes was still living.

I see, though, just here that this second marriage is quoted in "Notes and Queries" First Series, xii., 452, where it is also stated that Adrian Stokes died 30 Nov. 1586, leaving his brother William, aged 60, his heir.

I am afraid that I can add no more to his history from my own resources, and I cannot get out to make any investigation.

Very truly yours
Jos: L. Chester

Dingley, in his "History from Marble," gives the following inscription on the above monument, which he describes as of alabaster:—

NIL DECUS AUT Splendor, nil regia nomina prosunt, Splendida divitiis nil juvat ampla domus.
Omnia fluxerunt virtutis (?) sola remansit,
Gloria Tartareis non abolenda regis.
Nupta Duci prius est, uxor post Armigeri STOKES,
Funere nunc valent, consociata Deo.

NOTE.—On p. 30 of "Miscell. Gen. et Her.," Second Series, Vol. II., it is stated that an Adam de Stokke witnessed a deed, etc., in 1376. Mr. A. B. Beaven, who has compiled a Register of London Aldermen, now in the press, points out this as an error. There was no Lord Mayor at that date, there was no Lombard Ward, but there was of Langborn, whose Alderman was Adam de St. Ive, preceded by an Adam de Bury. The statement was copied some years ago by the writer from one of the old deed sale catalogues issued by Mr. James Coleman of Tottenham.

TESTAMENT OF ADRIAN STOCKES, ESQ.

Dated 15 April A.D. 1585. Adrian Stockes of Beawmanor, co. Leicester, Esquire, desires to be buried in the chapel of Beawmanor (if he die there) without any pomp or solemnity "as yt hath bene used in the Papistes tyme." He leaves to his wife Lady Anne Throckmorton his manor and lordship of Langacre, co. Devon, to hold to her and her heirs for ever, as he has already given the same by deed; all his goods, furniture, etc., in his house in London and at Brigstocke Park, co. Northants, as expressed in an Inventory signed by him; the lease and interest in his house at Leicester and the goods there, and all parcels of plate and goods at Beawmanor as specified in an Inventory. To Elizabeth Throgmorton a bed in the Dutches Chamber at Beawmanor with the furniture to be given to her on her marriage, and if she die before hand the same to go to Nicholas Throgmorton his wife's youngest son. To Robert Throgmorton his horse called "Grey Goodyeare," and to Sir George Hastings, Knight, his horse called "Grey Babington." The rest of his goods and chattels after payment of his debts, legacies, and funeral expenses, he leaves to his brother William Stockes, whom he makes his sole executor. His bequests to his said wife Dame Anne Throgmorton to be utterly void if she implead or molest his said brother William Stockes, Robert Aprice or any others concerning the lease or estate for a term of years in the interest of Beaumanor or any part thereof. He appoints Sir Walter Myldmaye, Kt., of the Privy Council, and Sir George Hastings, Knight, the supervisors of his will, giving them each a piece of plate to the value of £10. He appoints any schedule or writing to be annexed to the will and signed by him to be good and to be taken as his last will. Debts owing for "the payment of the thre children portions," the principal £2000 and the interest of the same for twelve years ending 25 April A.D. 1583 being £1700.

She leaves to her son Thomas Throkmorton his part of the £500 which remains in the Queen's hands or of so much thereof as shall be obtained. She makes her son Arthur Throkmorton her sole executor, with her brother Sir Francis Carewe and Mr. William Hughes, overseers. Witnesses: Francis Carew, William Hughes, John Prestwicke, Robert Margettes, William Sargoint.

Proved at London 10 November A.D. 1587. (P.C.C., 74, Spencer.)

TESTAMENT OF WILLIAM STOKES.

William Stokes, late of Bewmanner, co. Leicester, Esq., declared his will nuncupative in these words or the like, viz.: "I bequeath to my Lady Hastings, wife to Sir George Hastings, knight, to enjoy after my decease all the furniture and hangings in the great chamber of Bewmanner house, and in the chamber called the 'Duches Chamber,' and in the chamber over the parlour in the said house." And speaking to Sir George Hastings, now Earl of Huntington, then present, said: "Sir George, I do make you and my Lady your wife my executors, to dispose of my goods after my decease at your pleasure amongst my kindred and servants, and I desire you to have a care of them." And afterwards at sundry times he acknowledged that he had made his will nuncupative and had ordained (as above). At which premises William Stokes was of perfect mind, being present divers good and credible witnesses.

Proved at London 5 February 1596-7 on the oath of Thomas Browne, public notary, proxy for Lord George Hastings, Earl of Huntington, and Dame Dorothy his wife. (P.C.C., Cobham, fol. 15.)

Memorandum that William Stokes of Bewmanner, co. Leicester, Esquire, deceased, a little before his death being certified by some about him that it was reported that he had made his will and made M^r Belgrave and M^r Sapootes his executors, he presently declared that Belgrave and Sapootes should not be his executors, nor that any will should stand wherein they were named executors, and that they should not have anything to do with his goods, and declared his last will nuncupative in form following: He bequeathed all his goods to his kinsfolk and servants amongst them, and made the Rt. Hon. George, Earl of Huntington, his executor in the presence of dyvers witnesses.

Proved, and by definitive sentence approved, 17 June 1602 on the oath of Richard Goodall, notary public, proxy for the Earl of Huntington. With sentence for the validity of the will. (P.C.C., 39, Montague.)

INFORMATION REQUIRED IN CONNECTION WITH THE FAMILY OF PASTON.

EXPLANATORY DATA RELATING THERETO.

Nicholas Paston was Rector of King Swinford, County Stafford, 1603—1621. In the latter year he was buried there. He married Joyce Maunsell, who was living 1612.

William Paston, brother of Nicholas, was living at Hales Owen, co. Salop, September 1607.

John Paston, brother of Nicholas, was living at King Swinford 2nd March 1621, and died 1636.

Edward Paston, son of the said John Paston, baptized 30th November 1617. He was Vicar of Hales Owen, co. Salop, 1653—1660, in which year he was ejected by the Westminster Assembly. He died 1697.

John Paston, son of the said Edward Paston, was Rector of Welford-on-Avon, co. Gloucester, 1679 to 1689, when he died. He married Elizabeth Rawlins, fourth child, eldest daughter and ultimate coheirress of Samuel Rawlins of Marston Sicea, co. Gloucester, Gentleman, brother of Thomas Rawlins, Sergeant-at-Law, of Dorsington Manor, co. Gloucester.

The Paston arms, as engraved on a silver tankard dated 1564, at one time the property of the said John Paston or his son Samuel Paston (who married Anne Mary Rawlins, only daughter of Edmund Rawlins of Pophills House, Salford Priors, co. Warwick, son of William Rawlins of Salford Priors, brother of Samuel and Thomas), are identical with the arms of the family of Paston of Norfolk and Horton Manor, Gloucestershire. The shield on the tankard represents the following coats:—

PASTON—Six fleurs-de-lis in pile, three, two, and one, a chief indented; impaling RAWLINS—Three swords barways, their points towards the sinister point of the escutcheon.

John Paston, Esquire, of Norfolk, and Margaret Mauteby his wife, had a younger son William Paston, born 1459.

A William Paston lived in the neighbourhood of Birmingham, and his will was proved 3rd March 1522. He left three sons, Roger, George, and John, under age. He left money to the Church of Hales Owen.

A George Paston was Vicar of St. Mary's, Lichfield, 1594, and probably Rector of King Swinford 1622—26.

Mr. EDWARD MILWARD SEEDE PARKER will pay the sum of FIVE POUNDS STERLING to the first person who will furnish him with certified authentic documentary evidence of the family relationship which existed between John Paston, Esq., husband of Margaret Mauteby, and either Nicholas Paston, who died 1621, John Paston, his brother, who died 1636, William Paston his brother, who died 1607, Edward Paston, son of John, who died 1697, or John Paston, son of Edward, who died 1689.

Mr. Parker will not pay any further charge or fee whatsoever.

WRIGHT FAMILY.

I should be much obliged for information as to who the parents were of a Philip Wright, born circa 1759.

He had a brother Robert circa 1764, and is believed to have been born in Nottinghamshire, and to have had two other brothers, John and George.

LECHE FAMILY.

TO THE EDITOR OF "MISCELLANEA GENEALOGICA ET HERALDICA."

SIR,

The contributor of the interesting account of the Acworth Family (Fourth Series, Vol. I.), was at a loss to explain the use of the Leche Arms on John Acworth's brass in Linton Church. The annexed pedigree evidently gives the explanation, the authority for it being, (the Index of) Early Chancery Proceedings, Bundle 75, No. 59. I hope it may help him to discover "the missing link." For the Meverell Pedigree see Sleight's "History of Leek."

The above four daughters, with their husbands, were petitioners against Nicholas Wymbysch and others, executors of Simon Gaunstede, Keeper of the Rolls, for detention of title-deeds of an inn, etc., in St. Andrew's parish, near Baynard Castle, London. In another reference (Bundle 9, No. 330), the four wives are called "sisters of Philip Leche, Kn't," and the date is 2 Henry VI.

Yours faithfully,

W. F. CARTER.

WELDON FAMILY.

I shall be much obliged for any information concerning Thomas (?) Weldon of Weldon in Staffordshire (?), possibly Northamptonshire or Northumberland, whose four sons—Walter, M.P. for Athy 1613, married Jane, daughter of John Ryder, Bishop of Killaloe; William, married (?) Jane, daughter of John Bolton of Great Fenton, Staffordshire; Robert, married (in 1616 at St. Mary le Strand, London) Katherine Bambridge, Bainbridge, or Bambrick of Apeley (?), Cumberland; and Thomas, married Anne, daughter of . . . Blood of Dunbryn, co. Meath. They settled in Ireland towards the end of the sixteenth century.

Sir A. WELDON, Bart.

CROMWELL DEATH.

Can anyone supply any information about Cromwell Death of Furnival's Inn, living in the early years of the reign of Charles II., or his family?

CROPPENBERGH FAMILY.

I should be much obliged if anyone could give me information as to the marriage of Ann Croppenbergh and George Sherard. She was the daughter of a London Merchant, and her husband George Sherard was born in 1626, and their eldest son William in 1652. Mary Croppenbergh (mother to Ann) in her will (proved 1652) describes herself as a widow. Any information as to Ann Croppenbergh's father also would be welcome.

Reviews.

Allegations for Marriage Licences issued by the Commissary Court of Surrey between 1673 and 1770. Edited by A. RIDLEY BAX, F.S.A. Part 2. 1907. Norwich: Goose and Son.

WE welcome with delight the arrival of Part 2 of these Allegations. It comprises the period from November 1748 to June 1766, and is contained in pages 257 to 576. On a slip pasted in front the Editor expresses a hope of issuing Part 3, which will contain the rest of the Allegations, with very full Indices of Persons and Places.

We heartily congratulate Mr. A. Ridley Bax on the good progress he has made.

Journal of the Association for Preserving the Memorials of the Dead in Ireland. Edited by LORD WALTER FITZGERALD. Vol. VI., Parts 1 and 2. 1906. Dublin: Ponsonby and Gibbs, University Press.

WE have been favoured by the Cork Herald with the above two Parts, and are agreeably surprised at the excellent selection of Memorials gathered together, illustrated as the Parts are with plate engravings, making each worthy of general support. We fear that the Society for Preserving Memorials of the Dead in England has died out, as we contributed some years ago, at the request of the Committee, a paper on Dirdin's Grave in the Churchyard attached to the Alms-houses of St. Martin's in the Fields, which were built from the money paid when the present National Gallery was erected. We found this square tomb in excellent order, surrounded on each side by quotations from the song of "Tom Bowling," and ascertained that it was by the loving care of a granddaughter that it was in such good repair.

The first part of these Memorials in Ireland has the full inscription on the monument to Dean Swift, and also that to "Stella," otherwise Hester Johnson, who was so celebrated in the writings of the witty Dean. He died in 1745 and she in January 1727-8, and to the support of a Chaplain to the Hospital in Dublin she left £1000. The plates interspersed comprise the splendid Tomb of Sir Donat O'Brien in Kilnasoolagh Church in co. Clare, a fine view of Hillsborough Church, co. Down, the Tomb of Thomas Jones, Archbishop of Dublin 1605—1610, besides several page rubbings, all well done. Part 2 has fourteen illustrations, mostly rubbings, besides the Title and Index for Vol. VI., and it is issued to Subscribers at 10s. per annum. The work has our strongest recommendations. Vols. I., II., and III. are already out of print.

Northern Notes and Queries. Vol. I., No. 5. January 1907. Newcastle-upon-Tyne: M. S. Dodds, 61 and 63 Quayside.

THIS Part begins with a good account of Miss Cotesworth, the daughter of William Cotesworth, M.P., High Sheriff of Northumberland in 1719. She was a great favourite in the Court of George III. and also with the Royal children, who were her pupils, and the King's successor, William IV., visited her grave shortly before he died. There is a short notice of Akenside the Poet, besides the usual number of Queries and Answers, which, with apprenticeships in Gateshead for 1697—1735, conclude the Part.

The Virginia Magazine of History and Biography. Vol. XIV., No. 3. January 1907. The Virginia Historical Society, Richmond, U.S.A.

THIS Part is absorbed by the Journals of the Council of Virginia during 1737—1763, and Legislative Papers and Colonial Records of 1660. Gleanings in England from 1700 also are interesting, and in Genealogy the Brent family is prominent, illustrated by a photograph of the Dering Arms, Pluckley, Kent, once a mansion.

The New York Genealogical and Biographical Record. Vol. XXXVIII., No. 1. January 1907.
New York: 226 West 58th Street.

THIS Part is rich in genealogical history, including a full account of the family of Jacobus Strijcker, enriched with a photogravure in colour of him. There is an excellent long account of the true ancestry of Edgar Allan Poe, knocking aside the extravagant statements made from time to time by his biographers. It is written by Sir Edmund P. Bewley, M.A., LL.D., a well-known Dublin genealogist. Poe, as a poet, is as much esteemed in England as in America, and this paper could not have been better written as it is than by Sir Edmund, with his extensive genealogical knowledge. It is illustrated by a photograph of the marriage licence of Poe's great-great-grandfather, and also another shewing a leaf of an old vestry-book of Kildallon Parish, both photographed by Miss Nanette Bewley. This paper is very interesting.

The Journal of the Ex Libris Society. Vol. XVI., Parts 10—12, October to December 1906, and Vol. XVII., Part 1, January 1907. London: A. and C. Black, Soho Square.

THE October and November Part, which was somewhat late, has an excellent frontispiece in the plate of Richard and Nora Kathleen Ladenburg, besides eight Wright book-plates and four plates for identification, up to No. 614, and the December Part, besides a fanciful frontispiece founded on Warner's "Ten Thousand a Year," has five Chippendale plates in the name of Wright, of which there is a good account given, and also the book-plate of the Rev. J. Dobson, M.A., which was in the Franks collection. The January Part, commencing Vol. XVII., has an excellent portrait of the late Graf zu Leiningen Westerburg, and another one of Edwin Davis French, the well-known American designer and engraver; a delicately drawn German plate; also two book-plates by Miss Julia G. Gordon, and one by Miss Violet Hardy. The book-plate of the Cosmos Club, Washington, is also given. Altogether the illustrations in each Part are good examples.

Fenland Notes and Queries. Vol. VII., Part 72. Edited by Rev. W. D. SWEETING, M.A.
Peterborough: George C. Caster, Market Place.

THIS Part commences with an account of Cromwell in 1642, who with characteristic coolness regretted much that "that worthy vessel of the Lord, Cornet Sprigg, managed to get knocked on the head. I hope the voice of the Lord will soften the malignant hearts even at the eleventh hour. I expect you at Stilton; bring your swords and muskets!" He left a troop of thirty men to overawe the Fens under a trusty lieutenant and quartermaster, as was quite necessary in that "disaffected corner." There is an interesting notice of the Cambridgeshire Fens in 1761, and also an account of an Inn at Upmore where the Cambridge Undergraduates used to assemble, and in large letters was written above the door, "Five miles from anywhere—no hurry." Altogether an interesting Part.

According to Nicholls' "History of Leicestershire," Beaumanor, consisting of only the hall, house, and a few detached farms and cottages, is an extensive manor, beautifully situated in a fertile valley on east side of Charnwood Forest, long held by the Beaumont family. Leland says it is "a park clos'd with stone waules and a pratie logge yu it, longging alate to Beaumont."

In 1594 it is described as an antient manor-house of greate receipte, moted about with a large mote stored with fish, with a drawbridge, garden, orchard, hop yeard, etc., thereto belonging, all very convenient and answerable. There were two parks, one for red deer and the other for fallow. The old house was taken down and rebuilt in 1725, of both of which Nicholls gives illustrations; another one has since been built on the same site.

After passing through several families by Royal Grants, it came to Thomas Lord Grey of Groby, 2nd Marquess of Dorset, through which family it passed to Frances, Duchess of Suffolk, who married Adrian Stokes, † 1 March 1554-5, by whom she had one child Elizabeth, who died an infant 7 Feb. 1555-6. Adrian also held property in right of his wife at Astley, co. Warwick. In 1562-3 he obtained a new lease of Beaumanor for 21 years from Queen Elizabeth.

John Stokes was Vicar of Inkberrow, co. Worcester, Prebendary of Hereford, Archdeacon of Ely (1445), Precentor of Salisbury (1457—67). Canon Jones, in his "Fasti Ecclesie Sarisburiensis," says the Archdeacon and Precentor were "probably" the same person, not having seen this will; Prebendary of Combe and Harnham (1457, void "per dimissionem"). One of this name was Prebendary of Lyme and Halstock in 1418, whom Canon Jones queries as the same person! Where was he buried? Is there any memorial extant of him? Any further information concerning him will be most acceptable.

NOTES ON FAMILIES OF DE MALO LACU, BIGOD, EUER, RATCLIFF, AND LORD SHEFFIELD.

The following extract from an old case of the time of Charles I. may be helpful genealogically to some of the families named in it. The rest of the case consists entirely of legal arguments, which cannot be of any general interest.

“MISTLETOE.”

EARL OF MULGRAVE, RATCLIFFE'S CASE, MICH., 5 CAR. I., COM. BANC.

“Die Mercurii post festum Sanctæ Margaret, 17 Edwardi II., John de Malo Lacu gave to Peter de Malo lacu, and the heirs of his body, the Castle and Mannor of Mulgrave, by divers mean conveyances the land came to Sr. Ralph Bigod 11 Jan. 6 Hen. 8. Sr. Ralph Bigod made a Feoffment to William Ener and others to the use of his last Will, and died, and the right of the Land, together with the Entayl and the use, also after the Will performed, descended to Sr. Francis Bigot.

“10 Dec. 28 H. 8, Sir Francis Bigod made a Feoffment to John and others to the use of himself and Katherine his Wife, and the heirs of their bodies, and they had issue Ralph Bigod and Dorothy, then the Statute 26 H. 8, cap. 13, for forfeiture for treason is made, and 26 Mait, 29 H. 8, Sir Francis Bigod was attainted of Treason committed 7 Jan. 28 H. 8, and was executed, and Katherine survived. H. 8, by the special Act of attainder of Sir Francis Bigod, and his forfeiture is made 4 Novem. E. 6, Ralph Bigod, Son of Katherine and Sir Francis, was restored in blood, and died without issue. Dorothy married Roger Ratcliff, and they had issue Francis Ratcliff. 5 Octob. 8 Eliz., Katherine died, and Francis Ratcliff died, having issue Roger Ratcliff, 1 Febr. 34 Eliz., Francis Ratcliff. Roger Ratcliff entred 11 Aug. 33 Eliz., Office found for the Queen.

“28 April, 34 Eliz., The Queen by Letters Patents granted the same to Edward Lord Sheffield and the heirs males of his body begotten at the rate of 9 18 3d. Roger Ratcliff upon the whole matter sued his Monstranc de droit in the Exchequer, and had Judgement for him, and Writ of Error being brought by the Lord Sheffield to reverse the Judgement formerly given in the Case.”

MEMORANDA.

The following memoranda relating to families of Yelverton and Atthowe seem worthy of disinterment from the Common Bench Reports, and insertion in the pages of "Miscellanea Genealogica et Heraldica."

"MISTLETOE."

MICH., 5 CAR. I., COM. BANC.

"Memorandum.—That on Sunday morning in the next term ensuing, which was 24 day of January, Sir Henry Yelverton, puisne Judge of the Common Bench, dyed, who before had been Attourney general to King James; and afterwards incurring the displeasure of the King was displaced and censured in the Star-chamber, and then he became afterwards a practicer again at the bar, from whence he was advanced by King Charles to be a Judge. He was a man of profound knowledge and eloquence, and for his life of great integrity and piety, and his death was universally bewailed."

MICH., 6 CAR. I., COM. BANC.

"Memorandum.—That Sergeant Atthowe died at his House in Northfolk, who was a man somewhat defective in Elocution and Memory, but of profound Judgment and Skill in pleading."

GORING v. BICKERSTAFF, TEMP. CAR. II.

The following is an epitome of this case so far as it is interesting genealogically :—

DE TERM. SANCT. HILL, ANNO REGIS, 13 AND 14 CAR. II., IN CANCELLARIA.

Henry Goring, Baronet, and others against Charles Bickerstaff and others. John Alford, deceased, seised of the Manor of Hams, etc., on 1 April, 14 Car. I. settles same. Frances his wife, Sir Edward Alford his brother.

7 July 1643 John Alford made his Will. His daughter Jane, Defendant Everfield's mother. His daughter Elizabeth, wife of Defendant Bickerstaff, to whom he devised all his messuages in White-Fryars in London, Pickhatch and Goswel Street in Middlesex, and in Wigonholt in Sussex, to her and heirs of her body, reversion to Sir Edward Alford and his heirs. If Sir Edward paid Elizabeth £2500 at marriage, or at 21, estate to her to cease, and premises to remain to Sir Edward and his heirs. John Alford made wife Frances Executrix of Will. Eldest son of William Alford, his brother, and two younger sons of William. John Alford died 1 January 1648, without issue male, leaving the daughters his heirs. Sir Edward Alford died intestate September 1683 [? 1663]. Dame Ann, his relict, took out Administration. Jane, the mother of Defendant John Everfield, and whose heir he was, died in life of Frances her mother; and Frances, having proved John Alford her husband's Will, died in 1659, having made Defendant Elizabeth Bickerstaff Executrix. John Alford, first son and heir of Sir Edward Alford.

Abstracts of Wills.*

PHILIP VINCENT, commander of His Majesty's Ship "Royal Oake." Will dated 11 October 1741. Imprimis, I desire that all my debts be paid. I give my house in New Berkeley Street which I lately purchased for 93 years, with household furniture, plate, linen, and books, to my wife M^{rs} Sarah Vincent for life, with remainder after her decease to my sister M^{rs} Temperance Roberts and her children. The annuity of £100 per annum during the life of my wife purchased of the present Earl of Scarborough I desire she may enjoy the income thereof. The annuity by me purchased at the rate of £1125 for £150 per annum on the life of my cousin Charlot, Marchioness Dowager of Annandale, I give to my wife and said sister. The residue to my said wife and sister. My sister's son William Roberts to be apprenticed in wood or iron works belonging to the Ordnance Office. And I appoint my wife and M^r William Roberts of Findon in Northamptonshire and his wife, my sister, to be executors. My friends M^r James Henshaw and M^r Richard Clive to be assisting them, not doubting but my worthy good friend Thomas Corbett, Esq^r, will likewise do the same in case he is so required. Dated on board the "Royal Oake" in Plymouth Sound 11 October 1741

[Signed] PHILIP VINCENT.

Witnesses, Richard Dorrill and Edm^d Turner, Lieut^s, and J^{oo} Stevens, Master of the "Royal Oake."

Pedigree of the Family of North Dale.

(1) North Dale is given as the father of Samnel in "D.N.B.," which describes him as a silk-thrower of St. Mary's, Whitechapel. His will is not in P.C.C.

(2) Samuel, the well-known botanist. (See "D.N.B.") He died 6 June 1739, and was buried in the Dissenters' burying-ground at Bocking, Essex. His will in Commissary Court of London for Essex (Bull, 212) is dated 5 Aug. 1738, with a codicil of 17 March 1738-9. He desires to be buried with his two wives, and mentions a daughter Christian, to whom he leaves land in trust for life, and then to his nephew and ex'or John Dale. He mentions his nephew Francis, his great-nephew Thomas Dale at Jamestown [sic, probably a mistake for Charlestown], South Carolina, a nephew William Grey, and his sister [i.e. testator's niece], his cousins Thomas Hertford [or Hetford] of Braintree, draper, and John Fuggles of Bocking, clothier. He had real estate at Bocking, Little Leigh, and Ovington. In 1769 (Feb. 6) a commission was issued to Sarah Dale, daughter and adm'x of John Dale, who died intestate, to administer goods of Samuel Dale.

(3) John Dale of Faversham, Kent. Adm'on granted to his wife Sarah 1757. She having left the estate unadministered, a fresh grant was made to his daughter Sarah Dale 13 Feb. 1769.

(4) Sarah Dale of the parish of St. James, Clerkenwell, by her will, 4 Nov. 1789, proved 5 Feb. 1801 (P.C.C., Bevor, 424), left land at Little Leighs, Essex, to her kinsman Thomas Dale of Union Court, Broad Street, City of London, whom she appointed ex'or of her will. No other relations mentioned.

(5) Francis Dale, formerly of Stoke Newington, now (1761) of Hoxton, apothecary, made his will 3 Nov. 1761; proved 22 Oct. 1762 (P.C.C., St. Eloy, f. 416). He desires to be buried in Stoke Newington Churchyard, near where his daughter Mary was buried. He leaves his property, including real and leasehold estate in parish of St. Stephen's, Hartford, to his grandson Thomas Dale at 21, but if he dies under 21 to testator's cousin Sarah Dale. He mentions four kinsmen, John, Thomas, Richard, and Isaac Sotley, also a cousin Mary Sharp and her two daughters, to whom he leaves 1s. apiece.

(6) There are various letters of Thomas to Dr. Birch in the Birch MSS. (4804), written between 1726—1736. From this it appears that he sailed for America in March 1731 with his wife, whom he married against his father's will. He settled at Charlestown, South Carolina, where he practised as a physician and prospered. He was made a magistrate, and, according to "D.N.B.," a member of the Upper House of South Carolina. His wife Mary died 1 Aug. 1732, aged 35, apparently s.p. He married a second wife, Easter Day 1732-3; she died 24 May 1737, aged 36, leaving him no children living, though he had had three by her. Apparently he married again, and had at least one son who grew up (No. 7). He mentions his brother Frank as having been drowned circa Sep. 1734; also his brother Goudet, apparently his first wife's brother.

(7) For this Thomas Dale see "D.N.B.," where the date of his birth is wrongly given. He was entered at St. Paul's School 10 Feb. 1757, where he is described as aged 9, the son of Thomas Dale, dec., and the grandson of Francis Dale. His wife Caroline [? Catherine] is buried in Camberwell Churchyard.

(8) Alfred Dale entered the Royal Navy as a boy in 1799, attained rank of Lieutenant 1807, and of Commander, on the Retired List, in 1844. I do not know if he has left any descendants.

North as the Christian name of the father of Samuel Dale suggests some connection with the family of Dr. Valentine Dale, Dean of Wells, Queen Elizabeth's Ambassador (see "D.N.B."), as his daughter and heiress married Sir John North, eldest son of Roger, second Lord North.

M^r Prosser, they to dispose the Interest thereof to the poor, chiefly those who have been reduced from better circumstances. In case of their death, other trustees to be appointed. Capital to be given in special cases. My coffin not to be covered up until it is absolutely necessary. To be buried at Acton near the intended Burial Place of my beloved sister. To Sam^l Moody and Hugh Leicester, Esq^{rs}, in trust for my beloved sister, and for her sole and separate use, whatsoever I die possessed of to be absolutely at her disposal, either in her life or at her death amongst her children. My dear nephew to give his assistance to his parents in this troublesome Office. To the Rev. M^r Masters, if living at Kensington at my decease, £50 instead of the £20 given him in my will. To the R^t Hon. Lord Elibank, Lewis Montolien, Esq. (to the last, my portrait as well as his uncle's), and to Thomas Montolien, Esq., to each £100. To my Brother Wegg £1500 instead of the £500 named in my will. £100 for the benefit of M^r Thompson the Seal Engraver's family.

This will was proved at London 3^d Aug. 1799 by the oath of Samuel Wegg, Esq., the surviving executor. (P.C.C., 604, Howe.)

WILL OF LEWIS CHARLES MONTOLIEU, 1769. (See Pedigree and Arms, p. 160.)

I, LEWIS CHARLES MONTOLIEU of St George, Hanover Square, in the Liberty of Westminster, Esq^r, do make this my last will. I give unto my well beloved wife Elizabeth Montolien £500 over and above all other beneficial provisions which she is intituled to by marriage articles bearing date 26th June 1750. By said articles my ffather, David Montolieu, Baron de Saint Hippolite, and I did covenant with Peter Le Heup, the Elder, Esq^r, now my ffather in law, that in case there should be any childⁿ to survive me, begotten of me and the said Elizabeth, he my said ffather should pay £12,000 to such child or children in such proportions as I should by my last will direct. I doe (therefore) direct that the sum of one shilling (being part of the said sum of £12,000) shall be paid to my eldest son Lewis Montolien as his proportion. And I do appoint that £11,999 19^s, being the remainder of the said £12,000, shall be paid equally amongst my second son Thomas Montolien and my four daughters Mary Clara Montolien, Charlotte Gabriel Montolien, Ann Montolien, and Elizabeth Montolien, when they shall respectively attain the age of 21 years or be married with the consent of my said wife. I give unto my dear Brother in law the Honorable and Reverend Doctor Gideon Murray, Prebendary of Durham, £100 for his trouble as executor of this will. And I likewise give unto his wife, my sister Elizabeth Murray, £100. I give £50 to be distributed amongst poor English and French Protestants. Also £100 to the Treasurer for the time being of the French Hospital at Hogsdon in Middlesex. And I give £100 to the Treasurer of St George's Hospital near Hyde Park. And in order to make provision for my son Lewis Montolien I devise unto him for ever all my Manors, messuages, and Real Estates whatsoever, in case he shall live to the age of twenty one years. [If not] I give them to my second son Thomas Montolien. If he do not live to the age of twenty one, I devise said Manors to my daughters equally as tenants in common. [If all die] I give estates unto my wife for her life, and after her decease unto my Honoured Mother Mary Montolien for her life, and then to my said sister Elizabeth, wife of the said Gideon Murray, and the heirs of her body for ever. Residue to my son Lewis Montolien absolutely. I appoint my wife executrix, and my brother in law Gideon Murray executor of this will. This second of December 1769.

In Codicil, 20 March 1772, testator gives his daughters one thousand pounds a piece over and above the provisions of the will.

This will was proved 27 February 1776 by the Rev. Dr. Gideon Murray.

On 16 July 1778 the will was administered by Elizabeth Murray his widow. (P.C.C., Bellas.)

PETER LEHEUP, the younger. Will dated 20 January 1774. I confirm the settlement made by me of £20,000 South Sea Annuitys on the grandchildren of my ffather. I give to my wife all my Jewels, Plate, Pictures, Books, furniture, etc., and hope my family will justly think themselves much obliged to her for the great care she has always taken of my fortune. To my sisters M^{rs} Montolien and M^{rs} Garth, and to Lewis Charles Montolien and Richard Garth, Esquires, their husbands, £500 each. To Mary Clara Montolien my niece £500 and £2000. To my niece Clara Garth £500. To my Aunt Michael Le heup and my cousin Henry Le heup, her son, £100 each. To M^{rs} Le hook, my wife's mother, £100. To Samuel Wegg, Esq^r, my brother in law, £100. To Miss Garth, sister to Richard Garth, Esq., £100. To M^r Luke Angell, opposite my house at Kensington, £20. To the poor of Steeple Morden in Cambridgeshire, of Kensington, and of Ashwell co. Herts, to each parish £20. To my cousin William Lowndes, son of my uncle Charles Lowndes, £100. To M^r Robert Christie of Ashwell, co. Hertford, who does my business in the county, £20. All the rest of my fortune I give to my Honourred father Peter Le heup, Esq^r, who I hope will forgive all my faults, whom I appoint executor. Peter Backwell deposes to the authenticity of the will. It was proved at London 4 March 1774 by the oath of Peter Leheup, Esq., father of deceased, and sole executor named in the will. To Sir William Draper, K.B., £100. (P.C.C., 101, Bargrave.)

Lord Compton's Verses to his Uncle, Consul at Lisbon.*

The following lines were written by James, Lord Compton, son of James, 5th Earl of Northampton. He was born in 1723, and died in 1739. They were addressed to his Uncle, the Hon. Charles Compton, youngest son of the 4th Earl, who was envoy to the Court of Lisbon. The original manuscript from which these verses are copied is now (March 1907) in the possession of Mr. Edward Milward Seede Parker of Welford House, Keynsham, Somerset.

It came into Mr. Parker's hands amongst other family records through the Milward family; his mother, Louisa Jane Milward, being the only surviving child and heir at law of Benjamin Milward, Esq., of Keynsham, Somerset, a Solicitor of the Courts of King's Bench, Common Pleas, Exchequer and Chancery, and a Master Extraordinary in Chancery, and Priscilla Rogers his second wife. These lines are in the handwriting of the Rev. Benjamin Milward, Mr. Parker's great-grandfather, and son of the Rev. Benjamin Milward, Rector of Beaudesert, co. Warwick. Benjamin Milward, who was the recorder of the above verses, was Rector of Mells, co. Somerset, subsequently to holding appointments in other parishes, and was Domestic Chaplain to John, Earl of Orrery, and Baron Boyle of Marston 1737-50, in which latter year he died at Mells. He married Anne Mary Paston, only child and heir at law of Samuel Paston, second son of the Rev. John Paston, Vicar of Weston-on-Avon, and Rector of Welford-on-Avon, co. Gloucester.

Memorandum in the handwriting of the Reverend Benjamin Milward:—
 "LORD COMPTON'S VERSES TO HIS UNCLE, CONSUL AT LISBON."

The following English translation of Lord Compton's verses to his Uncle, the Hon. Charles Compton, Consul at Lisbon, has been made by the Rev. Charles Sumner Harington, M.A., at one time incumbent of the Old Church, Calcutta, in connection with the Church Missionary Society, and now residing at Weston-on-Avon, near Bath, co. Somerset. He is a descendant of Sir John Harington, Knt., of Kelston Park, co. Somerset, and brother-in-law of Mr. Edward Milward Seede Parker. (March 1907.)

"JAMES COMPTON SENDS BEST GREETING TO THE MOST HONOURABLE CHARLES COMPTON, HIS MOST ILLUSTRIOUS UNCLE.

"Bearer of many burdens and so great,
 Since Commerce sees in thee sole arbiter
 Of truth and right; since Britain by thy skill
 Such influence holds; and since thou dost the affairs
 Control of such a city, founded erst
 By great Ulysses, if report speak true,
 Thyself no less renowned, the common weal
 Would suffer did I let my rambling muse
 With too much trifling waste thy precious hours.

But ah, how many a trader from his heart
Rejoices, when thy countenance he sees
Most welcome, as of one whose words can tame
Unruly hearts and minds. A stranger far
From thine own land, yet thither dost thou send Wealth-laden galleons; by thy timely aid
Yon tawny Tagns rolls toward our shores
His ample stream, and Father Thames amazed
With dust of gold surveys his sands a gleam.

With fond desire my youthful heart brims o'er
In lofty verse thy fame to celebrate,
Not all unmeet for thine exceeding worth,
Most honored Sire. But, while I long, the power
Is lacking, and my feeble shoulders fail
Support to render. Nor the Muse permits,
And Phœbus unpropitious looks askance.
Herein my messenger may more avail
Than I; for he in rich Homeric strain
Of thee can sing; whom child-like on her lap
All-wise Minerva hath divinely taught;
Of temper sweet withal, and taste akin
To all my loved pursuits. Him then to thee,
If aught remain of thee for love's repast,
(So dense a throng of suitors thee surrounds),
I do commend: in this his flush of youth
Inscribe him on thy list of favour'd souls,
And trust to prove him good and learned too.

Nine summers now with scorching ray the fields
Have cleft, and nine long winters bound the soil
In icy bands, sithence thou didst thy sails
Unfurl, and plough with foaming keel the main,
For far-off Lisbon bound. Oh! soon return,
Absent too long, and grant the Muses' prayer,
Bringing us light once more. When to our view
Thy visage reappears, more sweet will pass
The day, and Phœbus lend a brighter beam.

So Zephyrs, in Æolian caves too long
Prisoned, emerge at length, and paint the meads
With flowers of spring; to hail their glad approach
Fond Philomel her heavenly notes distils,
And bids her throat its ancient strain renew.
Laughs all the land; bright birds of every kind
And beasts alike rejoice. Not less thine own
Shall feel their bosoms thrill, when hand holds hand
In fervent grasp, and face to face they hear
And give their mutual greeting. Then their songs
The Muses shall pour forth, and shepherd bands
With joy conspire the hour to celebrate
That brings thee back to Britain.

But ah, me!
Where tenderest thou, my Muse? where does thy breath
Inspiring lead me? Wherefore should I wish
To see thee bound for these ungenial shores,
To drag thee to dull plains, where with dark clouds
The rays of Phœbus hopelessly contend,
And scarce one broken beam can filter through;

Dull plains, where oft the needy tiller weeps
 O'er fields all unresponsive to his toil,
 Thwarted by blighting Eurus, or the floods
 Of tempest-laden Hyades! But thou
 Wendest thy way through happy tracts of life,
 Where less remote Sol yokes his fiery steeds.
 In that fair region day on day for thee
 Flows calmly by; there palm-clad hills display
 Their wealth of fruit, or slopes with vineyards crowned.
 There too 'tis thine the pure delights to know
 Of wedded bliss; there, crown of joy, to thee
 Hath come the small Iulus.—None the less
 In this with thee a common joy I share.
 Though severed far, he makes my bosom thrill
 With kindred exultation; all unseen
 In fond embrace his tiny form is held
 This heart within. When-as thy last despatch
 Reading I pondered o'er my destined lot
 Of plighted Sponsor to thy longed-for heir,
 Unwonted gladness filled my swelling breast,
 And thus my heart exclaimed: 'Begin, young boy,
 Begin thy mother with sweet smiles to greet:
 Thou by thy birth art fated to bring down
 Fresh blessings on thy sire. Lo, earth is glad,
 And Heaven's wide dome, and ocean's depth profound
 Join in felicitation. Nymphs appear
 With baskets full of lilies; naiads fair
 Strew lovely violets and sweet-scented anise
 About thy cradle, with the softest herbs.
 O thou, of arts Inventress, and in war
 Renowned, Athenè, look on this dear child;
 All powers of mind, all strength of vigorous frame
 Grant to the boy himself. His father's gifts
 Possessing, and improving, not alone
 In learned lore may he his peers outvie,
 But in brave arts of war alike prevail.'"

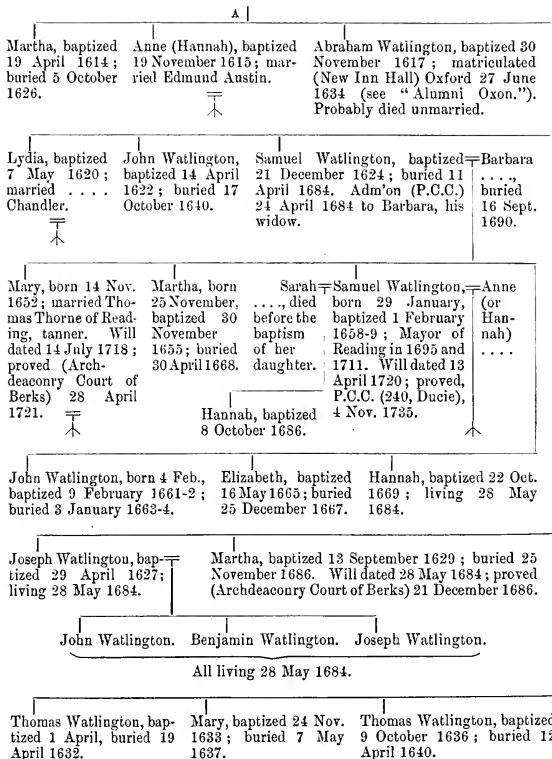

"(1737)."

Family of Watlington of Reading.

The following short pedigree extends the pedigrees of this family published in Berry's Berkshire and Herifordshire "Genealogies," and in the 1847 edition of Burke's "Landed Gentry." (The compiler has not attempted to verify the earlier generations in the published pedigrees.) The births, baptisms, and burials are from the Parish Registers of St. Lawrence, Reading.

Abraham Watlington of Reading, = Martha Hales, mar. at St. Giles', Reading, buried 15 July 1643.

17 June 1613; buried 22 September 1643.

Can anyone supply the parentage of Anne (or Hannah), the second wife of Samuel Watlington, married in or after 1687?

G. B.

The Countess of Wiltshire, died 1538.*

Miss Strickland, in her life of Queen Anne Boleyn ("Queens of England," Edit. 1844, vol. iv., p. 155), says, that the first misfortune that befell Anne was the early loss "of her mother, Lady Boleyn, who died in the year 1512 of puerperal fever." The date is probably derived from an entry at p. 12 of the interesting "Howard Memorials," by Henry Howard of Corby, the entry being "Lady Elizabeth Howard married to Sir Thomas Boleyn, Visc^e Rochford, and Earl of Wiltshire, died 'puerperio' at Lambeth Dec. 14th, 1512; interred at Lambeth." Miss Strickland goes on to say, that after Queen Anne's mother's death, Sir Thomas Boleyn married again, and that "it is certain that Anne's stepmother was an [unnamed] Norfolk woman of humble origin, and it has been observed that Queen Elizabeth was connected in consequence of this second marriage of her grandfather with numerous families of a mean station in that county"; and she cites Thoms' "Anecdotes and Traditions" (found in Camden Soc., vol. for year ending 1 May 1839, p. 16) as strongly confirmatory of the fact of the second marriage.

Can it be possible that the Countess of Wiltshire, who died in 1538, and was buried at Lambeth 7 April of that year, was not Anne's mother, Lady Elizabeth Howard, but a second wife of Lord Wiltshire and Ormond? I confess to seeing scarcely any ground for questioning the generally received belief that Lord Wiltshire and Ormond's only wife was Lady Elizabeth. Howard of Corby may have been confounding the date of her death with that of her only sister of the whole blood, Lady Muriel (wife, first of John Grey, Viscount Lisle, and second of Sir T. Knyvett), who did in fact die in Dec. 1512, and who was buried at Lambeth. Miss Strickland has quite misconceived Thoms' meaning in the passage to which she refers. Thoms, speaking of Queen Elizabeth's "maternal relations," was remarking (incorrectly as it seems to me) that "many of them were among the 'inferior' gentry," adding that this was an inconvenience which arose from her father's "having selected for his second consort a subject of no very elevated extraction." It was, of course, the marriage of Henry VIII. to Anne Boleyn, and Queen Elizabeth's maternal relationships thence consequent, that Thoms was thinking of. No second marriage of Queen Anne's father was in his view at all. It was the King's union with Anne, taking her parents just as they stood, which constituted the mesalliance that Thoms had in his mind.

Three incidents only are known to me which could give the slightest shade of probability to Henry Howard's date and to Miss Strickland's theory of the second marriage: the first, that in Henry VIII.'s letter† to Anne Boleyn, in 1528 (replying to her prayer for his aid in persuading her father to be kind to her sister, Lady Mary, who had just lost her first husband), the King's idea evidently is that "Eve" (Lady Wiltshire) is the difficult one to persuade, not "Adam" (her husband); the second, that the same Lady Mary in her fairly well-known letter to Secretary Cromwell, shortly after her second marriage, asking him to intercede for family forgiveness, etc., seems rather pointedly to speak of "my Lord, my father," and of "my Lady," not of "my Lady, my mother";‡ the third, that G. E. C. in his "Complete Peerage" (vi., 144) has it that Lady Wiltshire died "in childbed," a statement certainly rather startling, in face of the fact that the lady (if she was, indeed, Lady Elizabeth Howard) was, when she died, a grandmother of more than eleven years' standing. Yet the "childbed" statement might conceivably be correct, or might simply be a mistake.

For the rest, all likelihood seems to be against any second marriage of Lord Wiltshire. We have "Elizabeth," Lady Boleyn, or Lady Wiltshire, mentioned in * Communicated by W. M. Low, Esq.

† Letters and Papers, Hen. VIII., vol. iv., No. 4410.

‡ So in the "Howard Collection," p. 525, cited by the Record Office as the authority. Brewer, in his "Reign of Henry VIII." (ii., 167), seems to have unwittingly added the words "my mother."

Letters and Papers, Hen. VIII., once or twice, I think, long after 1512,* and an Act of Parliament was passed as far on as the year 1532,† assuring “the Jointure” of “Elizabeth, Countess of Wiltshire”; so that, if there were a second wife, both wives were of the same Christian name.

The “Here lyeth the body of the Lady Elizabeth Howard, sometime Countess of Wiltshire,” copied by Stow from the flat stone in Lambeth Church, does not help us much; for, unfortunately, Stow gives no date.‡ Then, if there was really any second marriage, it does seem strange that we do not, somewhere or other, in our records, find some allusion to it.

Finally, we have the fact that Lady Elizabeth's half-sister, Lady Daubenny (Lady Katherine Howard, a few months afterwards Countess of Bridgewater), was present at “my Lady Wiltshire's” interment at Lambeth on 7 April 1538, as “chief mourner of the women,” “my Lord Comptroller” (the husband) being “chief mourner of the men.”§

On the whole, there appears little indeed to shake the belief generally held that the Countess buried in the famous Howard Chapel on 7 April 1538, was none other than the poor mother who lived through the tragedy of her only son and of her elder daughter; but still, it would be satisfactory to know if any record exists, directly identifying her with the subject of that interment, by means of mention of her maiden name.

* Presumably the Joseph Galabin whose marriage in Dec. 1712 to Hannah Goume appears in the Register of St. Martin's-in-the-Fields. There are also found a John Baptist and a Paul Galabin, naturalized 11 March 1700. Paul Galabin, being then of Bear Street, a matre Chapelier, m. in 1700 Françoise Vaury, and had issue Paul, bapt. 19 Nov. 1704 in Ryler's Court, "Selvie" Galabin being recorded in the same church register.
† In 1802 he is found writing from Ingram Court to a French Connection at Orange, M. Fabre-Galabin de Jonquier. "I, John William Galabin, now in my 65th year, am the only son of John Galabin, who left France in the year 1730, and who was there called Galabin de Jonquier. He was employed to work a silver mine in the Pyrenees, for which he was to have been amply remunerated, but, it not succeeding, he came away, after having left the Prime of his Life, without a Farthing of Recompense from the King. He, John, was the son of Louis Galabin, who lived in that House and on that Estate in Orange, which is now my Property, and is in the management of a Gentleman, who is my Agent, of the name of Chaput, who resides at Orange and occasionally at Bagnol, Deputation [sic] du Gard. My Grandfather Louis had two Brothers, one named Peter, who lived at Paris, and who died of a broken Heart there, having been deprived of all his Property by the Government, he being a Protestant, and who died without issue. His other Brother was named Joseph, and lost all his Property at Lisbon, where he resided, by the Earthquake there, and which loss he survived but a short Time. He also dying without Issue, left what Trifles he had to my Father John. My Father had a relation in the Court of Jordon,....." "The Red Book," and also edited several editions of "Paterson's Roads."

* The patriarch of the Mignon family was a Huguenot Refugee, who settled as a merchant at Plymouth. His younger son Stephen, had, by his marriage in 1746 with Mary, dau. of the Rev. Thomas Bishop of Barnstaple and Mary his wife, dau. of Sir John Davic, 5th Bart., with two daughters (Mary who m. John Innes, father to the 5th Duke of Roxburghe, and Elizabeth who m. Joseph May of Plymouth), a son, George William Mignon, Colonel in the H.E.I.C.S., who retired in 1801, after having been employed without interruption for thirty years, and "distinguished in twenty actions." He, by his marriage in 1792 with Margaret, dau. of Robert Taylor, was father of Elizabeth Jane Taylor (his 5th child), who, by her marriage with James Goss Richards, Captain in the H.E.I.C.S., and that of their dau., Elizabeth Mignon Richards, with the Rev. H. G. Baily, was grandmother to Mrs. Galabin.

The Refugee had at least two daughters, of whom Marie m. Peter Paré of Plymouth, and Elizabeth m. Captain Pitman. Marie Paré, the only dau. of the former, became in 1764 the wife of Peter Travers, Physician to the English forces in Portugal, a brother to John Travers, an Elder Brother of the Trinity House, and a Director (1776) of the French Hospital. The Pitmans, too, had a dau., (†) Magdalen, who, by her marriage with Patrick Strachan, Lieut. R.N., became the mother of Admiral Sir Richard John Strachan, 6th and last Bart.

ARMS OF TOMPSON OF ABBOT'S BROMLEY, STAFFORDSHIRE.

There is in Abbot's Bromley Church, in the south chancel aisle, a flat stone to the memory of John Tompson, ob. 1752, aged 30, and of his wife Elizabeth, ob. 1771, aged 64; whilst above the inscription is an incised eighteenth century shield, with a "Lion couchant regardant langued" in relief. Can anybody give me the tinctures, or information regarding the family? It can scarcely be intended for "Azure, a lion passant guardant or." The Salt Collections and Armories are silent in the matter.

F. W.

DAUBENEY.

("Misc. Gen. et Her.," Third Series, Vol. IV., pp. 44, 45.)

In the account of Philip d'Aubigni,* and in the further memoir of him in "Somerset and Dorset N. and Q.," vol. vi., p. 75, which the writer promises to continue but fails to do so, there is no mention of his connection with Wiltshire. He gives a photograph of the stone, which he describes as about 7½ ft. by 3 ft., of yellowish white stone, rising with chamfered edges about an inch above the surrounding pavement; it is slightly damaged at the head, but so well preserved that the inscription can be read without difficulty.

The present Bishop of Salisbury has the following in a letter, dated from Salisbury, 27 June 1898 ("Salisbury Diocesan Gazette," vol. xi., p. 144):—

He was at one time Governor of Devizes Castle, and Keeper of the forests of Melksham and Chippenham. He was in Salisbury with the legate Paulph in 1219, the year before the foundation of the Cathedral, and of the house in which I am writing. Bishop Poore was then building a temporary chapel, and living, I suppose, in what is now the Mitre House . . . The writers in "Somerset and Dorset N. and Q." print it De Albinedi . . . ; the original form seems to be De Albineto. Since writing the above I have found his name, together with that of Hubert de Burgh, as a witness to one of the early charters of Devizes, where he is called Ph. de Albinaco.

ARTHUR SCHOMBERG.

THE MANORIAL SOCIETY, 1 MITRE COURT BUILDINGS, TEMPLE, E.C.

THE MANORIAL SOCIETY is about to issue the first of a series of lists of such Manor Court Rolls as are in the possession of private individuals, or in the custody of the Stewards of the Manors to which the Rolls relate, or in that of corporate bodies, as distinguished from those Court Rolls which are preserved in the Public Record Office, the British Museum Library, and other public depositories of collections of MSS. and other documents of antiquarian interest.

It is obvious that the success of such an undertaking will depend, to a great extent, on the loyal support and cordial co-operation of local antiquaries.

Any information respecting the existence of Court Rolls, the periods which they cover, and their present custodians, will be gratefully received by the Registrar of the Society (Mr. CHARLES GREENWOOD), 1 Mitre Court Buildings, Temple, E.C.

The lists will be issued in parts, at intervals, as such information accumulates, and will be supplied gratuitously to members of the Society.

It is hardly necessary to point out the value of such lists to the cause of antiquarian research, especially as they will supplement those which are to be found in the national and other public collections above referred to.

* 25 March (13 Hen. III.) 1228, where he is called both "de" and "ab" Albinaco.

Genealogical Notes and Queries.

DUPPA FAMILY.

[Fourth Series, Vol. II., p. 43.]

TO THE EDITOR OF "MISCELLANEA GENEALOGICA ET HERALDICA."

SIR,

The following notes may interest your contributor:—

(1) De Banco Rolls, 32 Hen. VI. Hereford.—Margaret Duppa claims against various persons of Kingston, named Vaughan, for entering her close at Kingston and assaulting and wounding her. (Plantagenet-Harrison's vols. in P.R.O., x., 281.)

(2) 29 Nov. 1800. B. D. Duppa of Hollingbourn Place, Kent, married Mary Gladwin, daughter of General Henry Gladwin. ("Familiæ Minorum Gentium," p. 617.)

Yours truly,
W. F. CARTER.

[We insert the following with pleasure, as being the first contribution from a Correspondent in Africa.—EDITOR.]

TO THE EDITOR OF "MISCELLANEA GENEALOGICA ET HERALDICA."

SIR,—I herewith send you a list of the names which appear on tombstones in the Old Cemetery at Lourenço Marques, and which are supposed to be those of British subjects.

Harry Pharamond, died Jan. 6th, 1867, aged 4 years.

Martin Beaver, died Feb. 18th, 1881.

Charles Burnett, died March 14th, 1881.

George Ephram Ferris, died Feb. 19th, 1881.

James Ormsby, died March 28th, 1881.

Walter Thompson, died March 24th, 1881.

So far as I know, the cemetery in question has no other name than the General Cemetery of Lourenço Marques. It consists of a plot of ground which was owned by a former Parish-priest (Portugue Roman Catholic), and was lent by him to the town for so long as it should be used as a cemetery. The plot of ground was then on the outskirts of the town, but now is in the very centre. This cemetery was closed and the present one opened about 1887, and the heirs of the Parish-priest, seeing that it has ceased to be used as a cemetery, are reclaiming the ground; hence the necessity of removing the remains.

There are no records whatsoever of the burials which have taken place in the Cemetery.

I am informed by a former resident that a great many British subjects have been buried in this cemetery, over whose graves no tombstone has been erected, including: Mr. Evans, Mr. Purchase, Mr. Kelly, Mr. Barnet, Mr. Cox, Mr. Andrews, Mr. Martin, Mr. Lewis, Mr. Peak, Mr. Foot, Mr. Geblesley, Mr. Franklin, Captain Meikle, Mrs. Daintry and two children.

This is all the information I am able to give to the matter at present.

Believe me, Yours sincerely,

THOS. HAINSWORTH.

Box 444, Lourenço Marques, S. E. Africa.

June 21st, 1906.

Reviews.

The International Genealogical Dictionary. Walton-on-Thames: Chas. A. Bernau.
June 1907.

THIS is a very neat small quarto in stiff covers, giving a full list of names and addresses of those interested in genealogy. There are 1387 names given in good legible type in Part I., and in Part II. is a list of surnames of families extending over 52 pages, with counter references to the previous Part. In Part III. is a list of genealogical queries given, to some of which is a reward appended for information required. Part IV. gives a list of Societies interested in genealogy, also the names of Officers of Arms for the United Kingdom. Part V. is an Author's Exchange list, and Part VI. is a short List of Family Histories and Pedigrees, some of which were only published in April and May last.

Altogether the Work is well got up, and being issued at 10s. 6d. is well worth all genealogists subscribing to it, for the Editor has been at immense pains to render it generally useful as a work of interest. We have gone through the list of names and find that all our literary societies are well represented in the list of Members given, and the Work can be accepted as a ready reference by its readers.

Northern Notes and Queries. Vol. I., No. 6. April 1907. Newcastle-upon-Tyne:
M. S. Dodds, 61 and 63 Quayside.

THIS issue is of particular interest to Genealogists, containing several items relating to various families of the North. We note a suggestion, the knowledge of which may be useful, that the Durham Chancery Proceedings in the Record Office form a perfect mine of information respecting families of the Palatinate, but as there is not an adequate index to the suits some labour is entailed in searching the bundles. From this source is given a pedigree of the descendants and connections of George Dale of Barnard's Castle. Some useful particulars are extracted from the Halmote Books of the Bishop of Durham respecting the family of Goodchild of Tunstall and Ryhope, commencing in 1423; also further extracts from wills from the MSS. of Sir Cuthbert Sharp relating to the families of Greenwell, Rotherforth, and Hyndmarsh. There are also some digests of old cases referring to the families of Warcope, Musgrave, and Warde. An interesting article dealing with the Royal Kepier School at Houghton-le-Spring contains some interesting contemporary accounts of an annual celebration known as the "Order Feast," now long obsolete.

The Pedigree Register. No. 1, June 1907. London: G. T. Sherwood, 50 Beecroft Road, Brockley, S.E.

THIS is a new aspirant for the study of genealogy. The Editor's Note assures us that Pedigrees are the thing, and on page 2 there is given that of Lewis Evans of Radnor, who married Elinor Davies in 1733, and the line is brought up to 1906. His great-grandson became a great judge of prints, and in 1853 issued a catalogue of 50,000 engravings, etc. Major Beresford furnishes the next pedigree, and wishes to continue it from 1638. Other pedigrees follow, viz. Lewen of Dorset, Blackie, and Reade, of whom the novelist sprang from in 1814. Kemp of Willesden, 1539, is next given; Dale of Whitby, 1746, of whom particulars are wanted; and James of Shenstone, whose son Robert was friend and schoolfellow of Dr. Johnson, and from whom the well-known novelist, G. P. R. James, was born in 1801; Allin of Berkshire, De Gaury of France in 1727, Willis of Oxford, and Gourney of London follow. The Part ends with the particulars of a loan collection of old Deeds, Pedigrees, etc., which the Editor has got together, and offers to Subscribers who would care to see them. Altogether the Work is well worth subscribing to, being issued at 2s. 6d., and we have no doubt but what the Editor will have plenty of material to keep it going.

Fenland Notes and Queries. Vol. VII., Part 73. Edited by Rev. W. D. SWEETING, M.A.
Peterborough: George C. Caster, Market Place.

THE principal contents of this number deal mainly with matters of antiquarian subjects, among which are notes on the Burial of Catherine of Arragon; Church Briefs; Silver Tokens, 1811-12; Waldram Hall and Parks; and Local Government of Peterborough in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, and giving some particulars of the Parish Registers of St. John the Baptist, dating from 1558 to 1812, in eleven volumes. The only genealogical item is twenty extracts from the West Deeping Registers.

The Journal of the Ex Libris Society. Vol. XVII., Parts 2-4, February, March, and April 1907. London: A. and C. Black, Soho Square.

IN the February Number is described Mr. C. D. Sherborn's important discovery for collectors of book-plates of what appears to be a stock-book of the engravers Richard Mountaine and William Haskell, who seem to have been master and pupil. In this book there are 23 signed plates and 14 unsigned plates of Mountaine's which are not given in Fincham's "The Artists and Engravers of British and American Book-plates," and among the 26 plates of Haskell in the list, 13 were credited in that work to William Henshaw, the remaining ones not hitherto attributed to any engraver or even known to collectors.

In the March issue we note that the Annual Exhibition will be held on the 27th and 28th inst., the special feature of which will be Colonial Book-plates, Heraldic Curiosities, Armorial Bindings, etc.

The frontispiece of the April Part is from an armorial bookplate recently designed by Mr. Graham Johnston, which is a beautiful piece of work. An article on Colonial Bookplates, and also under the general heading of "Modern Bookplate Designers," deals with W. Edgar Fisher, an American designer, giving some specimens of his work.

These numbers are fully illustrated by modern book-plates, with accompanying notes. In addition there are three examples of Chippendale Plates, five Irish Plates, and six "Book-File" bookplates. The useful lists of Festoon and Chippendale Bookplates are continued, and a list of British "Book-File" Bookplates to 1890 commenced.

Descent in the Male Line of the Family of Grazebrook from 1065, with Proofs for each Generation.*

The lordship of Buslei-en-Bray lies some three miles from the ancient fortified town, formerly called Drincourt, which is about twenty-seven miles north-east of Rouen, and equi-distant south-west by south from Deppa, the modern Dieppe. On the consolidation of his Norman possessions it was found to be of such importance that Henry I. of England rebuilt and greatly strengthened the fortifications, and the ville was thenceforth called Neuf-Chatel-en-Bray, the name by which it is known to this day.

For some generations before our first proof this lordship was held in hereditary descent by a family of seigneurs bearing the Busli name, but records of so early a date are very hard to find, and at present I can say nothing of this part of the pedigree, except that the estates came down by hereditary right to the owners in 1065.

Mr. Stapleton, in his "Magni Rot. Scacc. Normanniæ" (i., lxxviii), who treats with great research of this and other Norman fiefs, shews that so early as Charlemagne the title "Comes" was used to designate the person (præpositus) who administered justice on behalf of the monarch in a district, and the expression of that dignity came afterwards to denote the territory under his jurisdiction (Comité) (i., lvi), and that previous to the eleventh century none but such as were of the blood of, or were very closely connected with, the Sovereign Family had such a dignity; also that such jurisdiction over their lordship was at first an appanage for life only, and not intended to be hereditary, but that (i., xlix) in the very critical times which usually prevailed in this borderland, and the jealousy of these powerful barons, such disherisons became a privilege, which the reigning powers were glad to dispense with, and so the tenures of these fiefs passed through a stage and became hereditary, and with a certain partition among the sons, fully 100 years before our first document,† in which it is declared that the estates of Buslei were held "by hereditary right," and that Hernaldus or Ernulfus, the brother of Roger, and præpositus or seneschal of the ville, was part owner with him.

I may as well here mention that all this time the Pays-de-Bray was a separate præpositura by itself, and when, at a later date, say about 1170, a portion of the district was ("Rot. Scacc.," i., p. cii) transferred to the Pagus Rotomagensis, and attached to Rouen, the territory containing Drincourt (then Neufchatel) was expressly excepted. The natural development of the feudal system led to the formation, early in the twelfth century, of extensive Comités, as, about the same time, we see earldoms created in England.

Mr. Stapleton felt the same difficulty as I do. He does not describe the Seigneur of Buslei as "Comes," but he held his ville and the prevôté of Drincourt directly from the King, and long after we find it still hereditary in the Earls of Ewe, who had it through Beatrix. In 1180, and again in 1184, Alured de St. Martin accounted for the issues of the Pays-de-Bray and the Præpositura of Drincourt "in right of his wife," who was the widow of John, Earl of Eu ("Rot. Scacc. Norman.," i., pp. cii, cxxxviii).

* Communicated by GEO. GRAZEBROOK, Esq., F.S.A.

† See Sir Henry Spelman, "English Works," ed. 1727, p. 5: "Hugh Capet, on usurping the throne of France in 988, granted that the feoda of the nobility should be hereditary, and not only for life as hitherto; he thought thus to establish himself in their loyalty." This shews us also that a turbulent nobility were then resenting any disturbance of what they had come to regard as hereditary rights.

During the winter and spring of 1065-6 William, the Prince of the Normans, applied all the energies of mind and body, all the resources of his Duchy, and all the influence he possessed in collecting what Sir James Mackintosh (i., p. 97) describes as "the most remarkable and formidable armament which the Western Nations had witnessed." All the seaports in Normandy, Picardy, and Brittany rang with the busy sound of preparation.

We refer to the facsimile facing p. 268, which we thus translate:—

"Rogerius de Busli sold to the lord Abbot Rainerius and his monks the tithes of the said ville, namely Buslei, even as it belongs to him by hereditary right, for lbs. of Silver LX. and XII. and 1 horse. And so that it shall not be possible for any one to dispute or question this sale, it is confirmed by the sign and authority of William, Prince of the Normans. + signo. Willelmi Comitis: + s. EX NOSTRA PARTE TESTES Rotbertus de Allamo: Ricardus Senescal: Osmundus de Put Angle: Bernardus Cocus."

Immediately following which:—

"Quidam Vir Godardus, nephew forsooth of Ernulfus, præpositus of the said ville buslei, sold to the aforesaid Abbot and Monks in allodium the tithes of all his land, receiving from them L shillings silver. + s. Godardi: + s. Ernulfi præpositi, uncle of the said Godardi. TESTES Ricardus Senescal, Bernardus Cocus."

Rainerius was Abbot of the Holy Trinity at Rouen, 1053—1066 ("Yorkshire Archaeological and Top. Journal," iv., p. 142).

Robert, Count of Augi: his son William, Earl of Ewe, married Beatrix, daughter and eventually heiress of Roger de Buslei.

Hernaldus and Ernulfus are shewn to be same name when we deal with him on a future page.

We see here that the two sons who had succeeded to the old Seigneur de Buslei, viz., Rogerius and Ernaldus (who inherited the younger brother's share), sold the tithes, now laid upon their estates of Buslei, for the equipment of themselves and their retinue, that they might join William in his expedition to England, and their Prince approved and authorized the sale, which to the abbot and monks amounted to a warranty of their title.

"Allodial" lands were an inheritance held without any burthen or payment to any lord or superior. The abbot and monks bought Godardus' tithes on these terms. (Cowell's "Interpreter.")

I have now to gratefully acknowledge the obliging help of Monsr. l'Archiviste, of the Seine-Inferieure, who kindly found the required document for me on folio 19 in the Chartulary of the Abbey of the Holy Trinity at Rouen, and allowed my photographer to take this facsimile. In 1811 the Record Commissioners employed experts to abstract from the Norman Records any historical data illustrating the history of Great Britain, but had not the funds to print their Collections, and so these MSS. lay neglected in the vaults of the Record Office! Searching among these some twenty years ago, I found Monsr. d'Anesny's note. These "Record Transcripts," 140, A. B., etc., have now been calendared under the editorship of Mr. J. H. Round (printed 1899).

They contain much startling information. If the great Joseph Hunter, who presided over the Record Office as Deputy Keeper, had known of my document which lay hidden in the vaults under his feet, we should not have seen him stumbling over which Busli it was, which was owned by the great House whom he extolled ("South Yorkshire," i., p. 223). And if my readers will refer to "Miscellanea Genealogica et Heraldica," Fourth Series, Vol. I., p. 205, they will see that even the great R. W. Eyton could have found there further unknown FACTS as foundation-stones for his history. Also I noticed there several instances of creating tithes and then selling them.

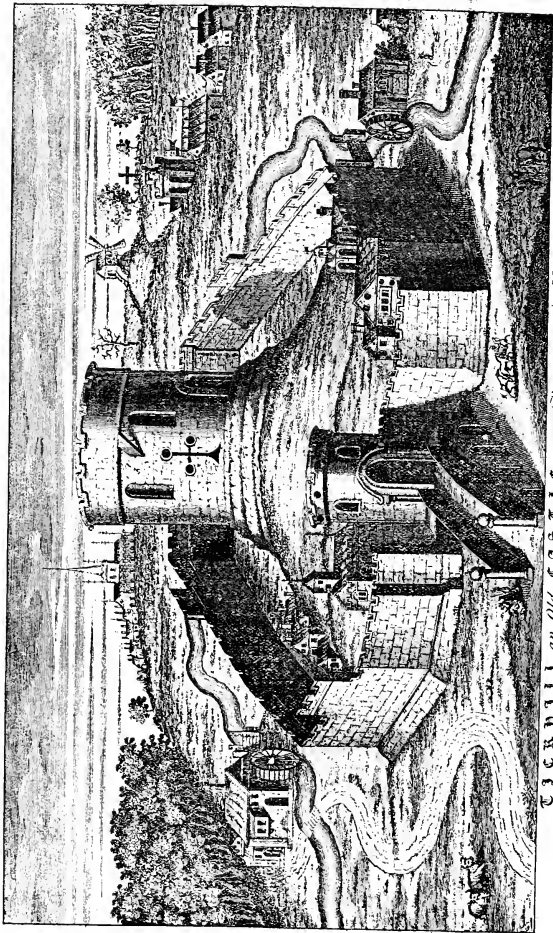

The delay and loss of life and shipping caused by heavy storms must have greatly damped the ardour of the Normans, who at last were able to put to sea for the second time from St. Valleri at the month of the Somme, 28 September, and safely landed at Pevensey 29 September 1066. We now understand that this apparent misfortune ensured the success of their invasion. It was on 25 September that Harold, with by far the greater and best portion of his army, had just defeated the Norwegians at Stamford Bridge in Yorkshire, and he was then obliged to hasten away and confront the Normans at Senlac, 14 October, and with only the remnants of his forces. Even then the victory was long doubtful, but the death of Harold and the destruction of that portion of the Saxon army led to tremendous and conclusive results. If William the Prince had landed in August, it seems most likely history would have flown in another channel altogether.

We now come to Domesday Book, the most wonderful National record in the world, compiled in 1086.

We cannot attempt to give a list of the enormous estates which fell to the lot of Roger de Busli. They are briefly detailed at these references in Domesday Book: Devonshire, fo. 113; Leicestershire, fo. 234^b; Derbyshire, fo. 278; Nottinghamshire, fos. 280, 284^b; Yorkshire, fo. 319; Lincolnshire, fos. 336, 337, 352^b; Clamores, Yorkshire, fos. 373^b, 379, 379^b (Ellis's "Introduction"). These were all held in capite of the king, subject to the usual feudal services. The Honour of Tickhill far exceeded in extent Earl Warren's neighbouring Honour of Coningsburgh—it spread itself over no inconsiderable portion of five neighbouring counties, viz., Yorkshire, Derbyshire, Nottinghamshire, Lincolnshire, and Leicestershire (Hunter's "South Yorkshire," i., 220). Besides which he held, as sub-tenant, Gloucestershire, fo. 163^b; Leicestershire, fo. 237; and Inter Ripam et Mersam, fo. 270; in which last great tract of country—from Preston to the Mersey—he was subinfeudated by Roger Pictavensis before the taking of the Domesday Survey. He made his Caput Baronie at Tickhill Castle, erected immediately after the Conquest and before 1071, which became his principal residence. It stood within a township called originally Dadesley, on the border-line between Yorkshire and Nottinghamshire, in which two counties lay his largest estates ("Yorkshire Archæological Journal," iv., p. 142; Ellis's "Introduction to Domesday").

Blythe, a large parish in Nottinghamshire, comprised also townships and chapels within the wapentakes of Strafforth and Tickhill in Yorkshire. The Castle of Tickhill is about a mile over the present Yorkshire border; the only trace, apparently, of Dadesley is a well, which still bears the name. We find the Honour and the Castle also described under both names—Tickhill and Blythe, and when Richard I. in 1194 gave his licence to hold tournaments at five places in England, one was described as "between Blythe and Tickhill" ("Roger Wendover," ii., 137; Hunter's "South Yorkshire," i., 227; Raue's "Blythe," p. 27).

The annexed Plate of Tickhill is reproduced from the engraving of an ancient drawing preserved in the Record Office, and published in "Vetusta Monumenta," vol. i., pl. xlvi. This has been shewn by recent excavations to be very unlike the original castle of 1070. Plans and particulars are given in "Archæologia," vi., p. 267. The keep was placed on a "huge artificial mound," and from it extended a circular walled bailey, and the gate-tower, which is here shewn. A very steep and high flight of steps led from this courtyard up to the keep, as at Lincoln Castle, which was of about the same date. Mr. King, in "Archæologia," does not mention any outer walled baileys; they have probably disappeared, even to their very foundations—or perhaps they were too far afield; and Mr. King's interests lay in the example of a castle built immediately after the Conquest. The mound must have grown less from the exposure and the denudations of over 800 years; but he refers to it a second time, and says, "it is in truth a very high hill—the engraving is out of all proportion"—as we might expect in an original etching of, I suppose, the sixteenth century. In the Duchy of Lancaster documents, class 25, bundle 25, I found this note: "4 July 1562. Lord Treasurer's Reports.—'The Castle should be left as it is, because it is an ancient Monument'—remove the Mill buildd upon the cawssey. N.B. take care to retain the service of those bound to maintain the cawssey w^h holdeth in tle water that serveth the same mylle."

Besides all these vast estates, Roger de Busli had in his charge during her lifetime the possessions of the Countess Judith in Hallam, Attercliffe, and Sheffield (Hunter's "Hallamshire," New Edition, p. 23*; "Yorkshire Archaeological Journal," iv., p. 142). In Domesday Book in 1086 they are included under "Terra Rogerii de Busli." She was daughter of Adcliza, the sister of William the Conqueror, and fell into great disgrace because after the death of her first husband, Walthoef, Earl of Northumberland, in 1075, she refused to accept as her second Simon de St. Liz, a Norman knight, because he was lame of a leg. St. Liz afterwards married her eldest daughter, and so William I. made his wife the principal heiress of all these lands. The tenure by which Roger de Busli held the Castle of Sheffield appears to have been two white greyhounds yearly—but we cannot tell what money or other returns were made—these were only as an acknowledgement of being subinfeudated.

We must now refer to the very interesting Record of the Devonshire estates which Roger and Muriel held. In the Exon Domesday, fos. 460^b, 461, they are thus epitomized: "Rogerius de Buslei has 1 mansion which is called Sandforda, which Bristritius held on that day when King Edward was alive and dead, and paid Geld for 3½ hides; there are xii carucates which can be ploughed. There Roger has in demesne 1½ hides and half a ferti and 1 plough, and villani hold 2½ hides less ¼ a fertinum, and 8 ploughs." (In the Devon and Somerset Domesday this term ferling, ferding, or ferting occurs; four of them made one virgate.) "There Roger has 20 villani and 8 bordarii and 6 servi, and 8 pigs and 84 sheep and 50 goats and 700 acres of wood, and 30 acres of meadow and 150 acres of pasture and is worth per annum Ten pounds, and when he receives it he should pay 100 shillings. Queen Mathildis gave this mansione to Roger de busleio with his wife." They also held other lands in Devonshire (Exon Domesday, fos. 67, 68), but I give this translation on account of the last sentence—a gift to Roger and Muriel on their marriage! I believe it is the only instance of such domestic particulars to be found in Domesday Book.

The notice of Bristritius also opens out to us the strange story told by the old chroniclers! Brictric, as it was spelled in Saxon, was an influential noble during the time of Edward the Confessor, prominent alike on account of his great possessions, the favour in which he was held at Court, the ideal beauty of his person, and an engaging personality. He was lord of the honour of Gloucester, and among many other estates held the splendid manor of Tewkesbury—Brietric FitzAlgar. (R. W. Eyton's "Key to Dorset Domesday," p. 5.)

THE BACON FAMILY.

In "Miscellanea Genealogica et Heraldica" for December 1903, p. 304, was the following entry under St. Giles-in-the-Fields Church, copied from Hatton's "New View of London":—

"On one of the S. pillars fronting N.W. is a very curious tho' small monument, in memory of FRANCIS BACON and his children by ELIZABETH his wife. Under which are these words, in gold characters: 'For of such is the Kingdom of God'—St Mark, chap. 10; and these arms: Gu., on a chief arg. two mullets sa. [for BACON], 'quartered with' Sa., three walnut leaves or, betw. two bendlets arg., a crescent for diff."

This monument, although mentioned in the "New View of London," was not in the Church in 1903, when I transcribed the monumental inscriptions.

The other day, when staying at Earham near Norwich, I found the monument in the Church there, and the following is the inscription on it:—

BACON arms: Gules, on a chief argent, two mullets pierced sable.

WALLER arms: Sable, three walnut leaves or, between two bendlets argent.

Near unto this Pillar lye interred ELIZABETH BACON, born y^e 20th day of July | A^o Dñi 1663 and dyed the 12th day of | March in y^e same year. | A son, born the 9th day of November A^o Dñi | 1664 and dyed y^e same day. | FRANCIS BACON, born y^e 24th day of March Anno Domini | 1665, who died y^e 10th day of August A^o Dñi 1666. | MARY BACON, born y^e 5th day of February | A^o Dñi 1666 and died y^e 4th day of March A^o Dñi 1668. | EDMUND BACON, born y^e 21st day of Novēber A^o Dñi | 1671 and dyed y^e 25th day of July A^o Dñi 1677. | ELIZABETH BACON, born y^e 24th day of July | 1673, who died the 15th day of June Anno Domini | 1678.

These were the children of FRANCIS BACON of | Grays Inne, Esq^r, by his wife ELIZABETH, the | eldest daughter of THOMAS WALLER of Erleham | in y^e City and County of Norwich, Sergeant-at-Law.

Of Such is the Kingdome of God.—St^m Mark, Chap. 10, v. 14.

Under the old monument, on a separate slab, is the following:—The above monument was erected | upon one of the pillars | in the Church of St Giles-in-the-fields, Middlesex | in which the persons above named were all buried | which Church being pulled down in 1731 | their surviving brother | WALLER BACON, Esq^r | then obtained the same, and caused it to be set up | in Memory of them in this Church | near to the Vault | where his and their Father and Mother are deposited.

..... Satchell, Musical Instrument Maker to Prince of Wales.

John Bland, eldest son, disinherited, of whom I have given particulars (p. 287).

Stephen Kemble, brother of John and of Mrs. Siddons, Gilliland, writing in 1808, says "Mr. Stephen Kemble married Miss Satchell, who made her first appearance at Covent Garden, 1780. She was the daughter of the Musical Instrument maker to Prince of Wales."

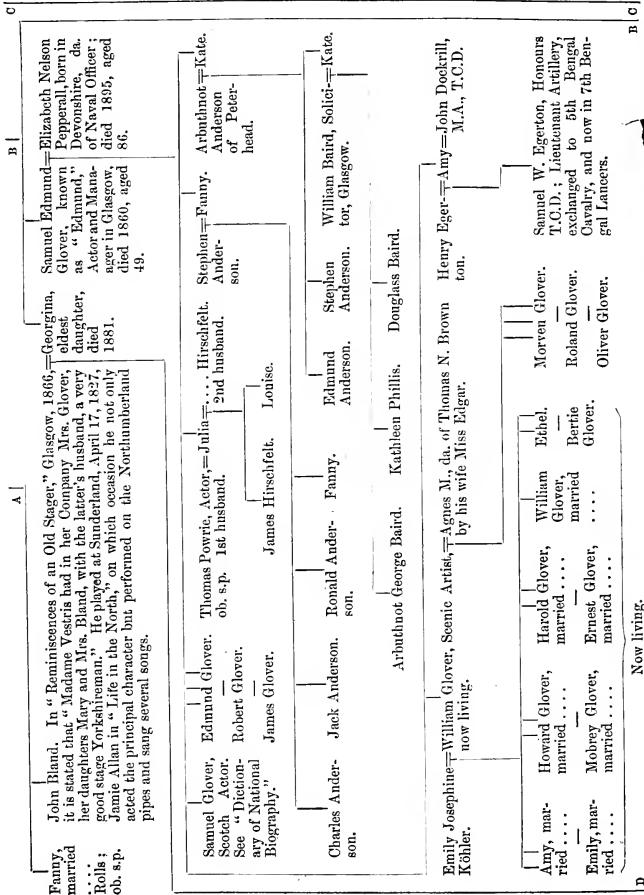

Miss Satchell.

..... Bland, Jun. Played Belville to Mrs. Jordan's Peggy at Edinburgh, 1786, when his father was of the Company. In "Memoirs of Charles Lee Lewes," mention is made of father and son acting together in play of "Such Things Are." He was not only a capable Actor, but a graceful dancer, and appeared as Harlequin at Edinburgh in 1789 and at Manchester in 1803. "The Monthly Mirror" for same year says: "Mr. Bland in 'Scotchmen' stands unrivalled." (He may have been Edward mentioned page 282.)

Mentioned in Obituary Notice of her husband in Walker's "Hiibernian Magazine," 1808. She played Lucy to her son's Belville, and Mrs. Jordan's Peggy, in "The Country Girl," Edinburgh 1786.

Samuel = Julia Betterton, married 1800, "the ablest Actress in existence," says Boaden. For full particulars about this famous woman see "Dictionary of National Biography," which calls her "the first comic Actress of the period of her middle life."

* Communicated by J. F. FULLER, Esq., F.S.A., Dublin.

John Bland and Miss Bland, mentioned in "The Monthly Mirror," August 1805, in its theatrical notes, Manchester, "Mr. Bland and Mr. J. Bland are excellent dancers, and with Miss Bland have largely contributed to the entertainment of the public. Mr. Bland is a good haterquin. Mrs. Bland is a performer in the old woman line." The same magazine refers to them at Sunderland, February 1806, and says that "Master Bland has much talent." Probably the John who married Miss Glover.

Edward Bland. — Jane.
In "The Ancestor," vol. viii, p. 52, this marriage is given.

Martha. — Captain Antonio Angelo of the Bodyguard to His Excellency Warren Hastings. John Xavier Angelo was Principal of Royal Academy of Riding and Fencing, Edinburgh, from 1763. He died there in 1805, three years before John Bland the elder. Both were acquainted with the well-known Corri family, also resident there. Francesca Corri, the great mezzo-soprano, left for London the year of Antonio's marriage, and subsequently stood sponsor to two of Martha's daughters.

PEDIGREE A. (See page 279.)

Rev. Philipps of Carmarthenshire (information from niece of Mrs. Nathaniel Philipps Bland). It appears to me almost certain that this man was Richard, son of Rev. Scuddamore Philipps of Kiffing, Carmarthenshire, who entered Jesus College, Oxford, aged 16, 15th of May 1702, or a brother of Richard.

Blanch Scuddamore, married Thomas Williams, and died s.p. 1788, aged 68; buried at Trelethyn, St. David's.

Miss Grace Philipps; died 1780 or 1790.

Grace = Captain Francis Bland. The romantic story told by Mrs. Jordan's biographers of the marriage of her parents by a Roman Catholic Priest when both were under age, and of the subsequent annulment by Judge Bland, is fiction. The connection began in 1758 when Francis Bland was 23 years old. Hester, the eldest sister of Mrs. Jordan, was born in 1759, when the Judge was nearing his end, for he died in 1760. Francis Bland, born 1736, died 2 Jan. 1778.

For issue see Burke's "Landed Gentry," Bland of Dertipin.

George Bland, eldest son, "died in Boston some months since" (see "Gentleman's Magazine," March 1807). Mentioned by Boarden as acting with his sister, Mrs. Jordan.

Francis Bland, died s.p. "Rented a small house in the Cathedral Close" (information in private letter from niece of Mrs. Nathaniel Philipps Bland, now living).

Nathaniel Philipps Bland, = Phoebe James, Brasenose College, Oxon, was married to October 1785, B.A. 1790; died 31 May 1830, aged 63; buried at Trelethyn, Rev. William Richardson; St. David's. Epitaph written by his friend Rev. William Richardson, Vicar and Canon of St. David's, aged 77.

Twins. See "Gentleman's Magazine," 1792. Whether the two were James and Charles I have not been able to determine.

James Bland, called the King of Extravaganza, died at Strand Theatre 17 July 1861.

Charles Bland, mentioned in Phanelié's "Autobiography" as brother of James, and performing in "Oberon" at Covent Garden, 1826.

* Faulkner's "Dublin Journal," 30 October 1756, says, "We bear there are two young ladies lately arrived from England (sisters) to perform at the Theatre Royal who have never yet appeared on any stage. As they have all the requisites to make a figure in that sphere, added to a polite education and a knowledge of the Beau Monde, it is hoped they will prove shining ornaments to the Theatre."

On 12 November Miss Grace Philipps made her first appearance as Juliet to the Romeo of Thomas Sheridan in Dublin, and subsequently acted Desdemona to Tate Wilkinson's Othello.

On 20 November Faulkner's "Dublin Journal" says, "We bear that the lady who is to perform the part of Jane Shore is sister to the young lady who performed the part of Juliet."

JOHN BLAND AND HIS NIECE MRS. JORDAN, WITH SOME OF THEIR DESCENDANTS AND COLLATERALS.

The career of John Bland deserves to be rescued from oblivion. His was a most interesting personality, and the facts which I have been able to glean about him should be placed on record—the more so because he was disinherited and his name erased from the family pedigree in all the editions of Burke's "Landed Gentry," which is not only an injustice to his memory, but a wrong to his descendants, all of whom have good reason to be proud of their ancestor.

He was the eldest son of Nathaniel Bland, LL.D., of Derriquin Castle, co. Kerry, Judge of the Prerogative Court in Dublin, by his first wife Diana Kemeys, and was disinherited by the Judge, who intended him for the law, but the young man was of an adventurous disposition and elected to become a soldier. His father's contemporary and relative was General Humphry Bland (a full account of whose distinguished career will be found in the "Dictionary of National Biography"); and John Bland obtained a Cornet's commission in his regiment, then known as "Bland's Horse," and now as the 3rd Hussars. Cornet Bland carried its colours victoriously through the memorable battle of Dettingen, and subsequently fought at Fontenoy, where he was taken prisoner (see "Gent. Mag.," vol. xv., col. 2, p. 249). Whether he escaped or was exchanged I have not been able to discover. He was engaged subsequently with Colonel Honeywood (afterwards General) at Clifton Moor, where the Jacobites were routed (see "Gent. Mag.," 1745, p. 625). General Bland's Horse were present.

Between this date and 1752, when the General became Commander-in-Chief in Scotland and Governor of Edinburgh Castle, young Bland took the step which resulted in the breach with his father—deserted the Army for the Stage—and was cut out of the heirship, and out of the pedigree also.

In the "History of the Bland Family," by Nicholas Carlisle, 1826 (a book not often to be met with), there is a passage referring to John Bland which is incorrect in several particulars. It states that in early life he was entered at the Temple—this is negatived by the silence of the Records there; and it also says that he was at the memorable siege of Vigo—but as he died in 1808, aged 87, it is manifest that this was not possible. He may, however, have been present in the attack by Lord Northesk ("Gent. Mag.," 1742, p. 445), or that by Captain Holmes ("Gent. Mag.," 1743, p. 104).

His first appearance as an actor was at Covent Garden, 17 October 1751 (see Genest's "History of the Stage"), as Polydore in "The Orphan." In 1753-4 he was residing in St. James's, and in the interim may have been at Bath. From London he seems to have gravitated back to Edinburgh, where the remainder of his life was spent in the combined capacity of actor, manager, and treasurer of the Theatre Royal. He was author of a novel entitled "Frederick the Forsaken," the publication of which is thus announced in Faulkner's "Dublin Journal," 24 February 1761:—

"The satisfaction and pleasure that Politicians, and indeed Intelligent Readers of all Casts, will receive by perusing, must redound greatly to the Reputation of the Author and stamp a Sterling Signature upon the work itself."

I have not succeeded in obtaining a copy of the book, which, from its title, would seem to have some reference to the treatment he received from his father. In an obituary notice in Walker's "Hibernian Magazine" for 1808, I find the following summing up:—

"He was very excentric, but with all his peculiarities, he was an honest man, a kind husband, an indulgent parent, and a steady friend."

His wife's Christian name is incidentally mentioned as Nancy. She was an actress, which may have been an additional reason for the harsh treatment he received from his father. The stage was not then such a petted social institution as it is now, but very much the contrary.

In the theatrical "Memorials of Charles Lee Lewes" he is mentioned, vol. iv., p. 190, as "performing with his eldest son in the play entitled 'Such things are.'" He therefore clearly had then at least two sons. The character of him by this author corresponds with that given in the "Hibernian Magazine":—

"He was a brave, proud, generous, affable, liberal, friendly, honest, unthinking man."

The descendants of one son I have been a long time endeavouring to trace—with what success the pedigree will shew; the descendants of the other son I also give—presuming the statement in "The Ancestor," vol. viii., p. 52, that Edward Bland was also a son, to be correct. I also give particulars of the Glovers, who intermarried with the Blands, and are descendants of the famous Julia Glover, declared by Boaden to be "the greatest actress of her time."

The extensive Derriquin estate, which should have gone to John Bland, went to his brother, the Rev. James Bland. Judge Bland married, secondly, Lucy Heaton; and it is a most curious and interesting fact that his son by her, Captain Francis Bland, was (by a Miss Grace Philipps, daughter of a Welsh clergyman), father of the famous Mrs. Jordan, who was, therefore, John Bland's niece. Francis Bland deserted Miss Philipps and her progeny and married Catherine Mahony, whose legitimate issue is of course duly recorded in Burke. I have "endeavoured" the (Bland) Jordan pedigree also, which will doubtless have interest for others besides myself. From it it is manifest that the blood of Judge Bland permeates the Peerage through Mrs. Jordan's issue by King William IV., even down to the grandchildren of King Edward VII., the Duke of Fife being the grandson of one of Mrs. Jordan's beautiful daughters, but whether this fact would have reconciled the proud old Judge to the irregular connexion by which it was brought about is very problematical.

It is curious to note that of the sons of the actor-soldier, John Bland, the descendants of one took to the stage, and of another to the army. The great military services of the Angelo descendants of John Bland would take too much space and time to chronicle.

It was only by prolonged research and a wide correspondence that I gleaned the facts embodied in these pedigrees, which do not profess to be by any means exhaustive—in fact, certainly are not so; I only claim that they are tolerably accurate as far as they go.

FRANCIS BLAND, FATHER OF MRS. JORDAN.

[The miniature shews a dark green uniform with yellow or gold lace. These might represent the 51st, 54th, or 55th Foot, about the middle of the eighteenth century; but the records do not go far enough back to find the name. Commissions in those days were sometimes given to boys in their early teens.]

PONTIFEX FAMILY.

I should be glad of any information as to who the parents were of Sir William Pontifex, a Catholic Priest. He was Chaplain at the church of St. Mary Magdalen in the parish of East Ham, Essex. In his will, dated 9 June 1517, he desires to be buried within the churchyard of St. Mary Magdalen of East Ham. He mentions Thomas Guge and William Guge his godchildren, and his niece Agnes Guge, wife of Thomas Guge. The will was proved 10 July 1518 in the Consistory Court of London.

In Memoriam.

THE LATE LORD ALDENHAM.

A notable loss has been sustained by reason of the death of Lord Aldenham, whose eventful career stands out as unique, even in a country like England, which boasts such a wealth of business talent. The deceased gentleman, Henry Hucks Gibbs, first Baron Aldenham, was born in 1819. His father was the founder of the now famous firm of Messrs. Anthony Gibbs and Sons. He was educated at Rugby and Exeter College, Oxford, and took his M.A. degree in 1844. His activities, however, were mainly in the way of commerce, and he became so conspicuously successful in business life that at the early age of thirty-four he attained the distinction of becoming a Director of the Bank of England, a position he held for half a century. He qualified during twenty-three years' service for the position of Deputy-Governor of the Bank, and in 1875-7 he became Governor.

Lord Aldenham had a remarkable taste for lexicography, and in the midst of an abnormally busy career he found time to join with Dr. Murray in the production of some of our standard works. He was also interested in genealogy, and was a liberal subscriber to genealogical works. He sat as Member for the City of London, was Trustee of the National Portrait Gallery, Member of the Council of Keble College, Oxford, and took an active part in at least a dozen notable societies. Unfortunately his youngest son, the Hon. Henry Gibbs, died on the 14th September, the day before his Lordship's death, and both were buried on Wednesday, 18th September, at Watford.

Genealogical Notes and Queries.

CROMWELL DEATH.

[Fourth Series, Vol. II., p. 218.]

Cromwell Death of Fumival's Inn was one of the bondsmen for John Lawrence, Vicar of St. Martin's, Stamford Baron, on 1 December 1668, when he compounded for the first-fruits of the prebend of Sutton-in-the-Marsh, Lincoln Cathedral.

Cromwell Death probably belonged to the family of Death of Gosberton, some generations of which appear in Vol. IV., pp. 1191, 1192, of the "Lincolnshire Pedigrees," edited by Canon Maddison and published by the Harleian Society. Henry Death, one member of this family, is described as "of St. Martin's, Stamford, gent." Edward Death (Dethe), son and heir of Henry Death, was admitted to Gray's Inn 2 February 1630-1.

Perhaps some Lincolnshire or Northamptonshire genealogist may be able to supply some information about Cromwell Death. As he must have been born before the Commonwealth, his remarkable first name had presumably a family and not a political origin.

MAHONY PEDIGREE.

I should be much obliged for any information respecting this pedigree, and especially as to the following points:—

- (1) The name of Cornelius Mahony's first wife.
- (2) The name of John Mahony's wife and the marriage of his children and their present representatives.
- (3) The maiden name of Honoria Mahony, wife of Dennis Mahony of Mount Collins, the marriages of their children and their present representatives.

THE COUNTESS OF WILTSHIRE, DIED 1538.

[See pp. 246, 247.]

There can be no doubt but that this Countess was Lady Elizabeth Howard, the only wife of Thomas (Boleyn), Earl of Wiltshire, and the mother of Queen Ann Boleyn. Her funeral certificate is at the College of Arms, as also is that of her sister Muriel, Viscountess Lisle, the parentage of each being duly set forth. In the latter the Viscountess is stated to have died in childbed at Lambeth 14 December 1512, and to have been buried there 8 January following, the "Lady Elizabeth Boleyn" being one of the mourners. In the former the Countess is stated to have died at the Abbot of Reading's place in London 3, and to have been buried 7 April 1537 at Lambeth. Nothing is said therein about her having died in childbed, and I quite agree with "W. M. L." as to the improbability and want of evidence as to such having been the case, and have accordingly deleted such statement from my copy of "The Complete Peerage, by G. E. C." The reason of it having been inserted therein was that it was taken from an elaborate (MS.) pedigree of Howard compiled by the late William Courthope, Somerset Herald, in which the death "in childbed" is applied to both sisters. The attributing this to the Countess was doubtless from the (erroneous) entry in the "Howard Memorials" (a work which I know he consulted) mentioned by "W. M. L.," whose correction of the extraordinary blunder of Miss Strickland in the matter is most interesting.

CROPPENBERGH OR COPPENBURGH.

I should be glad of any information as to who was the husband of a Mary Croppenberg. In her will, dated 20 July 1652 (proved 1652), she describes herself as a widow, and mentions her son-in-law Joseph Alston, Baronet, husband of her daughter Mary; her brother John Vermuden; her daughter Ann, wife of George Sherard (married 31 July 1651 at St. James' Church, Clerkenwell, London); and her grandson William Sherard. She also mentions Thomas Bucke of the University of Cambridge.

A Robert Bucke of London in his will (proved 1620) mentions his wife's sister's daughter Mary Croppenberg [sic], wife of Joseph Croppenberg [sic], and Thomas Bucke, youngest son of his cousin Thomas Bucke of Bullington Hall, now scholar at Caius College, Cambridge.

"MISTLETOE."

THE BRODRICK MONUMENT.

["Miscellanea Genealogica et Heraldica," Third Series, Vol. V., pp. 275, 276.]

This monument of my ancestors Thomas Brodrick and his wife is placed facing east on the north wall of the west tower of Peperharow Church, co. Surrey. It is a large black tablet, at the head in gilt a spear, the head imbrued, transfixing a coronet; on either side an obelisk adorned with gilt ornaments and the Brodrick spearhead; at the base on brackets on either side is a white marble bust of a man and woman. The late Lord Middleton has added the following inscription :—

Hoc monumentum, olim in Ecclesiæ [sic] Beatæ Mariæ apud Wandsworth positum, in hanc ecclesiam transferendum curavit Gulielmus Octavus Vic-Comes de Middleton, A.D. 1900.

Sir Thomas Brodrick married at St. Mary's-le-Strand, London, by licence, 17 August 1623, Catherine, daughter of Robert Nicholas of Manningford Bruce by Jane, daughter of Nicholas St. John of Lydiard Tregoze; she was hence descended from Roche of Bromham, all co. Wilts; she was buried at Wandsworth 4 December 1678.

In his will (P.C.C., 151, Twisse), dated 5 March 1638 and proved 20 November 1646, he is described as of Wandsworth, his residence there being known as Savage Farm; has land in London, Surrey, and Yorkshire; mentions sons Allen, Thomas, St. John, Oliver, William, Henry, and daughters Anne, Lucie, and Margaret,* also friends Sir Allen Apsley and Sir Oliver Nicholas, Knights. Sole executrix Dame Katherine, his wife, at whose discretion he desires to be privately buried. Witnesses: Humfrey Shalcrosse, Sir Richard Taylor, William White. Her will is not in Somerset House. Where is it?

ARTHUR SCHOMBERG.

ADRIAN STOKES.

The portrait of Adrian Stokes and the Duchess of Suffolk, his wife, (referred to by Mr. Schomberg in Fourth Series, Vol. II., p. 213), is said to have been painted in 1559, and it was engraved in 1742, being then in the possession of Horace Walpole, afterwards Earl of Orford. Copies of the engraved portrait can be picked up at printsellers.

Adrian Stokes married the Duchess on 1 March 1554-5. He is said to have been "her master of the horse," and she was blamed by some for "so far forgetting her dignity as to marry her domestic." They had one daughter, Elizabeth, who died an infant 7 February 1555-6.

Stokes obtained a new lease for twenty-one years of the manor of Beaumanor, etc., by Letters Patent dated 12 March 1562-3. In 1571 he was M.P. for Leicestershire. By a settlement, dated 20 August 1582, he assigned his interest in the manor of Beaumanor, etc., to his brother William Stokes and Robert Aprice, gent., in trust after Adrian's decease to maintain Francis Gates and John Gates (Adrian's kinsmen) at the University until they could maintain themselves, and also to provide sufficient maintenance for William Gates and two others (Adrian's servants) during the residue of the lease.

Adrian Stokes died 3 November 1585. An inquisition was taken at Torrington after his death on 25 May, 28 Elizabeth. It was found that he held the manor of Lengaue, co. Devon, etc., worth £13 13s. 4d., of the Queen in capite by the twentieth part of a knight's fee; and William Stokes was his brother and heir, and aged 60 years. (Cole's "Escheats," v.; Harl. MS. 760, fo. 331.)

On 15 January 1578 Dorothy, daughter of Sir George Hastings, was baptized at Loughborough; "Mr. Francis Hastings godfather, the Lady Stanhoppe and the Ladie Throgmortone, wif to Mr. Stocks of Beaumanor, godmothers." (Loughborough Parish Register.) William Stokes by his will appointed Sir George Hastings and his wife executors.

Adrian and William Stokes occur in several Exchequer suits. (See Exchequer Depositions by Commission, 28 Eliz., Hilary 6; 34 Eliz., Hilary 8 and 9; and 36 Eliz., Hilary 8.) Anthony Stokes was lessee of lands in Clawston in 1593. George Stokes was M.P. for Leicestershire in 1558. The name of Stokes occurs frequently in the wills at Leicester. (Calendar, British Record Society.)

* For the future of these children see "Miscellanea Genealogica et Heraldica," Vol. II., p. 364. Oliver Nicholas, Cnpbearer to James I. and Carver to Charles I., was probably the testator's brother-in-law. Allen Apsley (see memoir in "Dictionary of National Biography") was father-in-law of Sir Benjamin Bathurst, whose eldest son Allen was created Baron Bathurst.

I do not know whether the family continued in Leicestershire after the expiration of Adrian's lease of Beaumanor. This manor was granted in 1592 by the Queen to trustees in trust for the Earl of Essex, and assigned in 1594 to William Heyricke, Esq. However, William Stokes is styled "of Beaumanor" in 1602.

Mr. Schomberg will find some other facts about Adrian Stocks in Nichols's "Leicestershire," East Goscote Hundred, sub Beaumanor.

Reviews.

Allegations for Marriage Licences issued by the Commissary Court of Surrey between 1673—1770. Transcribed from the Original Records and Edited by A. RIDLEY BAX, F.S.A. Part III., pp. 577—870, with Title-page, Introduction, and additions and corrections. Norwich: Goose and Son. 1907.

THE Editor is to be congratulated on the issue of the last Part of these Allegations. Every Surrey student of genealogy ought to have a copy of this work upon his shelves. It will be found extremely useful, and has a comprehensive index of names and places. As the edition is limited to 100 copies we would recommend early application to be made before all the copies are taken up.

A Chronicle of Strange Experiences. By MARY E. F. RICHARDSON-EYRE. London: Mitchell Hughes and Clarke. 1907.

THIS is one of those pleasing little books which are but rarely published, but which contain so much to please little people that it teaches them more than their teachers can instil into their minds in their lessons. The various narratives were written by Mrs. Richardson-Eyre, the wife of the Vicar of All Saints, Finchley Road, when, as she says in her Preface, she was chained to a bed of sickness during seven long weary months, and her thoughts naturally reverted to the children at the schools attached to the Church, with its Mothers' Meetings, Children's Services, Sunday Schools, etc. The first paper is entitled "How shall we regard our Life?" and the Author justly says, "Let us take things joyfully—being laughter-loving, mirthfully inclined folk—not allowing ourselves to muse too much, but rather amusing ourselves when one can, taking all the innocent recreations provided for us, all the lovely things of this earth that so delight our eyes, as gifts from the Almighty, and going trippingly on our way as long as we are able." As she justly observes, "the best of people, as a rule, are the most light-hearted," and those having charge of the culture of children should endeavour to make their young lives as bright as possible.

The comical is mixed up excellently with some sad stories, and "How Tommy Tompkins got a Wife" is a story well told. "In Love's young Dream" all was happy at last, while in another story of reverting to our "first loves," the account is given of a widow whose consolation was in frequently visiting the churchyard to look at the graves of her three husbands, whom she had buried next to each other, with a suitable gravestone to each. One day, however, she received a letter from Australia from her first sweetheart, who having heard she was a widow, wrote to her proposing marriage, and having taken a farewell look at the three graves, and heaved a sigh, she took ship to Australia, and there married her fourth husband.

The stories are so excellently blended in spirit, that the book will be appreciated by all who are lucky enough to get a copy, for our kind Authoress has given the major part of a small edition away to her young scholars and friends. It can be taken up at any time to read the stories in it, and passed round to parents as well as to children to read.

The Registers of St. John the Evangelist, Dublin, 1619—1699. Vol. I. Edited by JAMES MILLS, F.S.A., M.R.I.A. Published for the Parish Register Society of Dublin by Alex. Thorn and Co., 87-89 Middle Abbey Street. 1906.

THIS is the earliest parish Register extant in Ireland. It is contained in two parchment volumes, and includes lists of residents in the parish from 1621, merging the names of those christened, married, or buried under each month. All those included in each page of the Register are mentioned, sometimes numbering seventy entries, and each quarter is attested by the signature of the Prebendary up to 1634. There is a list of the poor English who fled to the city for refuge and died in the parish of St. John's, as well as a Catalogue of poor soldiers who were buried there. Then from September 1643 the names are given in alphabetical order by Prebendary Boswell, who arranged them as baptized, married, and buried up to 1673; from 1673 Andrew Ormston came to be parish clerk, and then from time to time those baptized and the burials were given together under the respective years up to 1683. Mark Magin was clerk from then, and up to 1700 he classified the entries under baptized, married, and buried. The Work finishes with two appendices, giving the amount of the "Cesse" paid by each parishioner, and also an Index of Places and one of Persons, thus making the volume very complete. It is very carefully printed, and was worth binding in cloth cases. The editorship reflects great credit upon Mr. James Mills.

Journal of the Historical and Archaeological Society. April to June 1907. Cork: Guy and Co., 70 Patrick Street.

WE have been favoured with a Part of the above Work, which begins by giving an account of "Innishannon and its Neighbourhood," by the Rev. John Harding Cole, B.A., etc. The Author gives its name as Little Owen's Inch, implying the flat bit of land alongside the River Bandon. It is a place of great antiquity, having, as the Author states, nearly ninety different ways of spelling it, which he gives in a note. The Paper is illustrated by four plates—Bridge of Innishannon, the Vale of Innishannon, Kilbeg Castle, and the Carved Stone, found in 1898 by the grandson of the oldest inhabitant, Old Abe Soane. The Paper is likewise illustrated by a portrait of General Sir Richard Meade, a gallant soldier who served his country for forty-three years.

The next article is by Colonel T. A. Lunham, C.B., who gives some historical Notices of Old Cork, which is illustrated by a Map of the City of Cork in 1585 and an account of the execution of the brothers Sheares for political reasons. We have next an account of Henry Eeles, Philosopher and Land Agent, whose papers and deeds are interesting. The "History of the O'Mahony Septs of Kinelmeky and Ivagha" is still continued, and is illustrated by two plates of Section Views of Rath Raithleann. The Author, Rev. Canon O'Mahony, refers to an account of the wars of the Gael and the Gaill in A.D. 844, and narrates how in A.D. 903 was fought the celebrated Battle of Bealach Mughna, co. Kildare. The history of Munster affairs in the tenth century is to a large extent misrepresented, and "The Wars of the Gaedhill and the Gaill" narrate the numerous invasions of the Norwegian and Danes, particularly in the South of Ireland. The Paper finishes with the raid of Ferghal, King of Connaught, over the men of Munster, whose hostages were kept in one of the forts in Kinelmeky. Another Paper on "Historical and Topographical Notes" is an account of the Rev. Thomas Olden, D.D., who was a learned antiquarian, and the author of many works, besides being well versed in the Irish language; his portrait is given. He resigned his living at Ballyclogh in 1899, and died in 1900, aged 77 years. There was an old castle, which is now in ruins, and two illustrations are given of it and the old church. There are also plates shewn of Ballydoyle House, the Ballindangan Gallaun, co. Cork, Ballyduff House, and the ruins of Ballylough Church in 1906. The Part ends with a list of Council and Members of the Society.

THESE Numbers contain many items of interest to collectors of Book-plates, and in the June-July issue, which is a combined one, particulars are given of a lecture on "The Cult of Book-plates," delivered by Dr. G. C. Peachey at the Annual Exhibition, in which there is a short account of the early history of Book-plates. An excellent reproduction of the book-plate of Sir William P. Treloar, Bart., is given as a frontispiece.

Descent in the Male Line of the Family of Grazebrook from 1065, with Proofs for each Generation.*

In the Chronicle of Tewkesbury (Dugdale, "Monast.," i., p. 154, ed. 1651) more particulars are given of Brictric Meaw.

He went as one of an embassy from the King to the Court of Flanders, and made such an impression on the youthful Matildis that, as the chroniclers do not hesitate to say, she ventured to disclose to him her affections! Brictric, however, did not at all respond, but returned to his King and Court, and thus ended Act i. of this drama.

In course of time William, Prince of the Normans, became the hero of Europe; married this Mathildis, daughter of Baldwin V., Count of Flanders; conquered England, and meted out among his followers the estates of these noble Saxons. Matilda, his Queen, then solicited and obtained possession of all the estates of this Brictric, and disposed of them to other loyal subjects. Sandford was only one of several estates thus given by her to Muriel and Roger on their marriage. I must mention one which is not recorded in Domesday Book, and the reason why. The estate of Clifford in Gloucestershire, about two miles from Stratford-on-Avon, was also a present from Queen Matilda. The marriage must have taken place about 1070, Domesday Book was compiled 1086, and between these dates Roger and Muriel gave their Clifford holding to the abbey of St. Peter's at Gloucester, and to be applied specially as an endowment of the chamberlain there. As a distinction from other places of the same name this manor was thus described as Clifford Chamberlain, and in course of time became shortened, and is now called Clifford Chambers.

In "A History of Clifford Chambers," by Sir John Maclean, he quotes the confirmation of their possessions to the abbot and convent of St. Peter at Gloucester, dated Christmas, 1086, which names this gift by Roger and Muriel. ("Transactions of the Bristol and Gloucestershire Archæological Society," vol. xiv.)

I notice this because there is an error of some years in the dating in Dugdale's "Monast." (ed. 1655, vol. i., fo. 113*). The gift being mentioned and confirmed in 1086 at Christmas time could not possibly have been made later than that date.

Now let us pause for a moment and realize what these enormous possessions meant. At the Conquest lands were by favour granted out subject to all the services involved in fœdal tenure. I need not attempt to particularize them—they varied slightly; but all paid certain gelds, services and fines, relevium (which compares with our new Death Duties) by the next heir, etc.; in effect lands at the Conquest were valueless UNLESS they had population sufficient for their proper culture. Inhabitants were few and unsettled; recovery of the land required capital and skill, and a certain administrative capacity, which it is evident Roger de Buslei must have possessed in a remarkable degree, and he had to collect about him reliable agents and stewards and senescals to be able thus to relieve other great owners of responsibilities from which they shrank, feeling themselves incapable to discharge all these feudal obligations with any surplus and return for the cares and risks. It was in fact impossible to hold in demesne more than a very small portion of such enormous estates. Roger de Buslei must have been a man of the greatest businesslike and statesmanlike capacity. He gathered together and subinfeoffed a great number of under-tenants, many of them his old dependents from Drincourt and the Pays-de-Bray, who had come over with him in 1066, and many more who followed him quickly afterwards to partake of the fruits of the Conquest.

* Communicated by GEO. GRAZEBROOK, Esq., F.S.A.—continued from p. 273.

Every knight's fee was liable for certain military and feudal services, and under this nearly universal subinfeudation every tenant undertook to perform the exact proportion of such services as were allotted to the extent of the lands which he held under the chief lord. Some further services in kind, or perhaps in money, represented what we now call "rent," and of these we need not speak, as this is a genealogical history. What we have said will sufficiently explain how it was possible for a great landed proprietor to hold wide tracts of country, compared with which the greatest modern estates seem as mere gardens. Every tenant in his degree performed his portion of the great sum of feudal service, and it became the interest of both chief lord and under-tenant to help forward and improve the cultivation and value of their several holdings.

I remember an old comic song in the days of my youth with the refrain, "Oh, my grandfather was the most wonderful man!" and lest such a refrain might be used against me, after twenty-three generations, I give short abstracts from the two great historians of Yorkshire and Nottinghamshire. They wrote county histories about large districts and so in a general way, and I can prove personal particulars from records, many of which were not at their disposal, but here is their estimate of Roger de Busli's position and eminence:—

Mr. Joseph Hunter ("South Yorkshire," 1831, i., p. 223) says: "Have searched everywhere in Normandy and England for the antecedents of Roger de Busli, two places called Busli, etc. [My document on p. 270 settles this.] His alliances with the great houses of Montgomery and Ew are undisputed. Said by Ordericus Vitalis to be a kinsman of Robert de Belesme, and so near that Robert succeeded to his estates." ["He obtained a grant of them for a large sum of money." "O. V.," book x., cap. vii.] And page 225: "This looks like stepping in between some persons who had a nearer claim, and we find two families descended from Arnaldus afterwards claiming the Castle and Honor, on the ground of the disturbance of the natural course of the descent." At p. 224: "The exact relationship cannot now be stated, but it is evident that Roger de Buslei was connected in blood with the chiefest estates in Normandy, and that there was a close connection between him and the Earls of Morton, whose Yorkshire estates abutted on his own, and also with the Earls Warren, whose lands adjoined on another side. The Devonshire gift by the Queen and the terms of the Charter of Blythe shew some peculiar connection between the wife of de Buslei and the Queen of the Conqueror, and as the marriage took place after the Conquest it is probable that Roger was a young man when he came over, as he died in 1098 [on 17 January 1099], 32 years after the Conquest." ["Died 4 Ides of January 1099" (that is, 17 January). "Chron. Gloucester," quoted in Thoroton's "Hist. of Notts," p. 473.]

Mr. Thoroton ("History of Nottinghamshire," 1677, and new edition, 1790): "Stanford afterwards became the fee of Roger de Busli, whom King William made the greatest man of lands in this county by many degrees, for in this small shire he had 174 manors, being the best part of 90 townships, besides very many other towns which were partly or wholly in soe to some of them. His seat in this county at Blythe and in Yorkshire at Tickhill." [This is Stanford-upon-Soar in Nottinghamshire.]

In "History of South Yorkshire," i., p. 220, is a list from Domesday Book, shewing sixty-one townships, which wholly or in part were dependent on the castle of Tickhill (within the deanery of Doncaster only), but very shortly after the Conquest this vast honour began to be fretted away, and Mr. Hunter gives a further list of the time of Queen Elizabeth, shewing that only thirty-four of these manors were then declared as belonging to the honour.

Roger de Busli subinfeuded nearly the whole of these vast estates scattered over England in the counties of Notts, York, Derby, Lincoln, Leicester, Devon, and Gloucester. To his brother Arnaldus de Busli and the younger branch he gave seven and half knights' fees, which were held by Castle Guard of the honour of Tickhill, considered the most honourable of tenures, and except the feudal services claimed by the King there seems to have been no other burthen whatever laid upon their holding. This might well be expected, as we have seen that Arnaldus owned a portion of the tithes sold to bring them both and their retinue over to England. Hunter ("Hist. South Yorksb.," i., p. 69) remarks that such estates "raises this younger branch to a very distinguished rank in this part of the kingdom." This Ernaldus founded the second house of de Busli, and transmitted his male descent down to the moment of this writing. Besides their holdings in the honour of Tickhill he and his descendants held largely as sub-tenants under other chief lords, and notably from the Fossards, who, under the Count of Mortain, held Rotherham, Bawtry, and Austerfield, and other large estates, and they again subinfeudated this second house of de Busli.

The great tract of country inter Ribble and Mersey was given by Roger de Poitevin to Roger de Busli and Albert Gresley before 1086. The exact division I cannot readily make out. Gresley seems to have had what is now the Hundred of Salford, while de Busli had what was then a very wild uncultivated tract, now the Hundreds of Blackburn, Leyland, and West Derby.

In Domesday Book, fo. 270^b, it is thus described: "In these six Hundreds Derby, Neitone, Walitune, Blackburne, Salford, and Laidland are 188 manors in which are 80 hides geldable less one." Mr. Eyton tells us (Brit. Mus., Add. MSS. No. 31,935, fo. 47^b) that it covered an area of "at least 600 square miles." A portion of these same lands is described at fo. 301^b of Domesday Book in these words: "61 vills and 162 carucates belonging thereto; all these are near to Prestune, and have 3 Churches." Out of these 61, 16 vills are sparsely inhabited "sed quot sunt habitantes ignoratur. Reliqua sunt vasta." Mr. Eyton thought that probably Roger de Poitevins had not the resources sufficient for the occupation of a wasted country of such great extent.

Refer also to "Yorkshire Archæological Journal," xiv., p. 299: "A mouderness with Preston as Capital and more than 60 vills."

Mr. W. Farrer, in his book published 1902, "The Lancashire Pipe Rolls," has laboured to elucidate the settlement of this portion of Roger de Busli's estates, and points out that before 1094 the greater part of his demesne between Ribble and Mersey, as it had existed in 1066, had been granted out to knights in order to meet the military services due from him on account of Roger Poitevin's Lancashire Fief. It may be well here to give these data. Before 1114 (14 Henry I.) the honour of Lancaster had been created partly, perhaps mostly, from the fiefs established by Roger de Busli, together with those other lands of Roger Poitevin scattered about England which escheated on his banishment in 1102. It ceased to be an honour when it was erected into a duchy in 1351. Lancastria is not treated as a separate county until 1181.

By the dated Charter of 1094 Earl Roger Pictavensis gives to the abbey of St. Martin of Sees the church of Lancaster and other lands; also the tithes of all the land of Albert Gresley and the title of Warin Boissel at Brestona, and of all his demesne between Ribble and Mersey, etc. Among other witnesses are Alberto Gresley and Rogerio filio Ernaldi; therefore that vast district had by that time been meted out to under knights. Roger de Busli died 17 January 1099. What remained not granted out was in 1094 in the hands of his nephews, who were liable for the feudal services. I suppose that Albert Gresley had no interest in the "inter Ribble and Mersey" tract of country that had been given in Domesday to de Busli (Domesday Book, fo. 270).

Roger Pictavensis continued as chief lord of all this until his forfeiture and banishment in 1102; but that in no way disturbed the tenure of the de Busli family, who retained their fiefs under the King, or the new chief lord, if he appointed such, and their subinfeudated knights went on holding their freeholds which had been allotted to them just as at first.

I have given this rather extended account of these Lancashire estates because they will be again referred to at a later date, when they were held by the descendants of Ernaldus, the younger brother of Roger de Busli.

We can now realize what a life of continued business must have called forth all the talents and the time of Roger de Busli for nearly thirty years after the Conquest. He had to fill up with responsible under-tenants and sufficient population to cultivate these numerous underfiefs, and so to ensure that each should be able to carry out its own quota of the feudal services accruing; and until that was carried out he was personally responsible for the whole.

In considering these anxieties and arrangements some students have suggested that perhaps grants in Serjeanty, which were practically free gifts of lands for their bare feudal services, coupled only with some trifling matter as an acknowledgment of the over-lordship, had to be resorted to to lessen the great responsibility of the chief lords? However probable this may seem, I can only say that in very very few cases have we any such particulars from such early times! One hundred years later we are told of "gersuma," or money paid down as a bonus for the privilege of being subinfeudated in estates, together with some small annual rent in kind or in money paid beyond the usual feudal services; and at the same date we know that Serjeanties were then usually granted as a special favour in acknowledgment of loyal service.

We have one instance before 1070, when Ernaldus and his descendants had large estates given to them for a mere nominal service, and that of the most honourable description of tenure, Castle-ward. But this was quite exceptional, given by Roger de Busli to his brother, who had contributed to their joint venture with William, Prince of the Normans, afterwards King of England. When treating of Ernaldus we shall give the exact List of those Manors; and the several successive Lists, which we are able to quote from time to time, down to 1221, as well as some few Records of some Manors to a later date. These are of themselves quite sufficient to prove the male descent, without the contemporaneous Charters and Records which we hope to squeeze in without taking up too much space or becoming tedious. To students, of course, such a collection of recorded facts focussed on such early times must be interesting!

The question as to who was Muriel, the wife of Roger de Busli, has proved a great enigma to several eminent genealogists. Bearing in mind the intimate relations that existed between her and Queen Matilda, and that Roger and Murie were "connected in blood with the chiefest estates in Normandy" (Hunter's "South Yorkshire," i., p. 224), also with the Earls of Morton and the Earls of Warren, etc., also considering that from lack of Records I cannot so far give the male ancestors of Roger and Ernaldus—the old Seigneurs de Busli before them—I think it is worth while giving a skeleton pedigree of Endo de Capello. Mr. A. S. Ellis ("Yorkshire Archaeological Journal," iv., p. 143) supposes that his daughter Muriel may have married Roger? So far this has not been proved, but it seems to answer Mr. Joseph Hunter's account of their connections in blood, and so I give a short pedigree which may help others in the search; and Mr. Ellis has not given these particulars.

Robert, 2nd son of Richard II., \equiv Herleva or Arlotta Duke, was Count of the Hfemois; of Falaise. and succeeded Richard III., his brother, and became Duke of Normandy in 1027.

Arlotta was afterwards the lawful wife of Herluin de Costeville, who founded the Abbey of Grestain in Mortain and was Comte de Cotentin, and had by him these children, who were brothers and sisters of William I. of the half-blood.

MURIEL, who may be our Muriel?

If so, after the death of Roger de Busli on 17 January 1098-9, she must have married, as her second husband, Robert de Haia, who inherited jure uxoris the office of Dapifer of Normandy ("Gallia Christiana," xi., Inst. 245-6; see also Dugdale's "Baronage," i., p. 597). Henry I. gave him the Honour of Hainac in Snessex. He was son of Ralph de Haia, Seneschal of the Comté de Mortain ("Rot. Senec. Norman.," i., p. clxxvi). "Planché Conqueror and his Companions," i., pp. 51, 85, also mentions this, but I should not quote him as an authority!

De Warren, Lord of Conisborough, descended from Gunnora, the wife of Duke Richard I. of Normandy (Vetulus), and great-grandmother of the Conqueror.

The Earls of Ewe, as we shall see in their skeleton pedigree, descended also from this same Richard, and had large possessions given to them. Blood was thicker than water when England was being meted out!

While all his vast estates were being thus granted out and settled, and, perhaps, as a thankoffering on the completion of his labours, in the year 1088 Roger de Busli and Muriel his wife built and endowed their Abbey of Blithe as a cell of St. Katherine de Monte at Bonen. It is needless here to give the Charter, as anyone can see it in Dugdale's "Monasticon" (Ed. 1651, vol. i., p. 553), but it is well to quote a few words which shew, I think, an intimacy and affection between them and their Sovereign. Rogers de Bully and Muriel my wife for the stability of William King of the English, also for the Soul of Queen Matildis (she had died on 2 November 1083) and for the safety of (their) souls, etc. The list of witnesses is not given in the "Monasticon"; I give these from the original Chartulary (Harl. MS., 3759, fols. 100^b, 106^a): "Gilbertus presbiter, Richard presbiter, William presbiter, fulco de Lisoris, Thoraldus his brother, Ernaldus de Busilli, Godefridus dapifer, Turoldus de Chevercourt, Claron, Radulfus Novifori, Paganus gladio, Robertus dispensator, W. de Drincort, Henry Doncas[ter]."

Ernaldus was his brother. W. de Drincort would be one of his old dependants in Normandy, and now enfeoffed in English estates. Fulco de Lisoris was one of Roger's chief vassals, and held in Adwick-le-Strete, Frickley, and Stotfold. Thoraldus, his brother, also held de Busli lands.

We need not wade through the great number of other notices of Roger de Busli. In 1071 was granted to him the lordship of Langhton-in-le-Morthen, with the Hall of Earl Edwin, but he had already built Tickhill Castle as the Caput of his Barony, and so it continued to be ("Yorksh. Archæol. Journal," iv., p. 142). His name appears, among other magnates, as a witness to the Conqueror's Charter to Lewes Priory, which was before 1087, and William I. died 9 September in that year (29th Report of Deputy-Keeper of Public Records, Appendix v., p. 41). He sided with William Rufus and aided him in 1088. We last meet with him at Dover, 6 Kal. February, that is, 27 January 1090 ("Mon. Angl.," ii., p. 266), attesting that King's Charter to Bath Abbey. We learn from the "Chronicle of Gloucester" that the exact day of the great Roger's death was 17 January 1099 (Thoroton's "Notes," p. 473).

I have frequently seen tables compiled to shew the numbers of manors which a few of the greater nobility relatively held, as given in Domesday Book, but I could not accept any of them, because it seemed to me an impossible task. The object of that great Record was to arrive at a basis of taxation—the yearly value of each ville? The transcribers did use a conventional mark to shew what you may call a double manor, but a glance through Roger de Busli's feoda shews me that some villes contained six manors, and probably I might find some holding more. There is one extensive ville in the former estates of the Earldom of Shrewsbury in which I cannot clearly decide whether twelve or fourteen manors were contained. The one table, which seemed to me the least unreliable, ran thus: (1) The King, with about 1450 manors. (2) Odo, Bishop of Bayeux; I suppose in both capacities, Bishop and Earl of Kent. (3) Robert, Comes Moretain. These two were half-brothers of the Conqueror. (4) Roger de Busli, holding in capite 400 manors. After him came one in possession of 100 manors; and then a host of small fry with, perhaps, ten down to some three or four manors only. I cannot remember where this table was, but, although not exact, it satisfied me that in Domesday times Roger de Busli was the third greatest Baron in the Kingdom. In the 150 years of rebellious and troubles which succeeded, we see many names, which at first were quite insignificant or invisible, rising up into great influence and acquiring possession of considerable estates. Also I felt that such comparisons are not only odious, they are misleading, because one manor may be worth many pounds, and another, with an equal name, only a few shillings.

He and his wife Muriel left only two surviving children, that is to say, Beatrix [2], their daughter, who had been married for some years to William, Earl of Ewe. Their descendants were so frequently mixed up in claims and suits against the descendants of Ernaldus that I give the pedigree in skeleton form for frequent reference during the next 200 years of this history. I have largely followed Mr. Chester-Waters' very carefully compiled pamphlet on the Earls of Ewe—with sundry additions from the Records—where they illustrate points of contact between the two families, the one representing the de Busli blood in the male line, the other a female line which branched off on the 4th of the Ides of January 1099; their disputes help to prove our pedigree.

It does not appear that any of the very many Delamares who were in East London at this date were related to this family, with the exception of a James Delamare, who was probably brother to Peter and Abraham. He m. Madeleine Aubert, and, as appears by his will, dated 5 May and proved in the Commissary Court 21 May 1714, left two daughters, Susan, born 1694, and already married in 1714 to a husband unnamed, and Mary Woodhulen, who married at the Artillery Church, 27 March 1720, Peter Alvaivette, son of Peter Alvaivette and Elizabeth and a James and Anne Delamare. It had at least two contemporary namesakes, children having been born in E. London in 1692 to a

The Sponsors of Moses Delamare in 1705 were Abraham Dupré and Madeleine Aubert (sic); for Elizabeth in 1706 Peter Delamare and Marie Viard; for Peter in 1708 James Delamare and Madeleine Aubert, his wife; for Nicholas in 1713 Abraham Delamare and Marie Gallopin.

Nicholas Oursel, son of Nicholas and Soemy of Havre de Grace, was naturalized by Act of Parliament (No. 13, 9 and 10 William III.) 1698. Marie Hognell; and for Jacob in 1713 Abraham Delamare and Marie Gallopin.

Peter Noustille was one of the first to introduce the manufacture of crapes. Cf. Memoir in "Annual Register," L. ii. 364-6.

Daniel Vautier (1699-1760) was one of the sons by Madeleine Huët of Daniel Vautier, a refugee from Granville. He became a Director of the French Hospital 7 July 1756. His will, whereby he leaves Isaac Delamare's children £5000, was dated at Chesnut 11 June 1758 and proved in the P.C.C. (128, Lynch) 1 March 1760.

Of the seven Directors of this name the three later ones, James Delamare of 1848, James of 1858, and Francis of 1861 belonged to a different family, being the son (by Elizabeth Ferret or Ferret) and the grandsons of Nicholas James Delamare (1765-1884), whose grandfather John Baptiste Delamare came from the neighbourhood of Bolbec and settled in England in 1730.

SIR JOHN PERROTT, KNIGHT.*

The following copy of an order of King Henry VIII. is taken from a manuscript now in the hands of the family of Parker of Upton House, Upton Cheyney, Bitton, Gloucestershire.

This manuscript came into their possession amongst other records from the family of Perrott of Bell Hall, Worcestershire.

Sir John Perrott, Knight, Lord Lientenant of Ireland temp. Queen Elizabeth, passed a good deal of his life at the Courts of King Henry VIII. and Edward VI.

During the reign of Queen Elizabeth he exercised great influence in public affairs, and held an exalted position under his Sovereign, consequently he fell a sacrifice to revenge and envy. On 17 April 1592 he was arraigned at Westminster, found guilty of High Treason and received sentence of death in the same place on June 16. He was returned to the Tower, where death soon put a natural end to all his troubles.

There is no evidence to prove that this manuscript emanated originally from Sir John Perrott or that it came to the Bell Hall family from him, yet it affords an interesting and amusing example of the daily domestic requirements of the ladies in attendance at Court at that period.

“A Genuine Copy of an Order of King Henry ^{ye} 8th for one Days provision for one of the Ladies of Honour to One of the Queens.”

ADDENDA TO PEDIGREE OF NORTH DALE.

[Fourth Series, Vol. II., p. 234.]

North Dale of London married Christian, da. of George Clarke of London by his wife Ann, da. of . . . Bigg of Swanlys, Herts. By her he had five children, Ann, John, James, Christian, and Samuel Dale the botanist.

North Dale had a brother Abraham Dale, who married Ann, da. of Thomas Trifler of St. Neots, and had issue John (married Eliz., da. of . . . Flanders and widow of John Holmes), died s.p. 1684; Susanna, married John Vize; Abraham, died an infant; Barbara, died at age of 2 years; Ann, died at age of 4 years.

The above notes are taken from information furnished by Samuel Dale to Robert Dale, the Herald, in a letter of 26 March 1691.

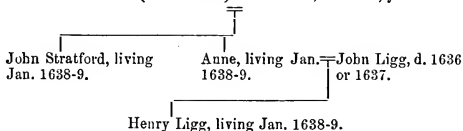

From an inscription (Bunhill Fields Cemetery) the following information is derived: John Dale of Faversham, Kent, was for 44 years minister of the Dissenting Meeting of that place. He died 7 March 1757, aged 75; his widow Sarah died 29 March 1759, aged 78, and his da. Sarah Dale 29 December 1800, aged 76. Thomas Dale, M.D., died 21 February 1816, aged 67. On the same tomb is an inscription to the memory of Thomas, third son of Dr. Thomas Dale, who died in India 16 December 1826, aged 21. He was an Officer in the 11th Regt. of Madras Light Infantry.

BRIEF PEDIGREES FROM THE DURHAM CHANCERY PROCEEDINGS.

(1) B. 46, No. 250. 4 January 1638-9.

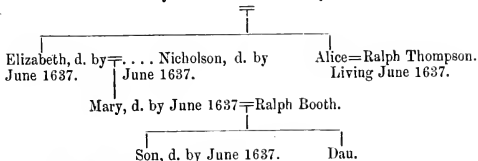

Brian Stratforth (or Stratford) of Sheraton, Durham, yeoman.

Anne's marriage settlement dated 4 Jan. 1603-4. She was married at Ravensworth Church.

(2) B. 44, No. 32. 11 June 1637.

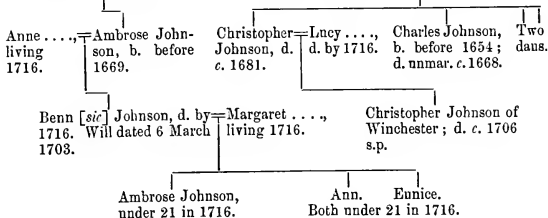

Anthony Hixson of Gateshead, yeoman.

Ralph and Mary Booth went "beyond seas" in 1630 or 1631, leaving their two infant children behind them. It is not stated that Ralph Booth was dead by date of suit, but apparently he was, as his da. is spoken of as in possession of certain property in Gateshead, which had been her mother's.

(3) B. 119, Nos. 19 and 52. March 1716 and 16 Aug. 1716.

(2) . . . =Ambrose Johnson, d. between 1681 and 1706=(1) Margaret.

The first Ambrose Johnson bought land in Whorleton from one Edw. Taylor in July 1654. Lucy, wife of Christopher Johnson the elder, survived her husband and her son. She married as her second husband one Mackadam, whom she also outlived. Margaret, wife of Benn Johnson, survived him, and married as her second husband one Clarkson, whom she also outlived. Erastus Johnson is also mentioned as alive in 1716, but his relationship is not given.

DESCENT OF ALICE MARKENFIELD AND MAGNA CHARTA.

It can be worked out that Alice Markenfield (died 1553), wife of Robert Mauleverer of Wothersome, Yorkshire, was lineally descended from eighteen of the celebrated twenty-five sureties for the Magna Charta of 1215, that is, from all who had descendants. (See Browning's "Magna Charta Barons and their American Descendants," 1898, for details of this pedigree, which certainly is unique.)

ADRIAN STOKES.

["Misc. Gen. et Her.," Fourth Series, Vol. II., p. 221.]

My friend Mr. Were, of Gallingwood Hall, Burton-on-Trent, writes me :—

"Langarre is either an error of the scribe who wrote the I.P.M., or else it has crept in since ; but the name of the manor in Broad Clyst, co. Devon, is Langacre, and is so given by all the Devon historians ; . . . Sir Arthur, and possibly Sir Nicholas Throgmorton combined, sold it in 1596 to Mr. John Davy of Exeter.

"What a capital plate you have got from the Rev. T. G. Stokes' plate ; though as regards the arms it is disappointing, seeing those of Adrian Stokes are only initials ; but he has been given a nobility helmet to which he was certainly not entitled. As regards his wife's coat, it looks to me as if the lozenge shield has a gobonated bordure, but if so, it should not go all round, so I can only surmise that it was a freak of the engraver. If it was really intended for a difference to the Tudor Royal Coat, it should be round each of the first and fourth quarters."

BURCHETT v. MARY DURDANT, TEMP. YEAR 2 WILL. AND MARY.

DALBY v. CHAMPERNOON, TEMP. YEAR 7 WILL. III.

The following are genealogical digests of the above cases :—

BURCHETT v. MARY DURDANT.

Henry Wicks, seised in fee of two messuages and 100 acres of land in Cobham in the County of Surrey, made his will, dated 6 June 1657, whereby he devised to his cousin John Higden and his heirs, during the life only of Robert Durdant, Testator's kinsman, his said messuages and lands, upon trust to permit the said Robert Durdant, during his life, to receive the rents. And, after Robert Durdant's decease, Testator gave the said hereditaments unto the heirs male of the body of the said Robert Durdant, and, for want of such heirs, to the use of Testator's cousin Gideon Durdant and the heirs of his body, with remainder to the Testator's right heirs.

Testator died 2 December 14 Car. II. seised.

By deed, dated 1 January 14 Car. II., after reciting the said will and after reciting that Robert Durdant and Gideon Durdant had contracted with John Higden for the sale of the hereditaments, Higden surrendered his estate, and it was covenanted that Robert Durdant, John Higden and Gideon Durdant should levy a fine to the use of the said John Higden and his heirs.

Fine levied accordingly in Easter Term 14 Car. II.

Robert Durdant died 19 August 20 Car. II., having had an only son George (godson of Testator), who died leaving William Durdant his son and heir, who was the lessor of Mary Durdant, party to the action. John Higden, in 20 Car. II., enfeoffed John Burchett of the premises. John Burchett died 1 October in same year, and from him the premises came to Burchett, party to the action.

Judgment for Mary Durdant.

DALBY v. CHAMPERNOON.

Sir Edmund Vowell, seised in fee of lands in Cornwall and Devon, settled same on the marriage of his son John.

Edmund, another son, died sine prole.

John and his wife Elizabeth had issue John, who died sine prole, Elizabeth and Margaret.

Elizabeth (the mother) together with Cary was trustee of her husband John's will.

Sir Edmund Vowell had a nephew John Vowell.

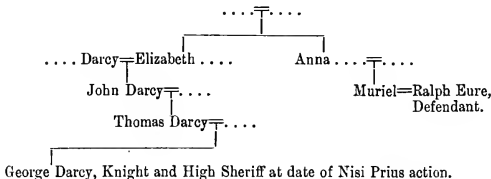

Lands situate at Vowellscomb, Balerscomb, Whitcomb, Langston, Lister, and Thavies.

Reviews.

The Publications of the Surrey Parish Register Society. Founded 1903. London: Mitchell Hughes and Clarke. 1907.

THE volume for 1906 has four small Registers, the first being those of Farleigh, Surrey, and edited by Mr. R. Garraway Rice, F.S.A. The early Registers were lost, but the oldest were bound in vellum covers, and are in a very dilapidated state. They are comprised in three books, No. 1 beginning with the entries in it from 1679; No. 2 is for Marriages, but only three leaves being used, the others being left blank; No. 3 gives the Baptisms and Burials for 1784, the former being placed at the end of the book. It has a plate shewing the old Church in 1823 and Farleigh Church in 1905, and is complete with a copious Index. The second Register is that of Tatsfield, and is edited by Mr. W. Bruce Bannerman, F.S.A., the Hon. Secretary of the Society. This is illustrated by three views. The third Register is that of Wanborough. This is transcribed by Mr. P. G. Palmer and edited by him in conjunction with the Society's Secretary, and has a plate of the Chapel. The fourth Register, Woldingham, is edited by Mr. R. Garraway Rice, F.S.A., and has plates of the Church.

All four Registers have an Index supplied. The whole four are very neatly bound, and form a nice little volume for 1906 for the Members.

The Langstaffs of Teesdale and Weardale. By GEORGE BLUNDELL LONGSTAFF, M.A., M.D. Oxon, F.S.A. In demy 4to, 536 pp. London: Mitchell Hughes and Clarke. 1907.

THIS is a portly volume, handsomely got up, and giving the names of the family of Langstaff from 1326, with five different spellings, and Longstaff from 1557 to the present time. The Author, in a long introduction of 176 pages, traces the family from the Quakers of Auckland in 1662 down to the death of his father in 1892, in his 94th year, he having had his portrait struck on the Chemical Society's Longstaff Medal. In nineteen Appendices of 340 pages the Author gives all the marriages of the Langstaffs from Queen Elizabeth in 1569 down to Queen Victoria in 1900, also the Wills in Durham, Canterbury, Somerset House, and Lincoln. With extracts from Parish Registers he includes those he could trace from 1564, besides the Court Rolls and Proceedings in Chancery from 1608. In concluding the Work he gives sixty-seven Pedigrees of the Langstaffs from 1622 down to the Longstaffs of Barnard Castle in 1901; the whole ending with a copious Index.

Altogether the Work is a masterpiece of loving work in remembrance of the Author's predecessors, and the price of the whole is but 25s., not a tithe of the cost of it, nor of the labour of twenty-five years in collating all the material. A few copies can still be obtained from the Publishers.

The Virginia Magazine of History and Biography. Published quarterly by the Virginia Historical Society, Richmond, Virginia, U.S.A. Vol. XV., No. 2. October 1907.

THIS Part begins with the Journals of the Virginian Council, 1737—1763, which is followed by the Legislative Papers from 1775. The Paper on Virginia Gleanings in England is communicated by Mr. L. Wirtington of London; it gives the Will of Sir Nathaniel Herne, Knight and Alderman of London, in 1677. In Genealogy there are several notices of the Brent and Brooke and other families, and the Part concludes with the usual notes and queries and reviews, and an In Memoriam Notice of Edward Wilson James, who died in October 1906, having always had a great love for Virginia, and, true to his friends, giving his fortune for the maintenance of the Confederate veterans and to the University of Virginia.

Notes on the Foster Family of Dowsby and Moulton, co. Lincoln, and their Marriage Connections. By W. E. FOSTER, F.S.A. (Lond.). London: Mitchell Hughes and Clarke. 1907.

THIS very neat family history is got up by the Author so that his sons should know something of their ancestors. Part I commences by stating the family was numerous in the early part of 1600, and took rank among the husbandmen farming their own property. The pedigree starts from 1547, and the senior branch from the Rev. Thomas Foster of Queens' College, Cambridge, and Rector of Dowsby in 1763. Part II, gives the marriages of the Foster family, and also several pedigrees of the various connections.

The Work will be found very interesting to a large number of families, and being in quarto size it forms a nice little volume for a gentleman's library. The Publishers have a few copies on sale, price 10s. 6d.

The New York Genealogical and Biographical Record. Vol. XXXVIII., No. 4. -October 1907. New York: 226 West 58th Street.

THIS Part has excellent portraits of Mr. Bowen Whiting Riesson, of Yorkshire origin, and Mr. Frank Sherman Benson, member of several learned societies and a liberal donor to the Church. There is a Paper on Southold Town Records, also the Records of the United Brethren Congregation of Staten Island, N.Y., a long list of Inscriptions in Milltown Cemetery, N.Y., and Records of Christ's Church at Rye. For Genealogy there is a full notice of the Mandeville family and the Stillmans of America, and the Part finishes with the account of the death in September 1907 of the Rev. M. Everett Dwight, D.D., late President of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society. It has also a full Index of Names in the Volume, with Title, etc.

Northern Notes and Queries. Vol. I, No. 8. October 1907. Newcastle-upon-Tyne:
M. S. Dodds, 61 and 63 Quayside.

THE present Part completes the first Volume, and contains, in addition to an Index to the Volume, extracts from the Morpeth Registers from 1583 to 1750; also some Notes on the Family of Chambers or Chamber of Cleadon and Whitburn, co. Durham. There are several other interesting items, and the Gateshead Guild Book, which has been issued as a supplement, has been completed down to the beginning of 1665, with separate Indices Locorum and Nominum.

We regret that with this Part it has been decided to discontinue the publication of this excellent periodical. In its short existence it has published some very useful material for genealogists and archæologists of the northern counties.

Fenland Notes and Queries. Vol. VII, Part 75. Edited by Rev. W. D. SWEETING, M.A.
Peterborough: George C. Caster, Market Place.

IN this Part there is a note on a curious popular error in various districts of the passage of a funeral across private property creating a right-of-way, with explanations of its origin. Among the other items contained therein are some Notes on Doddington Church; Peterborough Place-Names, sixteenth century; a short Pedigree of the Ollard Family; a digest of three Boston Deeds. and various other matters of local interest.

The Journal of the Ex Libris Society. Vol. XVII., Parts 8—10, August, September, and October 1907. London: A. and C. Black, Soho Square.

THE Parts for the first two months are combined, and the leading feature of the issue is an article on "Stewart Bookplates," illustrated by thirty-eight examples, mostly of an heraldic character, and headed by a reproduction of the Bookplate of the Prince of Wales. There are several other items that will appeal to collectors of Ex Libris, especially the Frontispiece, which has been printed from the original plate designed and engraved by Miss Lawson, a piece of work that reflects great credit on her skill and ability in this art.

In the October issue is a reproduction of an engraving, by William Pass, of a scarce Heraldic Portrait of Frances, Duchess of Richmond and Lennox. We also notice a description of three new Bookplates designed by Mr. Graham Johnston, but in the reproductions they are erroneously attributed to Mr. Carnegie Johnson, apparently by a clerical error. A correspondence is also being carried on with a view to forming a British Heraldic Society, and it is suggested that it should form part of, or be worked in conjunction with, the Ex Libris Society.
